Bank and Pension Bills Are Sped to Roosevelt; Guffey Coal Plan Wins

Senate Adopts Moratorium for Farms in Rush to Adjourn.

Agreement Likely Today on Utilities

The Adjournment Rush.

The House passed the Guffey coal bill, pressed by the President despite constitutional doubts, by 194 to 168 vote, after cutting down an early roll-call lead by opposition.

The railway retirement bill, revised to meet Supreme Court objections to the original act, was passed by the Senate by 76-to-3 vote and approved in House without opposition.

The Frazier-Lemke 3-year farm-mortgage moratorium bill (not the Frazier-Lemke $3,000,000,000 inflation measure), passed the Senate without a record vote, revised to meet constitutional objections.

The conference report on the banking bill, centering increased control over credit and banking in a reorganized Federal Reserve Board, was approved by the House and Senate.

The House approved the conference report on the $614,168,573 rivers and harbors bill.

Howard C. Hopson, utilities executive, admitted to the Black lobby committee that he inspired the "widows and orphans" campaign against the Wheeler-Rayburn utility holding company bill.

By Robert C. Albright.

Moving at a furious pace that promised to carry the President's entire "must" list to passage before the end of the week, Congress yesterday sped down the home stretch toward adjournment.

Legislative grist was fed into the mills and adopted almost at the will of leaders, as members fell into line with Administration hopes to terminate the Seventy-fourth Congress, first session, by Thursday.

Before the two houses quit for the night, the banking bill report and the revised railroad retirement measure had the approval of both, and were well on the road to the White House.

Not satisfied with this as a day's work, the House passed the Guffey coal bill and the omnibus rivers and harbors report, while the Senate approved a new three-year Frazier-Lemke farm moratorium—not the $3,000,000,000 inflationary farm refinancing measure opposed by the Administration.

Measures Well Advanced.

Aside from the Guffey coal measure, a third deficiency bill and Railway Co-ordinator Joseph B. Eastman's railroad reorganization bill, this left every major item on the President's legislative slate either passed by both Houses, on the way to the White House, or in conference.

Of the measures in conference, the $250,000,000 wealth taxing bill still was the key to the final adjournment date. It was no secret that this bill is intentionally being held up until the legislative decks are otherwise cleared. Leaders believe it will be impossible to hold Congress in session after the tax bill is passed.

Other major bills already through both houses and in conference are:

The utility holding company bill, on which House conferees today will seek an agreement, sans the "death sentence" for "unnecessary" holding companies. Vice President Garner placed a $1 bet yesterday that the bill will pass this session.

The FACA bill, with broad differences between Senate and House on methods of collecting liquor taxes, brewery regulation and jurisdiction of the Treasury.

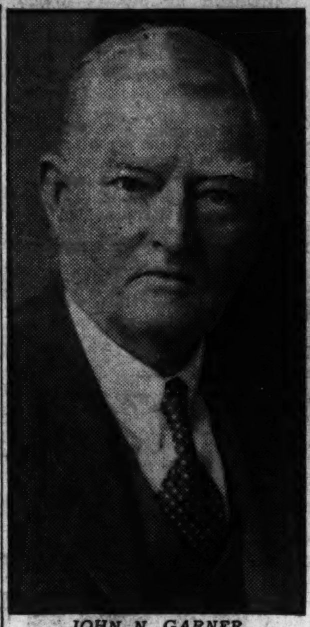
Garner to Visit Japan in Fall; Formal Welcome Is Planned

Diplomatic Aim Denied Here; Party Will Be on Way to Philippines.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.



JOHN N. GARNER.

Plans of a congressional delegation, headed by Vice President John N. Garner, to stop this fall in Japan en route to the inauguration of the Philippine Island commonwealth government last night were regarded as significant—possibly momentous—in future American-Japanese relations.

Vice President Garner revealed that not only does he plan to set foot on Japanese soil at Yokohama but that he will spend at least a day in Tokyo, an hour distant from the seaport. He insisted, however, that his stop in Japan will be unofficial and informal.

Japanese here, however, asserted that should the Vice President stop in their country his visit certainly will be made a formal occasion, especially, since the Vice President is understood to be the personal emissary of President Roosevelt on his journey to Manila.

In Japanese quarters it was asserted that not only would officials of Nippon's government welcome Vice President Garner and his congressional colleagues as honored and distinguished guests but that the Japanese government would quickly seize such an occasion as an opportunity to express friendship for the United States and to disavow any designs on the Philippine Islands, once they have their independence.

Despite his reluctance to make speeches, the Vice President hardly could remain silent if confronted by official Japanese expressions of friendship and good will. He would be compelled to make reply, and it is assumed that whatever he says would first have the approval of President Roosevelt and the State Department.

Roosevelt Talk Likely to Open His Campaign

President May Reveal Future Plans of New Deal in Speech Saturday.

In what is regarded as actually the opening speech in his campaign for re-election, President Roosevelt Saturday night will address by radio the Nation in a speech expected to be a brief accounting of his stewardship, a resume of the present congressional session and his future plans for the New Deal.

The occasion for the address will be the annual convention of the organized Young Democrats of America, meeting in Milwaukee. This organization, the shock troops of next year's political battle, has been anxious to have the President attend their convention in person.

Mr. Roosevelt likewise was anxious to be with the Young Democrats in Milwaukee, but the extended congressional session has made that impossible and yesterday he agreed with Cliff Woodward, president of the national organization, to speak to them by radio Saturday night.

President Roosevelt, who believes in keeping in close contact with the country, has not spoken to the Nation for several months, and consequently anything that he says on this occasion will be regarded as of importance. The occasion, coming as it does just as this session of Congres adjourns, gives the President an opportunity to summarize what has been accomplished and to indicate, in effect, "where we go from here."

Indeed, his speech starting at 9 p. m. Saturday night may coincide with the adjournment until next January of Congress, as several leaders on Capitol Hill believe the gavel will not fall finally until Saturday or Saturday evening. Even

Injured Flier Hunts for Trio Lost on Plane

By the Associated Press.

Denver, Aug. 19.—A determined aviator with a fractured leg started on a plane and horseback trip into the roadless, steep upper Laramie Peak country of Wyoming today convinced he will find a smashed plane that carried an Indianapolis executive, an airport manager and the latter's bride.

The hunt was started at the request of relatives of Burnside Smith, president of the Aero Mayflower Transit Co. and several other Indiana firms. They said nothing has been heard from him since he left Helena, Mont., last Thursday on a dangerous 800-mile trip to Denver.

No trace of the ship—a conspicuous yellow-cabin model—has been found. Ranchers near Laramie Peak reported they heard a plane, apparently in trouble during a storm, and then saw a flash high up on the mountain that juts like gigantic thumb from the Wyoming plains.

Walt Higley, Denver representative of the same aviation firm with which Arnett was associated at Indianapolis, immediately volunteered to make a search of the Laramie Peak country, although he recently suffered a fractured leg in an automobile accident.

He had physicians bind the leg. A few minutes later he took off for Glendo.

From there he planned to drive to the ranch home of Lyle Pexton, who said he saw fire for an hour on the peak Thursday night. From

By the United Press.

Berlin, Aug. 19.—Firemen brought 100 men, women and children to safety tonight after they had been marooned by flames in a restaurant atop a 60-foot tower at the Radio Exposition Grounds.

Flames licked at the ladders, smoke billowed from the flaming exposition hall below and sparks ignited the wooden walls of the restaurant as the rescue was completed.

Thousands of other persons attending the exposition rushed to safety when a short circuit ignited the main building. The structure and two wings were destroyed, despite efforts of hundreds of fire apparatus which answered a general alarm throughout Berlin.

A general alarm was sounded throughout Berlin as flames spread to two wings of the main hall, the roof of which collapsed with a terrific roar, sending sparks hundreds of feet upward and adding to the panic.

Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels helped direct rescue efforts. While spectators gasped, firemen one by one began creeping up ladders lashed by smoke and flames to the restaurant.

One by one, firemen began bringing the smoke-choked people down ladders. Officials estimated damage at $2,500,000. It was announced eight persons were burned during rescue from the Tower restaurant.

Rogers-Post Funeral Ship Comes Home

By the United Press.

Union Air Terminal, Burbank, Calif., Aug. 20.—Will Rogers and Wiley Post came home tonight from their "ride in a little red bus," their bodies strapped to the walls of a darkened airliner's cabin.

The gray Douglas "funeral plane" that brought the remains of the Oklahoma cowboy-philosopher and his flying friend down from Seattle, on the last leg of their homeward journey from the frozen Arctic, landed at 8:20 p. m. (Central standard time).

It was two weeks and a day since Rogers, actor, writer and the Nation's "unofficial ambassador," climbed into the cabin of Post's new red monoplane, with the grinning remark they were "going for a ride in a little red bus." The red plane crashed near Point Barrow, Alaska, and both were killed.

Throng Rings Field.

A silent throng ringed the gray airport runway as the huge silver airliner dropped out of the sky, circled the field and swept in to a landing.

Without coming to a stop, it taxied into the hangar. White-coated attendants trotted out from two black funeral wagons, parked inside the gates.

The plane had difficulty maneuvering along a lane of crowding onlookers. Several hundred thronged the railed airport runway, but were prevented from approaching the plane.

As soon as the plane was inside, doors clanged shut. However, transfer of the bodies to the funeral wagons was delayed until a newspaper photographer, found concealed among rafters of the airbarn, was ejected.

No Pictures Allowed.

Precautions were taken to prevent picture taking. The bodies were wrapped in white shrouds, and carried on stretchers. During the journey down the coast, blue curtains across the windows veiled them from the light and glances of the curious at airport stops.

The bodies were shifted to death baskets, and each transferred to a black limousine. Deputy sheriffs cleared the doorways, and 30 minutes after the plane arrived the cars shot out through a lane of straining onlookers, preceded by 20 motorcycle officers, headed toward Forest Lawn Cemetery at Glendale, Calif.

Rites Set for Thursday.

Post's body will be prepared for shipment to Oklahoma early tomorrow, probably by airplane. Rogers' body will be prepared for funeral services at 2 p. m. Thursday.

There was no official ceremony at the airport. The transfer was effected swiftly—police hustling onlookers out of the way.

In the vine-covered funeral chapel at Forest Lawn, the actor's body will lie in state from 7 a. m. Thursday until noon, according to tentative plans.

Preface to Death.

STATELY, white-haired Charlotte Perkins Gilman, one of the world's foremost women writers, killed herself three days ago and left an amazing memorandum "to promote wiser views on suicide." The death was not revealed until yesterday. Ill, she ended her life in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Katherine Beecher Stetson Chamberlain, a chloroform-soaked handkerchief over her face and a typewritten note beside her bed, explaining her action. In brief, unemotional sentences, the 75-year-old feminist, rated by Carrie Chapman Catt as the foremost woman in America, explained that she ended her life because she "preferred chloroform to cancer." The suicide was made known in a formal statement from the family, who "desired no autopsy and no other information except the note which Mrs. Gilman intended for humanity." The note; written on plain stationery and signed by Mrs. Gilman, was delivered to police by Mrs. Chamberlain, without comment. It was entitled "A Last Duty" and contained a dramatic defense of the right to end life by suicide "when usefulness is over."

"Human life consists in mutual service," the note said. "No grief, pain, misfortune or broken heart is excuse for cutting off one's life while any power or service remains.

"But when all usefulness is over, when one is assured of an unavoidable and imminent death, it is the simplest of human rights to choose a quick and easy path in place of a slow and horrible one.

"Public opinion is changing on this subject. The time is approaching when we shall consider it abhorrent to our civilization to allow a human being to lie in prolonged agony which we should mercifully end in any other creature.

"Believing this choice to be of social service in promoting wise views on this question, I have preferred chloroform to cancer."

Born of a distinguished line—her great-grandfather was Lyman Beecher and she was related to Henry Ward Beecher, noted pastor, and Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe, author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin"—Mrs. Gilman's life was devoted to social service, particularly feminist movements.

Mrs. Gilman asked, in her will, that there be no funeral. "I wish to be cremated," she wrote, "and my ashes distributed at my daughter's convenience." Among her most widely known works were "Women and Economics," "In This Our World," and "The Yellow Wallpaper." She wrote a score of books, poetry and lectured widely.

British Cabinet Called by King To Meet War Threat in Africa As Italy Curtly Rejects Peace

Baron Aloisi Denounces Parleys, Intervention of League.

France Expresses Fear for Europe

Fate of Alliances Hangs in Balance; 'Jungle Law' Forecast.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Aug. 19.—Baron Pompeo Aloisi, of Italy, taking leave of the scene of the hapless three-power peace parley today, confirmed the expressed feeling of French high officials that an African war is both inevitable and imminent by saying:

"I have no hopes for Geneva. I see no basis for further discussion. Italy does not want to leave Geneva, but, if we are led to the door, we will have to leave."

Before he spoke, officials were already predicting storm clouds for Europe and a return of "jungle law" as a result of failure of the tripartite conference. One high official had said privately that Europe "faces a crisis like that of 1914."

French leaders had placed little hope in subsequent efforts of the League of Nations, and Aloisi did not lull their fears that Mussolini would not be daunted in his march to colonial power when he added:

As for the League covenant's guarantee of independence and integrity for its member nations, he remarked:

"The League engaged itself to do a lot of things it has not done."

He also said Italy has not yet decided to send representatives to the League sessions starting September 4.

These comments had a depressing effect on the French, who were already alarmed at the collapse of the efforts of Britain's Anthony Eden and their own Premier Pierre Laval to find a road to peace for these reasons:

First, the possible loss of Italian friendship.

Second, the threat to the existence of the League of Nations.

Third, the blow to French hopes of a united front by the former allies against Germany.

Fourth, the undermining of that respect for treaties upon which the whole system of international morality depends.

Premier Laval took laeve of the London-bound Eden with a handsake and a "goodby until September 4 at Geneva." His farewell to Baron Aloisi was sober and more formal.

French officials expressed fear that Franco-Italian friendship, pacthed up only last January when Laval conferred with Mussolini in Rome, has been lost. They said they hoped the Stresa Front—the agreement of the three powers to work together in solving their African problems—would endure, but they were afraid the open break over Ethiopia was too sharp to justify the thought that Mussolini

Italy's Air Unit To Add 16,248 On Eve of War

Rites Are Held for First Casualties in East African Venture.

By the Associated Press.

Rome, Aug. 19.—Fascist Italy, saddened by the funeral ceremonies for the prominent victims of an Egyptian plane crash August 7, hurried its war preparations tonight for an East African campaign.

The Official Gazette decreed the increase of the air corps personnel by 16,248 men, including 500 officers and pilots, 1,860 noncommissioned officers, 10,988 soldiers attached to the air force, 1,500 reserve officers and 1,500 noncommissioned officers, bringing the total to over 40,000 men.

At the last rites today for Luigi Razza, minister of public works, and the six companions who died in the plane wreck, the kingdom paid homage to the victims of its East African venture, and acclaimed those who will carry on their work.

Although the crash occurred on what ostensibly was a nonmilitary mission to Eritrea, the Italian colony bordering on Ethiopia, the tragedy was viewed here as one of the monuments in Italy's "sacred responsibility to civilization."

Persons high and low in the Fascist state flocked to the Church of San Marco in the Venezia Palace, where Il Duce's offices are located, to attend the rites.

Mussolini himself, surrounded by high members of the Fascist Party and government officials, led the mourners.

Foreign powers likewise paid homage to the dead. The United States Embassy was represented by Alexander Kirk, and a wreath from the British Embassy was among the elaborate floral tributes.

New evidence of the nation's intense activity in marshaling her

Recruits Drill, Africans Vow No Surrender

Thousands of Barefooted Troops Prepare for Action at Front.

By the Associated Press.

Addis Ababa, Aug. 19.—Thousands of bare feet, moving with military precision, pounded out Ethiopia's answer to the threat of Italian invasion today as high aids of the "King of Kings" declared:

"If war must come, we will be prepared. Throughout the centuries Ethiopia has never been conquered. She will not be vanquished now!"

Within the shadow of the American legation and elsewhere in the capital thousands of unshod recruits drilled tirelessly. The raucous tones of Hubert Julian, "the Black Eagle of Harlem," who is one of their drill masters, could be heard above the din of traffic:

"Attennshun! Right about face! Eyes straight! Forward, march!"

Presumably to allocate funds for the purchase of munitions, directors of the Ethiopian National Bank met in special session under the chairmanship of the Emperor.

[A report that Selassie, his hands tied by European arms embargoes, had placed a large munitions order with the Colt Firearms Co. of America was denied flatly by officials of the concern at Hartford, Conn.]

Quantities of arms and munitions, reported reaching Ethiopia through the Sudan, were said to be far short of what was needed in view of the demands of eager tribesmen for rifles and bullets.

He remarked merely that Paris did not have the last word in settling the bitter Italo-Ethiopian quarrel, while a high official added: "We still place all our confidence

Sims Assails Morale of Navy, Standley Replies, 'He's Retired'

By the Associated Press.

Boston, Aug. 19.—Charges that naval morale was "continuously declining," and that high ranking officers in the fleet and Navy Department have been "notoriously inefficient" were made today by Rear Admiral William S. Sims in the Atlantic Monthly.

The condition, he asserted, resulted from the present system of promotion under which "injustice" was "inevitable."

Declaring "a fleet that is not ready for war is of no use, and one that is under a commander known to the whole service as incompetent, is a positive danger," the wartime commander asserted, "it is enough to make one's hair stand on end to contemplate the results of an unexpected outbreak of war at a time when the fleet and the Navy Department happened to be in the hands of officers who lacked the essential confidence of the service."

The remedy, he suggested, lay in placing the issue of promotions before competent authorities for study, criticism and constructive proposals, with, if a revision was indicated, congressional action to follow.

Rear Admiral William S. Sims' charge that Navy morale was "decling," and high officers have been "notoriously inefficient," today brought this tart reply from Admiral William H. Standley:

"Admiral Sims has been retired from the Navy for a number of years and I do not think is in a position to judge Navy morale."

Conference Seen As Total Failure

Mussolini Held Ready to Dispute England's Domination.

The War Crisis.

At London the British cabinet was summoned to extraordinary session Thursday as the collapse of the tri-power parley at Paris stirred fears of grave danger to England's prestige in Africa.

At Paris Italy's envoy to the parley served notice that his country expects nothing from Geneva in the way of averting her war moves in Ethiopia.

At Addis Ababa the tramp of the unshod tfeet of thousands of drilling recruits backed Selassie's declaration his empire never will be conquered.

By the Associated Press.

London, Aug. 19.—The British cabinet was summoned to meet in extraordinary session Thursday as diplomatic circles saw grave dangers to British prestige in Africa and in the Mediterranean if Italy carries out her announced intention of invading Ethiopia.

The cabinet faced the necessity of deciding quickly half a dozen momentous problems arising from the failure of the tripartite conference in Paris on the Italo-Ethiopian crisis. Ministers tonight converged on London from widely scattered vacation points.

Confronted by a situation considered by many as the most serious threat to world peace since 1914, King George personally took up the matter, summoning Sir Samuel Hoare, foreign secretary, to Sandringham.

Eden Returns.

Acting Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, ending a busy day of conferences at his native Lossiemouth, attempted to obtain a plane for a flight to London, but was forced to make train reservations. He was rushing toward London tonight.

The King's private secretary, Lord Wigram, also, boarded a train for this city, as prospects grew that the situation was becoming so grave it may interfere with the King's own vacation, scheduled to begin shortly at Balmoral.

Anthony Eden, minister for League affairs, returned to London tonight from Paris, personally bringing word of Premiar Benito Mussolini's uncompromising stand which wrecked the Paris talks.

Problems to Be Met.

Eden was met by newspapermen at the Croydon Air Field, to whom he said:

"We must go on. I am afraid I can say nothing. You know pretty well what happened so far. We must go on, considering what has happened. I wish the results could have been better. That is all I can say now."

Among the problems immediately confronting the ministers in the Italo-Ethiopian problem are the following:

1. The forthcoming Geneva council meeting September 4, with the possibility any determined stand there will cause Mussolini to withdraw from the League.
2. The threat to Britain's Mediterranean lines of communication with the empire and to British

Guffey Coal Bill Voted in House, Goes to Senate

New Deal's Only Remaining 'Must' Legislation Plans 'Little NRA.'

By Felix Bruner.

The Guffey coal bill, only piece of major "must" legislation not voted on by both Houses, will be considered by the Senate today following its pasage by the House yesterday. The speed with which action is obtained probably will have much to do with the time of adjournment of Congress.

Subject to one of the stiffest controversies during the present session, the measure is expected to meet strong opposition in the Senate, although Senator Guffey (Democrat), Pennsylvania, author of the bill, expressed himself last night as being "optimistic and satisfied with the outlook."

The bill, which would establish a "little NRA" for the bituminous coal industry, passed the House by a vote of 194 to 168, two other members voting "present."

The bill, which has been actively pushed by the United Mine Workers of America, and has the approval of one group of Northern coal operators, is just as actively opposed by Southern operators, who benefit by a differential in wages between the North and the South. An analysis of the vote in the House showed a great majority of Southern members in opposition to the bill. Party lines were obliterated in the vote.

Senate Opposition Seen.

Opposition from the same source is expected in the Senate. Senator George, of Georgia, let it be known that he would oppose the bill and it was indicated a number of other Southern Senators would join him. In spite of Senator Guffey's expressed optimism, there were indications that the vote would be close. Consideration of the measure as the Senate is rushing to adjournment would offer an excellent opportunity for a filibuster, but Senate leaders expressed the opinion that no such attempt would be made.

The original Guffey bill was reported from committee weeks ago, but it was set aside by action of the Senate. The plan today will be to call up the Senate bill and then substitute the House bill. Passage of the measure as it passed the House would obviate necessity for a conference.

The measure would place the coal industry in a situation similar to that which existed before the bituminous code went out of existence with all the other NRA codes. Under its provisions, a national commission would be appointed to administer a wage, hour, trade practice and price-fixing code.

Tax on Mine Operators.

As under the NRA, the industry would be divided into districts—the bill provides for 20 such districts—in each of which price, wage and trade practice provisions would be fixed. Flow of coal from each district would be regulated. Mine operators would be taxed 15 per cent of the value of their coal at the mine mouths. Operators complying with the commission regulations would be refunded 90 per cent of the tax.

President Roosevelt has insisted on passage of the bill, even though its constitutionality has been seriously questioned. The President sent word to the House Committee while the bill was being considered that even "reasonable" doubts as to its constitutionality should not be permitted to interfere with its passage.

If the bill becomes a law, opposing coal operators are expected to act immediately to enjoin its enforcement and to carry their case as rapidly as possible to the Supreme Court for a conclusive test. Similar cases were brought against enforcement of the NRA code applying to the bituminous industry and a number of courts ruled in favor of the operators.

Wage Demands Due.

Passage of the bill also would result in a resumption of negotiations between the miners' union and operators for a new wage and hour contract. Since the NRA decision, operators have contended that it is impossible for them to enter into any agreement with their employes because of the chaotic condition of the industry following the death of NRA.

Four times threatened strikes of miners have been postponed on the promise that legislation would be enacted. In the last two instances President Roosevelt intervened. The present truce between miners and operators will expire Septembr 1. John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, has constantly held the threat of a strike of 450,000 members of his organization over the heads of Congress, declaring that a walkout was inevitable if the bill were not passed.

It was with this situation in mind that the House voted. The bill was reported out of committee only with two members voting "present." The vote was 12 to 11. When the House vote was tabulated it was revealed that 13 members of the Ways and Means Committee, which reported the bill, had voted against it and 11 had voted for it. One member, Representative Thompson (Democrat), Illinois, did not answer the roll call.

The House was unusually silent as the roll was called. When the roll had been gone through once, the vote was 137 "noes" and 131 "ayes." As other members crowded into the chamber the trend was reversed, resulting in the final favorable majority of 26.

Voting for the bill were 172 Democrats, 15 Republicans, 4 Progressives and 3 Farmer-Laborites. Voting against it were 93 Democrats, 73 Republicans and 2 Progressives.

Farm Income Dips; Building Boom Still On

Although farm income last month dipped slightly below the figure reached in July, 1934, the issuance of building permits throughout the country last month indicated that the construction boom which started early in the year is continuing without any break.

These two reports made by Government agencies were the highlights of the day's news on the "economic recovery front." Despite the dip in farm income, both reports were regarded as satisfactory and pleasing to Administration leaders checking the country's progress toward prosperity.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins announced that the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that during July permits were issued in 760 cities for construction having an estimated value of $74,522,185, which was an increase of 61.8 per cent over the figure for July, 1934. The July figure was 1 per cent less than the total for June this year, but building construction as measured by permits normally "tapers off abruptly" between June and July, it was explained.

More Residential Building.

As has been the case in recent months, residential building showed the largest rate of increase. Permits were issued in July for new residential structures at an estimated cost of $27,423,021, or an increase of 214.9 per cent over July of last year.

Washington, which has been second only to New York in the estimated value of building for several months in July, fell back to fourth place. Permits were issued here for 652 structures to cost $2,464,541. New York was first with permits calling for construction valued at $12,862,731; Los Angeles, second, building valued at $3,245,984, and Indianapolis, Ind., third, with construction valued at $2,841,463. Included in the Indianapolis total was a PWA housing project to cost over $2,400,000.

Cash income of farmers for July was reported by the Agricultural Department as $471,000,000, compared with $468,000,000 in June, and $502,000,000 in July a year ago. The department explained the lower level of farm income last month when compared with the previous July on the ground that July, 1934, was "abnormal," adding that "in that month farm prices advanced sharply in response to the drought situation which prevailed and farmers were still marketing largely from their old crop supplies."

The increase from June to July this year was held to be "just slightly greater than usual and after allowances for differences in the length of the month and for other seasonal factors, income from marketings in July was 60.5 per cent of the 1924-29 monthly average, compared with 60 in June and 73 per cent in July, 1934.

Of the $471,000,000 farm cash income reported for last month, $451,000,000 came from the sale of farm products and $20,000,000 from AAA rental and benefit payments. The latter figures compares with $30,000,000 in June and the same amount in July, 1934.

By the Associated Press.

Uncle Sam is getting deeper and deeper into the real estate business as an owner of residential property, it was revealed yesterday.

Through the Home Owners Loan Corporation the Government, within recent weeks, has acquired 181 homes on which payments had been permitted to lapse by persons who borrowed to save their homes. Pending were 1,167 foreclosure actions with the number increasing weekly.

However, the corporation said that since business began to pick up in some lines, 1,828 loans have been paid in full by borrowers.

Houses bought in at foreclosure sales are being rented as rapidly as they can be put into condition.

ICC Reduces Western Freight Lumber Rate

By the Associated Press.

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday authorized freight reductions amounting to as much as 20 per cent on lumber from the Pacific Coast to the East. The reductions are effective August 24.

The cuts apply from coastal points and inland mills near the coast to destinations east of the Illinois-Indiana State line. Southern and Southwestern lumber mills claimed the new rates would handicap their business in protesting the reductions.

A. & P. Denies Short Weight In Store Sales

Company Enters Not Guilty Plea and Issues Statement.

The Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. yesterday posted $600 collateral for 24 alleged violations of the weights and measures act after Santus W. Zink, general superintendent, entered a plea of not guilty when arraigned before Judge Isaac R. Hitt in Police Court. Trial date was set for September 17.

Charges of giving short weights in 17 stores were preferred by K. V. Harvey, W. C. Diller and C. F. Applegate, weights and measures inspectors. All of the alleged violations were made with the sales of chickens, the information showed.

Names Not Given.

Attorney J. V. Morgan, counsel for the concern, said that the inspectors would not reveal the names of the clerks supposed to have given the short measures. Link later issued the following statement:

"The A. & P. Tea Co. is shocked at the charges made by the Bureau of Weights and Measures of alleged short weights in a few of their stores. The management is glad, however, that this has been called to their attention and realizes that the Bureau of Weights and Measures is acting for the benefit of the public. The management of the A. & P. Co. has called upon the Bureau of Weights and Measures for the names of the clerks suspected of being guilty of the charge. As soon as this information is received by the local management the clerks alleged to have been guilty will be dismissed from the services of the A. & P.

Honest-Weight Policy.

"The charge involves only 17 stores out of approximately 190 operated by the A. & P. in the District of Columbia, and represents the few instances in which inaccuracies were found, out of a large number of purchases made by the Bureau of Weights and Measures in the course of its routine inspection. Regrettable as the incident is, it is hoped the public realizes that the instances of alleged short weight were not only unknown to the officials of the A. & P., but are contrary to the specific policies and to the instructions of this company to its employes from the time of its inception 75 years ago. It is hardly necessary to say that the A. & P. could only have met with its phenomenal success by a consistent policy of honest weights and measures and fair dealing with the purchasing public."

Senate Passes Farm Credits Bill Quickly

Designed to Meet Court's Obligations; Fate in House Uncertain.

By the Associated Press.

Republicans joined Democrats yesterday in the Senate to pass the Frazier-Lemke farm credit bill after a brief debate and without even the formality of a roll cal.

Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, expressed the view that the measure is constitutional. It is designed to replace the 5-year moratorium law held invalid by a unanimous decision of the Supreme Court last spring.

The bill's fate in the House was questionable. Representative Lemke (Republican), North Dakota, said he would press for action before adjournment, and forecast "only a handful" of votes in opposition. But the bill was not on the list of 11 approved at last night's White House conference.

The measure would permit farmers threatened with foreclosure, and unable to obtain relief through conciliation methods, to go into bankruptcy.

Courts then could permit the farmer to retain possession of his property for three years by paying a "reasonable" rental. The rent would defray taxes and insurance, and any surplus would go to the creditors.

At any time up to three years, the farmer could regain his property by the payment of its value as fixed by a court appraiser.

A creditor, dissatisfied with the appraisal could demand an auction sale at which creditors could bid up to the appraisal figure or the mortgage value, whichever was higher.

Senator Bailey (Democrat), North Carolina, declared potential creditors would be slow in making loans because of the fear that neither the appraisal value nor the auction value would be sufficient for a complete return for their extension. The Southerner asserted the measure "tends to seriously destroy the credit of a large portion of the farmers who are not in debt."

Senator Robinson, majority leader, said "it is pathetic to say that after a man spends his best years and strength to acquire a home and is about to lose it because of circumstances he hasn't created, that he must be denied the opportunity to recover himself and work out his debt.

"Retaining to the creditor his lien undiminished as the bill does, it isn't unfair to give the debtor farmer some opportunity to save his home. The creditor has the opportunity to apply for sale at any time during the three years."

Rail Pensions Bill Speeded To President

Measure Goes Through Both Houses in 2 Hours; Placates Court.

By the Associated Press.

A new railroad pension bill was speeded through both houses of Congress yesterday within two hours, and sent to the White House for President Roosevelt's signature.

The measure moved through the Senate so quickly leaders had to hold up the vote until the House bill was messaged over, so it could be passed instead of a similar Senate measure.

On the final vote only three "noes" crept into a chorus of 76 "ayes." They came from Senators Hale (Republican), Maine; Hastings (Republican), Delaware, and Metcalf (Republican), Rhode Island. Not a single objection was voiced in the House.

Introduced by Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, and Representative Crosser (Democrat), Ohio, the bill is designed to replace the law enacted last session and declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court.

Pensions under the new bill would be about the same as in the old, but the Wagner-Crosser measure does not attempt to levy taxes to finance the program.

Taxes would be provided in a separate bill, on which the House Ways and Means Committee is now holding hearings. This companion measure would levy a tax of 4 per cent on pay rolls against the railroads and 2 per cent on salaries of employes.

Chairman O'Connor of the Rules Committee said unless the tax bill were passed, the retirement plan would cost the Government $50,000,000 a year. It does not have to be passed at this session, however, because the pension law does not become effective until next March. A three-man board, appointed by the President, would administer it.

Pensions, based upon service and pay, would go as high as $120 a month, $35 higher than the maximum provided under the social security law. An amendment was added to the bill excluding rail employes from the general old-age pensions.

Employes would be eligible for retirement at 65, or after 30 years of service, though in the latter case, if the worker was not 65, his retirement pay would be reduced one-fifteenth for each year under 65.

Service in excess of 30 years, or pay of more than $300 a month would not be counted in computing annuities. These would be fixed by multiplying the number of years up to 30 by 2 per cent of the first $50 of monthly pay, plus 1½ per cent of the next $100, plus 1 per cent of the next $150.

An employe would not have to retire at 65, but for each year worked after that his retirement pay would be cut one-fifteenth.

Hopson Admits Widow, Orphan Publicity Plan

Witness in Clash With Black, Is Threatened With Contempt.

By the Associated Press.

Howard C. Hopson, multimillionaire power prince, admitted before the Senate Lobby Committee yesterday that he inspired the "widows and orphans" campaign against the Wheeler-Rayburn utilities bill by ordering the Associated Gas & Electric Co. to appeal to emotion rather than reason.

The drive was conceived, Hopson said, as he rested during the wintry months in the warm Florida sunshine. He said he instructed his associates in the A. G. & E. system to change their advertising campaign against the bill to "appeal more to the emotions" and "tell them about the widows and orphans and that their savings would be lost if this measure passes."

Previous testimony showed that Hopson and his private companies doing business with the associated system made profits of $2,800,000 from 1931 to 1935. Dividends on Class A stock of the A. G. & E., held by hundreds of thousands of investors, were discontinued in 1932.

The dapper magnate clashed repeatedly and heatedly with Chairman Hugo Black (Democrat), Alabama, and other members of the committee. At one point he angrily accused the group of "not wanting the truth" and then refused to withdraw the remark from the record even when threatened with a contempt citation.

Trap Causes Quarrel.

This incident occurred when Senator Schwellenbach (Democrat), Washington sought to trap Hopson into admitting that he hid behind the name of the Jones Operating & Financial Co., to keep investors from learning that he was profiting from A. G. & E. contracts with private companies.

Records show that the Jones Co. had total net receipts of $2,725,000,000 from 1921 to 1933. The money was deposited in a New York bank account under the name of Edward J. Cheney, engineering head of the company. Hopson alone had the right to draw checks on it.

He testified that he and Cheney were to share equally in the profits. Hopson received $654,760 in profits from this company over a ten-year period and Cheney got $497,388. Cheney, he said, still is entitled to the difference between the amounts each received.

"Isn't it a fact that your name was not carried on the bank account or in any other records of the Associated Gas & Electric Co., because it would then have been possible for the stockholders to know you were making a profit?" asked Schwellenbach.

"You're trying to make me tell a half-truth and I won't do it," roared Hopson, pounding the table.

Black intervened. His eyes flashing and his face blanched, the little Alabama Democrat ordered Hopson "to quit making speeches and to answer questions."

Hopson Replies Tartly.

"You've only got a half-truth in the record now," Hopson replied tartly. "You don't want the whole truth."

Black leaped to his feet. He pointed a finger at Hopson and shouted: "You'll have to withdraw that right away."

"Well, I won't withdraw it unless I get a chance to tell the whole truth," Hopson snapped. And he didn't.

Previously, Hopson had started into a stinging attack upon the propaganda facilities of the Government and Black had interrupted him to warn that unless he desisted that "I will take it up with the Senate."

"Well," said Hopson quietly, "I want to tell the whole truth and sometimes it is difficult to do before congressional committees."

Hopson was colsely questioned concerning his protests to newspaper publishers and press association officials concerning articles appearing on the Wheeler-Rayburn bill.

Admitting that he and his associates had taken the issue up with several newspapers, Hopson said:

"We hopped everyone when we saw what we thought was an unfair article in the newspapers. There was so much stuff being prepared and sent out by paid propagandists here that we wanted to get the full truth before the investors."

President Approves Loans to Farmers

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt yesterday issued an executive order setting up machinery for Undersecretary Tugwell's Resettlement Administration to make loans to farmers.

Advances would be permitted to finance "the purchase of farm lands and necessary equipment by farmers, farm tenants, croppers or farm laborers" and for any other purposes necessary in the administration of approved projects involving rural rehabilitation and relief in stricken areas.

Early this month, Tugwell issued an order broadening eligibility of farmers to receive loans. Under this ruling farmers who had applied unsuccessfully for loans from the Farm Credit Administration and farmers who had been delinquent in payments to the Federal land banks and were in danger of foreclosure proceedings, were allowed to apply to the Resettlement Administration. Prior to the ruling only farmers on relief were eligible.

Today's order was said to pave the way for loans to larger groups.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 19.—The eighteenth annual Cumberland Fair will open tomorrow with more cash prizes offered than at any previous exhibition, according to Harry A. Manley, president and general manager.

In the livestock division awards will total $128. In the sheep divisino, with entries from Maryland, West Virginia and Pennsylvania, $111 will be paid. Ribbons will also be awarded in the same class on two entries—ewe champion and ram champion.

Ralph F. McHenry is superintendent of the livestock division and Clarence O. Miller, assistant superintendent.

Although ribbons only will be awarded in the Cumberland Corn Congress, which will be judged by nationally-known corn experts, it is assured that the corn exhibit will again be of high standard.

Cash awards will be offered in the agricultural department of which Albert O'Neill and Charles E. Drake are supervisors. Judging will be done on the point system.

In the vegetable department cash awards also will be offered. H. C. Gillum is superintendent with E. T. Korn, assistant.

The premium list on potatoes has been changed somewhat, according to Ira E. McKenzie, superintendent, and prizes will be offered on the basis of group classification rather than variety classification. Ribbons only will be awarded.

A large number of cash awards will be made, while ribbons will be awarded for basket exhibits in the apple section.

Vital Bills Pass As Two Houses Rush to Close

powers and bond-issuing authority, on which an agreement may be reached today or tomorrow.

The gold clause bill, prohibiting dollar-devaluation suits against the Government.

Bills clicked through both houses so rapidly yesterday, that the close co-ordination at one point took on comical aspects.

Minority Leader Charles L. McNary was co-operative to the point of suggesting a Senate vote on the railway pension bill. Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson explained that the House had just passed an identical bill, and "it ought to be here any minute now."

He had hardly finished speaking before a messenger appeared at the Senate door with the measure. A roll call was ordered and the bill passed by a 76-to-3 vote, with only Senators Hastings, Delaware; Hale, Maine, and Metcalf, Rhode Island, Republicans, voting "No."

Banking Report Hustled.

The banking bill report was hustled through the House with only minor discussion. When it reached the Senate, Senator Glass arose to explain it. Before he could open his mouth, Vice President Garner hammered the measure to passage, and Glass sat down, smiling.

The banking bill report (details of which were published in Saturday morning's Post), measurably increases Federal Reserve control of credit and banking, and reconstitutes the board as of February 1, 1936, with seven instead of six members, as the "Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System."

Both the Secretary of the Treasury and the Comptroller of the Currency would be removed from ex-officio membership. The chief credit control instrument would be a reorganized open market committee, comprising board members and five Reserve Bank representatives. The committee's bond purchase policies would be mandatory on the banks.

Constitutional loopholes in the Frazier-Lemke farm moratorium bill and the railway pension bill, both passed last session, but invalidated by the Supreme Court, were patched up presumably by the two measures which passed yesterday.

Where the original Frazier-Lemke act provided for a five-year farm debt moratorium, authorizing the courts to scale down both principal and interest, the new measure would permit a three-year moratorium. Failing to reach a settlement with his creditors, a farmer may ask the court to adjudge him bankrupt. An appraisal of the "fair and reasonable market value" of the property is permitted, with the farmer retaining the property for the full three years on payment of a "reasonable" rental fixed by the court.

This rental would be applied to taxes, interest and upkeep charges, and anything left would be applied against the former's indebtedness. Upon petition of the creditors, the court at any time might order a sale at public auction at the end of three years if the farmer had not satisfied his creditors.

Opposition to the Frazier-Lemke bill and the railway pension bill alike was perfunctory, although Senator Hastings declared the rail measure was an attempt to circumvent the Constitution. To avoid duplication of benefits under the pension measure, both houses adopted an amendment exempting railroads from the old-age annuity provisions of the social security act.

Affecting about 1,125,000 employes of the Class I railroads of the country, now working or on furloughs, the proposed railroad retirement act authorizes appropriations out of the Treasury to pay pensions reaching a maximum of $120 a month, to veteran employes after 30 years of service, or on reaching 65.

While the original bill, ruled out by the Supreme Court, levied payroll taxes of 4 per cent for the carriers and 2 per cent for the employes, the bill passed yesterday by House and Senate carried no tax features.

Tax Otherwise Provided.

Sponsors of the bill seek to avoid court invalidation by providing for taxes in another measure, now before the Ways and Means Committee, and on which action is sought at this session. As the new pension measure does not become operative until March 1, 1936, some leaders argued that action on the tax measure could well go over until next session.

In line with recommendations of the President, the measure passed yesterday provides for a special commission of nine members to study the whole question of retirement of rail workers, and to report to Congress by next January 1.

To constitutional doubts aired by Hastings, Robinson replied that "there is nothing wrong, immoral or treacherous about this procedure."

"This procedure," retorted Hastings, "makes very much more certain the constitutionality of the two bills, but in my opinion you are violating the spirit of the Constitution."

Provisions for Rivers.

The report on the omnibus rivers and harbors report, partially approved yesterday by the House, authorizes $528,168,573 for rivers and harbors projects. Additional Colorado River and Columbia River dam projects provided in the Senate bill, on which the House has yet to vote, would bring the aggregate up to $614,168,573.

As tax bill conferees wrestled with the differences in the two revenue measures now before them, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau yesterday voiced opposition to the Borah amendment attached in the Senate, removing tax-exemption from future issues of Federal securities.

"As long as States and municipalities have the privilege of issuing tax-exempts, I shall insist on the Government having the same right," Morgenthau said.

L. H. Vandoren, Boxing Official, Dies Here at 40

Prominent D. C. Attorney, War Hero, Had Been Ill of the Heat.

Lucian H. Vandoren, prominent Washington lawyer, chairman of the District Boxing Commission, and World War hero, died suddenly of a heart attack yesterday afternoon at the home of his mother, Mrs. Alice Vandoren, 2726 Connecticut avenue. He was 40 years old.

Apparently suffering from the excessive heat, Mr. Vandoren went to his mother's residence several days ago. His wife and three children were vacationing in Atlantic City. Physicians did not regard his illness as serious.

Death came to Mr. Vandoren shortly after noon. He was eating his luncheon, which had been brought to him on a tray. Suddenly he collapsed and was dead when doctors arrived at his bedside.

Mr. Vandoren was born in Hyattsville, Md., in 1895, and graduated from Georgetown University Law School in 1917, after making a record for distinguished scholarship and starring in athletics.

He enlisted in the Second Division of the Marine Corps immediately after graduation in June, 1917, after first passing the bar examination.

Serving as a lieutenant and captain throughout the war, Mr. Vandoren fought in most of the major battles with the Marines. He was present at Belleau Wood, Soissons, and St. Mihiel.

Decorated for Bravery.

For his bravery in action he was decorated with the Medaille Militaire, the Croix de Guerre, with two palms, the Silver Star, the D. S. C. and the Victory Medal. Twice he was gassed, and his wounds are believed to have brought about the cardiac condition that caused his death.

Returning to Washington after the Armistice, Mr. Vandoren served as assistant District attorney under John Laskey and Peyton Gordon, in the early 1920's, then retired to private practice with the firm to which he belonged at the time of his death—Vandoren, Rafferty & Horning.

His ability won him quick recognition at the Bar. For the most part his practice was in civil cases. He was a member, in addition to the District bar, of the bar of the United States Supreme Court, the District Court of Appeals and the State of Maryland.

Candidate for Office.

In the early autumn of 1933 when a successor was being sought for United States Attorney Leo A. Rover, Mr. Vandoren was among the leading candidates recommended for the job, which later was given the present United States attorney, Leslie C. Garrett.

For the past 14 years Mr. Vandoren served on the faculty of the Washington College of Law. He was active in the District Bar Association, of which he was a past vice president and director.

When the District Boxing Commission was formed in April, 1934, Mr. Vandoren was elected chairman, a post he held at the time of his death. He was known for the reforms he instituted in boxing rules here.

Saddened by news of Mr. Vandoren's death, the commission late yesterday considered calling off the boxing matches at Griffith Stadium last night. Then, in deference to what they believed would be their dead chairman's wishes, the commissioners decided to hold the bouts.

Before the boxing began, however, a bugler shrilled taps in honor of the deceased official.

Mr. Vandoren is survived by his widow, Mrs. Katharine Vandoren, and three children, Lucian, jr., Mary Katharine and Patricia Ann Vandoren, all of whom were in Atlantic City at the time of his death.

He also leaves his mother, Mrs. Alice Vandoren, three brothers, Bernard, Theodore and William T. Vandoren, and two sisters, Miss Eleanore Vandoren and Mrs. Ivor Watts.

Funeral arrangements for Mr. Vandoren, a communicant of St. Thomas Catholic Church, had not been completed last night.

House Swears In New Congressman

Rep. Risk, of Rhode Island, Beats Adjournment.

By the Associated Press.

Charles S. Risk, Rhode Island Republican, celebrated his thirty-eighth birthday yesterday by entering a Congress which is sprinting down the last stretch toward adjournment.

Risk, who received Nationwide notice when he defeated a New Deal candidate for the House of Representatives, arrived Sunday to be sworn in yesterday.

A ceremony was arranged for the oath-taking, with Representative Snell, of New York, Republican leader, escorting Risk before the rostrum.

Representative Risk had just been sworn into office when he took the first opportunity to make good on his campaign pledge to oppose the Roosevelt program "lock, stock and barrel." His first ballot was cast against the Guffey coal bill.

Garner to Visit Japan en Route To Philippines

improving relations between this country and Japan, chilled last winter when the Nipponese abrogated the Washington arms treaty and further chilled in recent weeks because of an American magazine caricature of the Japanese Emperor.

Taft Visit Recalled.

The contemplated visit of Garner to Japan recalls the visit under similar circumstances made there in 1907 by William Howard Taft, then Secretary of War, which became internationally significant. Taft, a former governor general of the Philippines, was deeply interested in the welfare of the insular people.

Taft went to the Philippines to open the first insular legislative assembly on October 16, 1907. En route he stopped in Japan and on October 2, 1907, at Tokyo, made a speech which was regarded as having an important effect in quieting Japanese apprehensions over the treatment of their people on the Pacific Coast of this country.

A congressional delegation accompanied Taft to attend that momentous event in Filipino history and it was on that trip that a youthful Congressman from Ohio, Nicholas Longworth, later Speaker of the House, wooed and became engaged to Alice Roosevelt, daughter of the then President of the United States.

48 to Be in Party.

The parallel between the Taft trip to the Philippines 28 years ago and the one which the Vice President will make this fall was so startling that it immediately came to mind when it was learned Garner would stop in Japan.

Garner will head a party of 48 members of Congress, including Speaker Joseph W. Byrns, Senate Leader Joseph T. Robinson and members of the Insular Affairs Committee. In addition, a number of other prominent Americans have been invited to be present for the inauguration of the Philippine commonwealth government on November 15. All have been invited as guests of the new Filipino government, which is paying all expenses.

The party will sail from Seattle aboard the S. S. President Grant on October 16, arriving in Yokohama on the morning of October 29. The President Grant will remain that day at Yokohama, going to Kobe the next day. Subsequently stops will be made at Chinese ports, the party arriving at Manila on November 8. Vice President Garner will arrive back in Seattle on December 10.

Precedent Is Set.

It is believed that Garner will be the first Vice President to leave this country while holding that office. He is making the trip at the expressed wish of President Roosevelt.

Except for an election of officers to be held on September 17, the Filipinos are now ready to set up their new commonwealth government under the provisions of the Hawes-Cutting-Tydings act. The United States will exercise a protectorate over the islands for the next ten years and on the expiration of that period, if the Filipinos are satisfied, they will be given full independence and, except possibly for a naval base, this country will withdraw.

Roosevelt Talk Likely to Open 1936 Campaign

President May Reveal Future Plans for New Deal in Speech Saturday.

though adjournment comes earlier in the week, as some other leaders predict, the occasion furnishes the President a theme for his talk.

This address also will be carefully examined by political leaders in both parties to see whether it gives an indication of the Democratic strategy in the forthcoming campaign. Congressional Democrats are ready to take their cue from the President and defend their actions to the home folks in the same terms used by Mr. Roosevelt.

Although it is unlikely that the President will take direct cognizance of the increasing Republican attacks on the New Deal, it is expected he will reply to these criticisms in his exposition of what his Administration has done and what it proposes to do. Undoubtedly, also, the President will strike a note of enthusiasm and optimism in his talk to the Young Democrats, who are becoming integral parts of the party machine in many States.

Woodward on leaving the White House contended the President would have no more trouble carrying Iowa (Woodward's home State) next year than he had in 1932. He likewise predicted a sweeping victory for Mr. Roosevelt next year. The Administration, however, knows that it has lost ground—in serious proportions in some parts of the country—and that the country must not be permitted to lose sight of New Deal objectives.

Incidentally, as soon as Congress adjourns many New Deal figures will be found on the hustings preparing the way for next year's election. Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, for instance, plans a vacation visit to his home State—Iowa—and several speeches setting forth what the New Deal has done and will do for the farmer.

Despite Woodward's optimism about Roosevelt popularity in Iowa and other Middle Western States, the Republicans do not concede that territory. In fact, they plan to concentrate some of their heaviest campaigning in the Middle Western States on the theory that they can carry the East, but must have the former section to win.

Henry P. Fletcher, chairman of the Republican National Committee, already has decided to open the committee's headquarters in Chicago shortly, while the Young Republican National Committee already has opened headquarters at Des Moines, Iowa.

Young Republicans from 10 Western States will hold a conference in Yellowstone Park, Wyo., Friday and Saturday, the same time the Young Democrats are in session at Milwaukee. Representative Hamilton Fish will address the Republican gathering.

The President is expected to carry his fight directly into the West and Middle West when he makes a transcontinental trip to the San Diega (Calif.) Exposition, making several speeches at strategic points along the way. Plans for this trip have not yet been formulated, but it is unlikely the President will leave before the second week in September; as he wants to spend a few days at Hyde Park after the congressional session ends.

Honolulu, Aug. 19.—A threat that Hawaii's delegates would bolt from President Roosevelt in the Democratic national convention in 1936 was made to James A. Farley, Democratic national committee chairman, Saturday by Fred L. Siegling, the latter said today.

Siegling, chairman of the territorial Democratic committee, threatened that Hawaii's six votes in the national convention would be thrown on the auction block for the highest bidder in terms of patronage.

Siegling said the threat, made just before Farley departed for Los Angeles, was the result of long smouldering resentment of the official party organization against the manner in which patronage was administered here. The great majority of the territorial committee's indorsements, Siegling said, had been turned down in Washington and Republicans appointed instead.

Gas Valuation Case Lawyers to Confer

The groundwork for the proposed adjustment of the gas valuation case will be laid at a conference Monday between attorneys for the Washington and Georgetown Light Companies and the District government.

The conference is the outgrowth of the suggestion of People's Counsel William A. Roberts, that the valuation case, which is estimated to have cost the companies approximately $600,000, be settled.

Roberts proposed an annual reduction of $800,000 in gas rates to Washington consumers; and suggested the adoption of a sliding scale rate to take care of future adjustments.

Attending the conference will be Roberts; Corporation Counsel E. Barrett Prettyman, his assistant, H. D. Folsom; and the company attorneys, Harold Stevens and John Bruton.

Tax Valuations Increased in Fairfax County

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 246, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-M.

The assessed valuation of intangible property has increased approximately a half million dollars and the tangible personal property has increased about a quarter million dollars in Fairfax County, Va., for the current tax year, according to the report of James U. Kincheloe, county commissioner of revenue.

During the past year the tangible personal property, including machinery and tools and merchants' capital, has increased from $1,942,554 to $2,188,606 for the current year, an actual increase of $246,052. The assessed value of intangible property, exclusive of income, has increased from $4,089,946 for last year to $4,550,141 for 1935, an increase of $460,192.

On the basis of the new assessments, the county will receive from taxes for the present year $40,784.27, against $34,199.68 levied on last year's total. The State treasury is scheduled to receive $38,338.26 this year as its tax on intangibles. The figure for 1934 was $36,360.74.

According to the commissioner of the revenue, this year's jump in tangible values is due largely to an increase in the number of new automobiles in the county and an increase in the number of new residents. Seventeen additional pages were required for the personal property book this year, Kincheloe stated.

Capitation assessments accounted for $19,162.50 of the total amount scheduled to be paid into the State Treasury, an increase of $589.50 over the $18,573 that was levied in 1934.

Providence magisterial district again led the county in its total tangible assessments and taxes levied. Its aggregate valuation is $568,200, with total levies of $9,665.09. Mount Vernon magisterial district was second with tangible values of $353,195 and tax levy of $6,751.24.

Valuations for the other magisterial districts and levies are as follows:

Centerville district, valuation, $172,102, levy $2,572.47; Dranesville district, valuation $224,530, levy $6,382.80; Falls Church district, valuation $248,830, levy $5,388.72, and Lee district, valuation $130,920, levy $2,038.03.

Figures for the incorporated towns of the county were:

Town of Clifton, valuation, $17,880, levy $215.30; town of Fairfax, valuation $118,832, levy $1,813.20; town of Falls Church, valuation $150,164, levy $2,939.04; town of Vienna, valuation $80,174, levy $1,130.61; town of Herndon, valuation $118,399, levy $2,295.73, and town of West Falls Church, valuation $5,880, levy $91.14.

Rates of taxation that will be in effect for tangible assessments, including districts and towns, will be as follows:

Centerville, $1.59; Dranesville, $2.94; Falls Church, $2.29; Lee, $1.59; Mount Vernon, $1.79; Providence, $1.74; Town of Clifton, $1.59; Town of Fairfax, $1.74; Town of Falls Church, $2.10; Town of Herndon, $2.94; Town of Vienna, $1.74, and Town of West Falls Church, $1.55. Rates for the towns do not include corporation rates.

A straight country-wide levy of 80 cents on the $100 of assessed valuation of merchants' capital is laid.

The State of Virginia will collect a total of $11,154.19 in income taxes from residents of Fairfax County for the current tax year. This is based on returns covering income earned in 1934 and filed with the commissioner of revenue.

Of those whose taxable incomes are $3,000 or less, 250 persons filed returns this year, as compared to 239 last year. Seventeen persons reported taxable incomes from $3,000 to $5,000 and 21 persons had taxable incomes over $5,000.

The income report is $1,040.97 larger this year than last, when the amount collected was $10,113.22.

A net taxable income of $547,734.09 was reported for the current year, compared with $491,102.42 for last year, an increase of $56,631.67.

Mother, Daughter On Trial for Life

By the Associated Press.

Wise, Va., Aug. 19.—Miss Edith Maxwell, 21-year-old school teacher, and her mother, Mrs. Anne Maxwell, are scheduled to go on trial in Wise County Circuit Court here tomorrow under a joint indictment charging them with the alleged murder of their father and husband, Trigg Maxwell.

Maxwell, the State will attempt to prove, was beaten to death July 21, at his home in Pound.

A few days after his death, Commonwealth's Attorney Fred B. Greear announced the young teacher had confessed beating her father to death with a heavy shoe because he scolded her for "being out late" and threatened to whip her.

When funeral plans were completed, Sheriff J. Preston Adams escorted the young woman from the county jail to Pound to attend the services, but evidences of strong resentment against her on the part of her father's kinsmen caused the officer to return the prisoner hurriedly to the jail. Mrs. Maxwell has been out under bond.

Things as They Are

By Samuel Crowther.

HAS anyone in authority considered either the consumer or the worker in the present Administration campaign against bigness in business? One of our national characteristics has been to point with pride to bigness as such. We are apt to accept the biggest as the best. That has led us into trouble. But it is not more sensible simply to reverse the process and take the biggest as the worst.

Attacks on business bigness are not solely a Washington perequisite. Many of the States, taking the cue, have tried bigness taxes. Has anyone thought through to where this movement will lead if it be successful? Will small business benefit by drastic operations on big business? A large concern can get along on a margin of profit per unit at which the small proprietor can not earn a living. Is that against the public interest? And if larger profits be had through splitting up the larger units, will those profits go to the small concerns? Or will the volume of consumption drop and with it the volume of well-paid employment?

These are questions which certainly the President has not publicly considered and which Congress and the State Legislatures refuse to consider. No one apparently has thought any of the proposed tax and other legislation through to the end. The consumers are not organized and in the nature of things can not be—for we are all consumers. Most of the bodies which affect to represent consumers are not greatly concerned with consumers, but are engaged in advancing some brand of socialism or some special interest.

What is bigness? A very small steel company is bigger than a very large drug company. Unless an automobile company is of a certain size, it can not turn out an inexpensive car, for many of the economies in car production depend on heavy capital investments. On the other hand, a big fertilizer company is often at a disadvantage with a small, local company in the latter's territory.

The story runs that bigness connotes monopoly, high prices and economic power which is or may be used against the public welfare. Many business men are still crude enough to believe that high prices and monopoly hold advantages. Not otherwise should we have seen the wild rush to accept anything under the NRA, provided permission could be had to fix prices. These men will tell you with complete sincerity that fixed prices do not mean high prices, but merely fair prices. The definition of a fair price depends on where one sits. It may be that at some time or place a low price was agreed to as a fair price, but I never heard of the incidence.

Groups of corporations are quite often brought together into one big whole to dominate the market and in fact to do everything evil that corporations, by the time-honored formula, are supposed to do. But such combinations either fail outright, after wasting their resources in trying to keep prices up and competition down, or they change their policies. Even a monopoly granted by a patent is not very profitable until prices are brought within the larger buying ranges. For instance, aluminum. Really, it is not fair to prosecute monopolies. They should be confined in lunatic asylums by their stockholders.

Corporations organized in order to write up values and sell stock are not being put out these days, but they will emerge in the future, laws or no laws, if the pickings are good. These, as a rule, wipe themselves out more publicity than could any tax law. If any corporation formed either to gain a monopoly or merely to sell stock does survive, it is only because some public-serving feature develops which overcomes the retarding features. The plain fact is that bigness in business, whether in manufacturing or in distribution, endures only through giving the consumer the most for his dollar. That is trite—but everlastingly true. High finance, which is often confused with business, has nothing at all to do with business but is a section of criminology.

If large business be taxed beyond a point, it will be destroyed. Will its volume then be distributed among the small concerns? Not at all. There is no fixed volume of business which persists in spite of price. The NRA demonstrated that. It also demonstrated that, although a small volume of business may be had at high prices, a large volume can be had only at low prices. That really did not need to be demonstrated. It is another truism.

A row may be stirred up between big business and little business, just as a row may be stirred up between the rich and the poor. Many agitators are doing both. But to what end? Can anyone gain? Must not the consumer always pay the freight?

Soaking the consumer may have behind it some high social purpose. But it will be hard to convince him of that.

Burdetts W. Graves, 35, of Franconia road, Fairfax County, formerly employed at the Fruit Growers Express in Alexandria, who has been missing from his home since June 10, has been located in New Orleans, La., it was announced yesterday by the police.

Graves left his work on the morning of June 10, to go to a local bank and cash a number of pay checks of his fellow employes, said to amount to approximately $560. He had been employed at the plant for a number of years, and had long been accustomed to cashing these pay checks. When he failed to return with the money a search was instituted, without success, although he was reported to have been seen at several places. Several weeks later his automobile was found abandoned at the Washington Airport, and officials there stated a man answering his description had purchased a ticket for Newark, N. J.

Graves was located on information furnished Detective Sergt. Edgar Sims, who wired the New Orleans authorities to arrest Graves. It is understood he will waive extradition. He is a World War veteran, is married and the father of several children. He is said to have been in ill health prior to his disappearance.

The proceeds of the "donkey" baseball games to be played at Baggett's Stadium Thursday and Friday nights, the first night between the Alexandria and Washington Lions clubs, and the second between the Alexandria Lions and Judge Harry Kennedy's "All-Stars," will go to the fund of the local club to carry on its program of aiding the needy children of the city who have faulty eyesight, according to Chairman Isadore Bregman.

In the first contest Representative Hamilton Fish, of New York, former Rutgers football star, will Captain the Washington Lions. Jack Doniphan is captain of the Alexandrians. Anticipating injuries from being thrown by the donkeys, the Washingtonians have appointed Chester Adams as ambulance driver.

The Wednesday night game will be preceded by a street parade, and both games will be broadcast.

The fourth quarterly conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South will be held in the Washington Street Church tomorrow evening after the prayer services and will be conducted by the Rev. J. Howard Wells, presiding elder of the Washington district. This conference will mark the last appearance of Dr. Wells as presiding elder.

Nazi Police Aid Asks 'Severity' For Prisoners

Justice Minister Assails Traditional Concept of Human Rights.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, Aug. 19.—"Severity" for prisoners as a Nazi tenet was demanded by Franz Guertner, minister of justice, today at the opening of the penal penitentiary congress.

"If criminal law is to represent atonement for wrong done the community," he told the 400 delegates from 50 nations, "and hence defend and protect the national community from evildoers, the logical result is severity in the treatment of prisoners so the punishment may be appreciable to the evil."

It should "produce checks in the prisoner which will prevent him from again incurring punishment," he added.

Guertner also announced that the Nazi Reich has definitely rejected the ancient legal principle: "Nulla poena sine lege" (no punishment unless a law is infringed).

New Maxim Used.

Instead, he said, it has substituted the maxim "nulla crimen sine poena," under which punishment is meted out regardless of the incompletion of a law.

Explaining what he meant by "severity," the Nazi minister said it "has to do with order, subordination and obedience, but it should be accompanied throughout by humanity, which grants the prisoners all their vital needs insofar as this is compatible with the imprisonment."

The Nazi theory, he went on, contemplates helping the prisoners "find their way back into the national community" and giving them "the right attitude toward it."

Schacht Speech Surprises.

Interested circles in the Reich seemed somewhat flabbergasted by the frank speech at Koenigsberg yesterday of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, who asserted "unregulated individual acts" against Jews and other State enemies are hurting business.

The bourse was weak and cautious and since only a few morning papers appear in Germany on Monday, the address got its chief play in the afternoon press, most of which refrained from editorial comment.

The propaganda ministry ordered the expulsion from Germany of Mario da Silva, correspondent of the Italian newspaper Lavoro Fascista, on the grounds his reports were displeasing to the German regime.

Da Silva already had left Berlin.

Legion Blames Laws For Spread of Crime

Indianapolis, Aug. 19 (AP).—Too much publicity in crime and too many sumptuary laws are blamed for the Nation's "crime wave" by the national law and order committee of the American Legion.

In an advanced synopsis of its report to the national convention of the legion in St. Louis September 23-26, the report suggests that the cure for the seeming increase in crime is to be found in fewer laws, better law enforcement, close co-operation between Federal and State authorities, and youth-training activities.

Smith had been on a West Coast tour in a ship owned by the transit firm. He was en route back to his home in Indianapolis when he reached Helena Wednesday. The party went to Helena so Arnett could introduce his bride, who made the West Coast flight with him, to his aunt, who lives in Helena.

At the Montana city Smith decided to fly to Boulder, Colo., to join an old friend, E. R. Tibbetts, of San Antonio, Tex., on a fishing trip.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 19 (AP).—Officials of the Indiana Insurance Co. said this afternoon E. R. Tibbetts in a telephone conversation from Denver expressed fear that the airplane of Burnside Smith, Indianapolis business executive, had fallen and burned near Glencoe, Wyo.

By the Associated Press.

Indianapolis, Aug. 19.—It was a business-honeymoon trip that took three Indianapolis persons West in a private airplane which was reported missing today between Helena, Mont., and Denver.

When Burnside Smith, president of the Aero Mayflower Transit Co., owner of the plane, left here three weeks ago on a business trip to Los Angeles, he took along as pilot Richard Arnett and Arnett's bride of a few weeks, the former Eleanor Clark.

Arnett was married to Miss Clark, daughter of Mrs. Ada Clark, an Indianapolis school teacher, on July 15. Smith suggested the tour as a honeymoon trip for the bride.

Smith, an aviation enthusiast, used his airplane frequently in conducting the affairs of the transit company, which does an overland hauling business. Smith and his pilot were close personal friends.

In addition to heading the transit company, Smith, 47 years old, was also vice president of the Indiana Insurance Co.

Arnett is president of the Central Aeronautical Corporation, with offices at the Indiana Municipal Airport.

Arnett was a close acquaintance of Wiley Post and visited with him whenever he was in this city.

Rogers Smile Preserved by Sculptor

Capital Artist Has Last Bust Of Will Rogers

Sculpture Made When Late Humorist Was Here 18 Months Ago.

The only sculptured bust of Will Rogers made in the last 15 years, according to the artist, reposes today in the home of Ernest Durig, 1503 Hamilton street northwest.

Durig has done many famous heads—Pope Pius XI, Mussolini, Hindenburg, Tagore, King Victor Emanuel and Herbert Hoover, to mention a few. About 18 months ago, while Mrs. John N. Garner was sitting for him, he met the cowboy-humorist, bosom friend of the Vice President and his wife.

"Will you come to my studio and pose for me?" Durig asked Rogers.

"Sure," came the reply.

So there was a three-hour sitting.

"He sat three hours but I doubt if I worked more than one," the sculptor said yesterday. "He would joke so much. But he was a fine subject."

Neighborhood folks and even the iceman and grocer's boy streamed through the Durig house yesterday as word got around that here was a unique likeness of the beloved philosopher in a characteristic mood—grinning, his forelocks over the wrinkled brow, a sly twinkle in the eye.

PostandRogers Bodies Arrive At Los Angeles

Oklahoma, will arrive Wednesday at 3 p. m.

In addition to private services at Forest Lawn Thursday, there will be public rites at Hollywood Bowl at the same time. Fox Studios, where Rogers worked, will close at 1 p. m.

City flags will be at half-mast. The Hollywood film colony planned the greatest funeral demonstration ever given one of its number—exceeding that of Rudolph Valentino in New York City a decade ago.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—Dual funeral services for Will Rogers will be conducted in Los Angeles Thursday, Will Rogers, jr., son of the famed humorist, announced today as the grief-stricken family paused here between trains for the West Coast.

Speeding from New York to Los Angeles to claim the body of their husband and father, Mrs. Rogers and her three children, Will, jr., James and Mary, arrived here at 7:35 a. m., Central standard time, and departed on the Santa Fe Chief at 11:15 p. m. Their train is due to reach Los Angeles Wednesday afternoon.

Young Will, who bears a striking resemblance to his father, said his mother had approved by telephone to friends in Los Angeles the plans for the two services.

The rites will be in the Hollywood Bowl, young Rogers said. There the thousands of friends and admirers of the beloved stage and screen comedian may pay their last respects. Simultaneously, members of the family will gather for private services at the Wee Kirk o' the Heather at Forest Lawn Memorial Park Cemetery.

Prior to the services the body is to lie in state at the Wee Kirk o' the Heather, so that all who wish may pass beside the sealed casket.

After the rites, Rogers' body will be placed in a crypt at the Forest Lawn Memorial Park Cemetery. Later, young Will said, his mother plans to move the body to its final resting place in the family burial plot at Chelsea, Okla.

By the Associated Press.

Oklahoma City, Aug. 19.—Wiley Post will lie in state in the rotunda of the Oklahoma capitol—an honor reserved for the State's great.

At the farm home of the flier's parents, near Maysville, the widow expressed appreciation today of Gov. Marland's request that the body be brought to the capitol, and said the family would consent.

D. C. Security Bill Is Delayed In Conference

Early Adjournment May Force Acceptance of Senate Changes.

Enactment of a rounded social security program for Washington was delayed yesterday when the House sent to conference the Ellenbogen unemployment insurance bill.

Senate amendments to the old-age and blind pension measures probably will be accepted shortly by the House to avoid possible loss of the proposals in conference, due to the possibility of early adjournment.

Representative Ellenbogen (Democrat), Pennsylvania, insisted on the unemployment bill conference because he disliked Senate amendments, particularly those placing administration of the plan under a local instead of a national board and excusing the District government from paying some $1,250,000 a year in taxes to support the program.

Pay Rolls Effected.

As revised by the Senate, all of the cost would be borne through pay roll taxes on employers of one or more persons, beginning at 1 per cent and gradually increasing to 3 per cent.

House conferees will include Ellenbogen, Representative Palmisano (Democrat), Maryland, and Representative Dirksen (Republican), Illinois.

Chairman King, of the Senate District Committee, expected to head the Senate conferees, said he favored all of the amendments, including those assailed by Ellenbogen.

Waterways Bill Passes.

Meanwhile, the House approved a waterways bill conference report which authorized improvements of Washington Channel along Water street southwest to cost $1,650,000.

Originally, the House voted that the expense should be borne equally by the District and Federal governments. The Senate proposed that the District should not be required to contribute. A compromise agreed on would necessitate a contribution of $389,000 by the local government, the remainder to be paid out of the Federal Treasury.

Buildings to Be Razed.

The program calls for removal of old buildings along the north side of the channel and construction of a yacht harbor in four sections on the upstream half of the frontage above the War College, with berths for 286 vessels; a wharf for the joint use of the harbor police and fire departments; a new workhouse pier on the downstream half, and three new piers for commercial use.

In addition, space would be provided for eventual widening of Water street to 160 feet, for a future park bridge at the head of the channel and for later architectural improvement of the new structures.

Another local item in the waterways measure was $325,000 for dredging of the Potomac.

Population Drops 17,767 in S. Dakota

Pierre, S. Dak., Aug. 19 (AP).—A 17,767 population loss since 1930 was disclosed today as one result of South Dakota's five-year fight with successive drought and grasshopper plagues.

The 1935 State census, first official report of population in the Northwest since the drought started, showed 675,082 residents, compared with 692,849 recorded in the 1930 Federal enumeration.

It dropped South Dakota from thirty-sixth to thirty-eighth in population rank among the States, based upon 1930 figures. Rhode Island was thirty-seventh then with 687,497 and North Dakota thirty-eighth with 680,843.

Pennsylvanian Proves Accurate in Forecast

By the Associated Press.

House members were talking last night about getting the Treasury to strike off a medal for Representative Boland, of Pennsylvania, the Democratic whip.

Before the Guffey coal bill vote he said the measure would pass by 20 to 30 votes and that 175 Democrats would support it. The roll call ended 194 to 168 and 172 Democrats backed the bill.

Boland has made similar, and almost equally close, forecasts on half a dozen big bills this session.

Airport Board Believed in Sight

Tydings Bill Will Probably Pass House.

An airport commission of the character desired by the Senate probably will be accepted by the House, it was indicated yesterday.

Soon after the Senate passed the Tydings bill for appointment of a commission with limited authority to choose a site for a municipal landing field here, leaders said they would not oppose House concurrence in the Senate action.

The Tydings bill differs from a measure approved earlier by the House chiefly in that it would not authorize the proposed commission to actually buy the land.

With adjournment of Congress possible late this week a conference between the two houses might prevent any legislation toward clearing up the long aviation muddle.

Chairman Randolph of the House District Airport sub-committee, said he would call a meeting of his associates today to decide whether a conference should be sought.

Trip for Legion Sons.

Members of Sons of the American Legion holding 1935 membership cards will be guests of Samuel Davids, of Sergt. Jasper Squadron, No. 13, on a river outing to Chapel Point, September 4. One or both parents must accompany each boy. The boat will leave the Sixth street wharves at 9 a. m.

Woman Loses Fight In Church Siege

Officers Armed With Warrant Evict Pastor.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 19.—Constables pushed into Sunnydale Reformed Church here tonight and arrested the Rev. Emma Hussung, who had seized the building Friday, locked herself in with three men for a garrison and held it since against the congregation and executive committee.

Committeeman Walter Kallbreier swore to the warrant in magistrate's court, charging trespassing on church property and breach of the peace. The three guards were also accused in John Doe warrants sworn by Kallbreier.

When she understood that the officers had warrants Mrs. Hussung reluctantly let them in and walked out of the church. Previously she had declared "she would let no man stand in the way" of her keeping the church.

George Wilson Suicide; Declined Nomination

Vineland, N. J., Aug. 19 (AP).—George I. Wilson, 80, who refused a presidential nomination, died in a hospital today of a bullet wound. Police Chief J. Hamilton Gebhart said the aged man admitted shooting himself Friday, but gave no reason.

Wilson rejected the National Party's nomination as its standard bearer in 1932.

Strong Warning.

In an address at the opening of the East Prussian fair, Dr. Schacht, minister of economics and president of the Reichsbank, strongly denounced the gang terrorism directed against Jews and other minority groups. His words are not those of a liberal, aroused by acts of brutal and cowardly oppression, but the well-weighed and cautiously phrased warnings of a seasoned financier who foresees economic disaster closing in on Germany.

Dr. Schacht, who has often been charged with playing a Machiavellian role in negotiations with Germany's foreign creditors, also admonished his fellow citizens not to forget these creditors, whether governments or the thousands of individuals "who have loaned us their savings." His further plea for a peaceful, economic and cultural exchange with the outside world is a far cry from the days when ultra-nationalists maintained that Germany could emancipate herself from dependence upon other countries. It is now abundantly clear that the effort at emancipation is blocked by the necessity of importing certain raw materials, the purchase of which has to be financed either by exports or through loans. Hence there are excellent material reasons for cultivating friendly international relations.

Dr. Schacht has to deal with domestic problems even more serious than the external ones, since stringent state supervision of foreign trade makes it possible to satisfy the most pressing import requirements of the country. The public works and re-armament policies to which the Nazi government is pledged are, in his words, "causing headaches."

Outlays for such purposes are being currently met by creation of bills and issuance of treasury certificates, which the government is pledged to redeem within the next five years. It is estimated that the floating debt resulting from these extraordinary expenditures has risen to between 14,000,000,000 and 17,000,000,000 marks, contrasted with about 3,500,000,000 marks when Hitler came into power. These short-term obligations now constitute the chief cover for Reichsbank note issues, while large amounts of them are held by various government financing agencies.

Meantime prices and living costs within Germany have risen. The government's agricultural policy and exchange difficulties are the major causes of the advance, but the inflationary menace of the rapidly expanding floating debt is contributory. Dr. Schacht points out that the uncovered budgetary outlays represented by this short-term debt must be funded sometime "out of the labor and savings of the people." Conscious of the difficulty of the undertaking, he goes so far as to say that he would hold undisciplined disturbers of the peace responsible if the financial and economic tasks outlined by "Der Fuehrer" should be made impossible.

When this trusted adviser of the absolute ruler of Germany hints that the latter's most cherished plans are failing, the rest of the world will certainly take notice, even if the German people are too regimented to do so.

Keep Up The Campaign.

Tragic as the two most recent auto fatalities may be, there is much solace in the thought that there have been only these two highway deaths in the past four weeks of the Police Department's traffic campaign. To date, 68 persons have died in District automobile accidents this year. Up until the middle of July, this represented a rate of approximately 2.3 deaths per week. Since the beginning of the safety campaign, even though the volume of traffic reaches its peak during summer months, the rate has dropped to .5 death per week, with not a single highway fatality reported over the past week-end.

Comparisons of this sort may not accurately measure the results of the campaign, but at least some part of the credit for this obvious improvement must go to the stricter enforcement of traffic regulations. The police, the courts and the community as a whole may take heart at these results. Certainly this partial success ought to be an incentive to more vigorous activity.

The police must continue to be alert. The courts must still be deaf to excuses. And the Board of Revocation might well extend its policy of recalling driving permits from those unable or unwilling to obey the elementary rules of safety. Only by so doing can Washington hope to improve its ghastly accident record. Only by so doing can the fear of the law be instilled into the minds of local drivers. The laws being for the most part adequate, once this fear is universally admitted, Death must retreat in some degree from its present haunts directly over local highways.

A Threat To Civilization.

War in East Africa is brought appreciably nearer by the collapse of the three-power conference which, with the blessing of the League of Nations, was convened in Paris last week to seek a peaceful settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute. This Paris conference was confined to representatives of Great Britain, France and Italy, the three nations which in 1906 signed a still effective treaty, stating that: "In no case shall one of the three governments interfere in any manner whatsoever" with Ethiopia "except in agreement with the other two."

No Ethiopian delegate was invited to the Paris meetings of Anthony Eden, Premier Laval and Baron Aloisi. The objective was agreement on far-reaching concessions, perhaps involving a virtual Italian protectorate over Ethiopia, which would satisfy Mussolini's imperialistic ambitions without altogether destroying the independence of Haile Selassie's primitive empire. Anglo-French pressure would have been brought on Ethiopia could any compromise formula satisfactory to Il Duce have been found.

But poor Baron Aloisi, after numerous frantic telephone calls to Rome, has had to admit that no reasonable settlement is acceptable to Mussolini. No treaty pledge, no special concession, no decent respect for the opinions of mankind, is going to be allowed to deprive the Black Shirts of their march into Africa. And so the world draws nearer to days more fateful than any since those which closed July of 1914.

If this were merely a matter of an isolated colonial campaign, or if it only concerned that Italian honor which Mussolini is so contemptuously smearing, there would perhaps be no call for the rest of the world to become greatly concerned. There would even then be expectations that Italy's weak financial structure will prove unable to stand the strain, and that the expedition will end not in the triumph of Fascism but in its overthrow. But if the threatened war affected only Italy and Ethiopia, it might be regarded as a limited and therefore relatively unimportant evil. Anxiety comes from the fact that the effects of this war, once started, must be world-wide and thoroughly destructive.

There is, for instance, Germany. A few months ago Mussolini was president of the Stresa conference which condemned that nation for taking unilateral action in destroying the military clauses of the Treaty of Versailles. What Mussolini then condemned he is now, with far less justification, preparing to practice. A German government with much more restraint than that now in power could not fail to see in an illegal Italian invasion of Ethiopia the golden opportunity to put through the no more illegal ambition of annexing Austria to the Reich. If that is done the repercussions in central Europe will be incalculable.

There is also Great Britain. That world power is obviously anxious over the effect of an Ethiopian war on her interests in the Nile basin, guaranteed by the treaty of 1906, which Italy now regards as a scrap of paper. But over and above that Great Britain fears racial disturbances in her African and Indian possessions if this barefaced subjection of a heretofore unconquered tribal kingdom goes unprotested. British imperial policy today requires opposition to the Italian course just as strongly as it required opposition to Germany's invasion of Belgium in 1914.

Finally, because of these and other far-reaching implications, there is the catastrophic threat to the whole system of collective security laboriously built up since 1919. The Japanese and German defections seriously weakened the League of Nations. If Italy now flouts her obligations in order to conquer a fellow-member of the organization, the League as a political instrumentality will cease to exist. With its collapse will go into the discard the Kellogg Pact and every other careful effort to insure treaty sanctity and reasonable national security in the postwar world. Nothing will then be left but the law of tooth and claw. There will be irresistible pressure on every nation to devote more and more of its substance to preparation for an existence in which war will not be the exceptional but the normal state.

Under the circumstances, concerted pressure upon Italy now becomes the imperative duty of all signatories of the Kellogg Pact, as well as of all members of the League of Nations. The stakes are too high, and the interests of all civilization are too deeply affected, for anyone to pretend that this gamble is only Italy's business. There is a limit to the right of a megalomaniac to decide the destiny of the race. That limit Mussolini is rapidly approaching.

A Welcome Compromise.

The House has apparently won a victory over the Senate in the prolonged controversy over the "death sentence" clause in the holding company bill. It is expected that the measure will be reported out of conference with a provision which would regulate without forcing dissolution of so-called "unnecessary" holding companies.

There are other major differences between the House and Senate bills almost if not quite as important as the much debated section 2. Thus, the Senate bill calls for much more far-reaching and rigid control over operating companies, and dislocates the industry by cutting off the holding-company service organizations, instead of regulating their charges, as does the House bill.

It is to be hoped that the more rational provisions of the House bill have prevailed. However, assuming that the "death sentence" clause will be eliminated, it is better for Congress to enact some sort of compromise measure rather than permit the matter to go over to another session. Delay would encourage the manufacture of political capital out of an issue that should be decided on its merits. If mistakes are made they can be corrected later on. At least the holding companies will know what is immediately in store for them and can make their preparations accordingly.

Holding company regulation is much needed and should be achieved at this session. There is good cause, however, to complain of the prolonged delays and irrelevant wranglings that have left the industry in a state of uncertainty, precluded planning for the future, tended to impair investor confidence in utility issues, and indirectly helped to retard general business recovery.

Use For Work Relief Funds.

Under the social security law an expenditure of over $98,000,000 was authorized to cover the cost of launching the program during the present fiscal year. As no money was actually appropriated, however, the Budget Bureau has recommended that $75,000,000 be voted to cover grants to States for old-age assistance and other purposes and to meet administrative and research costs.

The sum required during this first year is a matter of guesswork, as much depends upon the speed with which the work of organizing is carried out. Furthermore, it is uncertain how great a proportion of unemployables will be shifted from Federal to State relief rolls. In any case the amount needed will seem small by contrast with the huge sum at the disposal of the Government for relief purposes.

The social security program is designed to cut down emergency relief expenditures by making systematic provision for the aged, the infirm, and the able-bodied unemployed. Under the circumstances, it would be especially fitting to use work relief funds to finance the costs of inaugurating the new system. With $4,000,000,000 at its disposal, to use much as it pleases, the Administration could undoubtedly spare several times $75,000,000 without even missing it.

Indeed, if the immense resources available for work relief are actually paid out within the year, waste and extravagance will be unavoidable. Consequently it would be a constructive move to utilize a small portion of these funds to finance a program that aims to substitute a regular system of benefits and unemployment insurance for the present haphazard emergency arrangement.

Such a transfer would not only help to keep down the Federal deficit, but would also call attention to the basic purpose of the social security act. In addition the sums actually necessary could be transferred as needed, instead of rushing through a new appropriation based on admittedly imperfect estimates of cost.

What Kind Of Position?

There has never been an adequate explanation offered for the passing of the "Personal" columns.

Time was when every newspaper had its full quota of gentlemen, identifying themselves as "Entranced," who would beg at the price of a few cents per agate line that "the lady occupying the rear seat of the McMurtrie boulevard car yesterday between 11 and 12 please correspond with the undersigned, care of Box L." Today, alas, such excitingly mysterious propositions are rarely publicized, if indeed they are thought of at all, at all. One of the scattered few publications that still cater to the old traditions, however, is that repository of proper radicalism, The Nation. Only last week it broadcast the following:

> Two young ladies with Southern accent desire positions. Riverside 9-1840 or CHelsea 3-0786.

The spectacle of the rabid old Nation permitting such a dulcet note to creep into its columns is itself arresting. But much more so is the thought that there exist two ladies of at least a certain sophistication (they read The Nation) believing that jobs can be had in these jobless times with no more recommendation than a Southern accent.

"Baby Is Born Without a Brain, But Lives for 27 Days in New York." So our headliner captions an A. P. dispatch. But what of it? There are many New Yorkers who have gained maturity without effective evidence of being in any better case.

In A Circle.

From the San Francisco Chronicle.

In connection with the proposal that the Government buy and take out of cultivation millions of acres of marginal lands it is now suggested, with the approval of Undersecretary of Agriculture Rexford G. Tugwell, that the Federal Government reimburse the States for the taxes they would lose.

If this is done it will be a marvelous expression of New Deal philosophy. The Government will collect from the States the money to pay back to them. The States will pay the Government the money it draws back from Washington.

It would do until it wore out—provided that the Government and the States did not get dizzy from thus whirling around the circle.

Governors On Their Way?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post prints this Sunday morning, under an imposing headline the story that Gov. Curley, of the Old Bay State, is about to descend upon the White House and its occupant seeking $144,000,000 with which to improve, beautify and purify the roads and rivers, also sundry subways, hospitals and jails of Massachusetts.

Emboldened by the success of Gov. Davey, of Ohio, who raided the White House for $20,000,000, the mighty man of Massachusetts sets his price seven times as large. While Ohio is six times as large in area with a vacancy in its Congressman-at-large, it may be remembered that Massachusetts is strategically located on the borders of Rhode Island and that rebellious epidemics often become contagious.

Curley will continue his vociferous eloquence for the forgotten man. He will promise an unopposed and iron-clad pledged delegation for the President. He will disclaim all intention of unhorsing Senator Coolidge a year hence. He will praise Hopkins, Ickes and Wallace. He will climb to the top of the mountain, escorted by proper police on motorcycles, there to extol the virtues of the President; all this he will do if he can only lay his hands on that $144,000,000, silver, gold or greenbacks. It will be of great historic interest to learn the President's answer!

How many other Democratic governors "are on the way?"

Atrocities, Home And Abroad

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The work of columnists making daily contributions to the press, frequently suffers from lack of time in which to select suitable subjects and to properly portray them. The article by Westbrook Pegler under caption of "Fair Enough," appearing in The Post of August 12 is a typical example of this.

He, no doubt, read a chapter or two of "Don Quixote" and immediately saw an opportunity to liken Uncle Sam to Pervantis' hero, if he should heed the demands of certain groups, including the American Federation of Labor, to use his good offices upon belligerent dictators and others who seem intent upon inflicting either communism or paganism upon the unfortunates under their rule. In citing the Ku Klux Klan, chain gangs and other atrocities as parallels to outrages in Germany or Mexico, he appeals to the shallow mind. Our Government did not countenance, much less direct, such activities. JOHN B. HINKS.

"Give The Orchestra Time."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: After Mr. Carter's letter of August 10, I think it best to "vituperate" once more. To say that Ganz is an "incapable leader" is like calling Heifetz a bum fiddler. And to compare the National Symphony with the New York Philharmonic, is not quite fair. After all, the Philharmonic is now some 93 years old, and when you compare that with the four young years of the National Symphony, you can see how absurd this comparison is.

As for the music played at the summer concerts, I think it is just about what it should be for this season. When the attendance has jumped from 3,000 to 10,000, it is not altogether because the concerts are held out-of-doors. Several thousands come, no doubt, because they feel that this music is not beyond their comprehension, and as they continue to come, they will learn to appreciate more profound music, but this is not all done in one day. Give the orchestra time to grow, and give the public time to grow in appreciation, and the results will show in times to come.

One does not aid the cause of music by criticizing programs which are good. Mr. Carter should try radio programs for a change. They are really bad, and if they are what most Americans cry for, then we should be thankful as long as the National Symphony doesn't play "I'm Headin' for the Last Round-Up" instead of Beethoven's Eighth Symphony. On Revising The Constitution

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: All this talk about the Constitution's being in danger and "Save the Constitution!" smacks of insincere political opportunism. Nobody outside of Communists and cranks proposes to abolish the Constitution or to change it except through the constitutional method provided by Article V. Without that provision, as our forefathers clearly recognized, the Constitution could not have endured. Changes in economic and social conditions will necessitate, as they have in the past, changes in the body of fundamental law. Witness the 22 amendments already added to the Constitution.

After all, the Constitution was made for the people, and not the people for the Constitution. Just as we alter or enlarge our homes for greater conveniences, it is only common sense that we should strive through constitutional amendments to make the Constituion a more serviceable instrument for national happiness.

Let us hold the Constitution in all respect, but in decency's name let us not make of it a fetish for selfish political purposes.

Administration Dodging.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Senator Black, chairman of the so-called Senate Utility Lobbying Committee, has reported to the Senate that Mr. Hopson, utility official, has been "dodging, hiding and running" to avoid being summoned to appear before that committee. New Dealers are professing to be shocked at the alleged unethical actions of Mr. Hopson and are not overlooking possible political advantages resulting therefrom. Assuming Senator Black's statement as true, doesn't Mr. Hopson have an outstanding precedent to guide him, one supplied by the Roosevelt Administration?

About a year ago, Mr. Tugwell, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, sailed for Europe on a "vacation." The press reported that a court process server, endeavoring to serve Mr. Tugwell as an official of the Agricultural Department, was frustrated from doing so through Mr. Tugwell taking a circuitous route and by "dodging, hiding and running," enabling him to board his vessel and sail for Europe without being served by the court official.

A Call For District Tax Revision.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post of August 14 brings the news that our City Fathers are about to give serious consideration to a revision of our tax system. Let us hope that the commission to consider same may be able to recommend to Congress a plan so fair and equitable that even the perennial objectors in that body may be silenced. The writer has no overweaning desire to receive personal benefits from such a revision, as he is perfectly willing to pay his full share of all equitable necessary taxes, but he has always felt that the intangible personal tax is not only inequitable but positively iniquitous in many cases.

It appears to him to be a double tax. As an illustration let us suppose that on July 1, 1934, A had $5,000 in a bank—he paid a tax of $25; and that B at that date owned real estate assessed at $1,000—he paid a tax of $150.. During the ensuing year B borrows A's $5,000 and gives him a mortgage on his real estate as security; the result would be that on July 1, 1935, A still pays $25 tax on the mortgage note and B pays $25 tax on the $5,000 cash, or its equivalent, in addition to the $150 real estate tax on the full assessed value of a property of which he owns only a 50 per cent equity; is not $5,000 being doubly taxed?

Further, is it not iniquitous in all cases similar to this illustration? A frugal husband, desiring to protect his wife and family by self-denial (abetted by an economical wife) manages to carry $20,000 life insurance; he dies and his widow contrives to obtain an annual income of, say, $1,000, out of this the intangible tax demands ½ of 1 per cent on the $20,000 principal each and every year. This is equivalent to a 10 per cent income tax with no exemptions for dependents; a pretty stiff income tax!

As to the contention by many members of Congress that our tax rate on real estate is grossly out of proportion with their hometown paying taxes on assessed values in votes, it might be well to state that at this present time the writer is paying taxes on assessed values in excess of his asking prices for the real estate assessed. A pronounced offset to disproportionate tax rates elsewhere.

The writer believes, if correct in his premises, that, not only the city press, but all of our citizens' associations should unite now in a supreme effort to have the proposed commission push recommendations for a fair income tax (with proper exemptions) as a substitute for the intangible tax. Failing in this, then to at least have the law amended to permit exemptions of $10,000 to $15,000 of the principal returned each year for taxation.

The Post Impressionist

Hes, Hir And Hem.

Postoffice, Tuesday.

WE BEG to present another contribution toward that crying need for a new word, to which we recently and reverently called attention.

* * *

A week or so ago—somewhere thereabout in the dim past, as a newspaper reckons time—we ventured to play upon the word "man." We inexactly quoted "Lives there a man (or even a woman) with soul so dead, as never to himself (or herself)," etc., etc. We modestly suppressed our acquaintance with the fact that "man" may mean either a male human being or just a human being in general (see Noah Unabridged Webster's third definition) and we thus neatly circumnavigated the contention of both Fourth Century St. Julitta and the Twentieth Century Feminists that every woman is just as human as most male men.

* * *

Fair enough * * *

Yet then came Hoosier Column-Correspondent A. H. pleading that our common tongue—not to mention H. L. Mencken's uncommon American Language—ought to be supplied with a third-person pronoun of common gender.

* * *

And we had scarcely forgotten his letter before S. J. R., of Washington, curvetted into the lists. Without offering any specific remedies for Line No. 1 of the couplet we had appropriated, he contended that common sense would render the second line:

"Whoever to himorher self have said."

* * *

Now yet another column contributor sends, C. O. D., from Ballston, Va., a full supply for the demand. Over the shrinking signature of "Just 1-125,000,000"—whereby it is intimated that the signatory is an ordinary unit of this Republic's teeming population—this contributor writes:

"We certainly do 'need a word.' In fact, we need three words—for the three cases of a personal pronoun of common gender.

* * *

"'It' doesn't fill the bill by any means. It merely conscripts a neuter pronoun to stand sentry for both the masculine and feminine gender.

* * *

"Why not, then, all the following pronouns in the third person?

"Masculine: Nominative, He—Possessive, His—Objective, Him.

"Feminine: Nominative, She—Possessive, Her—Objective, Her.

"Common: Nominative, Hes—Possessive, Hir—Objective.Hem.

"Neuter: Nominative, It— Possessive, Its—Objective, It.

* * *

"The nominative of that common gender ,pronoun (pronounce it 'hess') suggests 'he or she,' for it has all the letters of both 'he' and 'she,' yet is just as brief as the feminine.

"The possessive (pronounce it 'hear') as plainly suggests both 'his' and 'her,' and is as short as either 'his' of 'her.'

* * *

"What if 'hem' is also a noun and a verb? The context makes its meaning plain. Context makes clear many other words in our faulty English tongue."

* * *

Exactly. Even the word (or words) "read" is (or are) made plain by the context—now and then!

* * *

So our modern Gould Brown procedes to demonstrate how, under his new grammatical dispensation, would run those lines from "The Lay of the Last Minstrel" which, applied as we applied (and misquoted) them, had to be so tortuously stretched upon the rack of outworn formula.

They would beautifully run, if you please, thus:

"Breathes there a wight with soul
so dead
As never to hemself have said . . ."

* * *

Limpid lines now, you see: Clear and simple, yet melodious—as, had he known better, good Sir Walter would, without doubt, have wanted them to be.

* * *

And "wight"—eh? What about the substitution of "wight" for "man?"

Why, that removes the Websterian confusion. "Wight," as our Virginian hastens to remind us, "is a person, male or female."

* * *

"Anyhow," concludes this correspondent, "any one of the words 'hes,' 'hir,' and 'hem' is as good a new word as 'boondoggle.'"

* * *

Quite. Oh, quite! We agree with hem there. But we have always entertained a sneaking affection for two older words at which the hypercritical pedants turn up their little snub noses.

To express the possessive case of the personal pronoun in the common gender, why shouldn't we kidnap either "his'n" or "her'n?"

* * *

Apropos which—or not:

Do you say "anybody else's" or "anybody's else?"

Fair Enough

By

Westbrook Pegler

BILL HENRY, a Los Angeles sports writer, who did a distinguished job in the technical direction of the Olympic Games in Los Angeles three years ago, returns from Germany predicting not only that the Olympics of 1936 will be held in Berlin, as planned, but that these will be the most successful Olympics ever conducted, excelling even his own triumph in which the hokum of Hollywood nearby was employed to move a crowd of more than 100,000 Americans to vain, sentimental tears.

Mr. Henry tells your correspondent that he went abroad for the Columbia Broadcasting Co. to cover the third renewal of the Schmeling-Paulino prize fight, which is now acquiring antiquity and tradition like the English Derby and the Harvard-Yale boat race, and some tennis in London. He was at no time employed by the Nazi government of Germany, but was a sort of guest of Adolf Hitler's administration and was good enough to give the Germans the benefit of his experience and expertness in conducting Olympic games.

* * * *

IT would be a breach of manners unthinkable in one as proper as Mr. Henry to accept the hospitality of the Nazi government of which he was a "sort of guest" with a doubt that the Olympics of 1936 would be held in Germany or that if they should be held in spite of the rising sentiment against this country's participation they would be anything less than a rousing success. Since Mr. Henry's return, the Austrian government has forbidden Austrians to participate in German sport tournaments, an order which would seem to apply to the Olympic program, and, if so, would be the first withdrawal in protest against the terrorism in Germany. Moreover, a special dispatch to the New York Times reports that the Olympics are now being frankly avowed as an official project of the Nazi government. In an official calendar issued by the German Olympic Committee. Adolf Hitler is pictured with the slogan, "I summon the youth of the world," which, in the way of effrontery, would constitute a new world record.

Mr. Henry may not have felt he was singing for his supper in acclaiming the Nazis' Olympic program, but he had impeached himself as a witness. Hospitality is a cheap but familiar form of propaganda among governments of the world and even the unsophisticated Ethiopians evinced a grasp of things when Emperor Haile Selassie dined the growing horde of war correspondents from the neutral nations of the world, with flunkeys in gaudy uniforms to serve them off gold platters.

When a man has sat as "a sort of guest" with a stein on the table and a good song ringing loud, if not necessarily clear, it is not polite in him to criticize his host for publication, but anything which he may say in favor of his host is subject to a reasonable discount.

* * * *

STILL insisting that this country has a full-time job in the minding of its own business, your correspondent, in view of further developments in Germany, has come to the belief that the American Olympic Committee should withdraw the American team from the games. If the program were unofficial, as the Los Angeles program was, the ideal of sport to which the Olympics are dedicated would be worth the risk of "incidents" in the competition and of insulting conduct toward members of the team. The Hoover Administration did not summon the youth of the world to Los Angeles, but left that strictly to the Olympic committee, and the only member of the Government who appeared at all was old Charlie Curtis, the Vice President, who made a complimentary appearance and then ducked.

But now that it is admitted the the German Olympics are to be a political undertaking, intended to glorify the Nazi program, the American Olympic Committee has no right to commit American sport to participation. That would be asking not only the athletes themselves but the American supporting public behind the team to join in the promotion of a political motive of a government whose methods and objectives outrage every American principle. It would not be minding our own business.

* * * *

THE plans of the Nazis as they are now beginning to reveal themselves would make use of the athletes of some 48 nations to exalt everything that Adolf Hitler represents, including the kicking and beating of women by mobs in the streets and the assassination of thought, freedom and human beings.

Your correspondent has been poring over the big, fat, expensive souvenir book commemorating the 1932 Olympics of Los Angeles and has been unable to find anything in the Olympic oath or the flowery papers of Count Baillet Latour, the founder of the modern games, which authorizes such an object. On the contrary, the games are adjured to avoid politics and the only way to comply under the conditions which the Nazis have imposed would be to cancel the program.

Anne Sedgwick

By

William Lyon Phelps

OUR distinguished American novelist Anne Sedgwick (Mrs. Basil De Selincourt) died in London, Sunday, July 21.

Her parents came of old American stock and her father was a Yale graduate; she was born in Englewood, N. J., in 1873. As a child she was brought up and educated in France and England; I suppose there was no one in the world who more thoroughly understood the characteristics of all three peoples—Americans, British, French—than she did. One of her most famous novels, "The Little French Girl," was an admirable study of the French and the English temperament, besides being a remarkably good story.

* * * *

She studied drawing and painting in Paris. In 1908 she was married to Basil De Selincourt. For many years her home was in England, though she made several visits to the United States. I spent a happy afternoon at her beautiful place in Oxfordshire in 1928.

Her first novel to win international fame was "Tante," but every one of her score of books was written with distinction. She was indeed a brilliant and sincere artist, always doing her best; among her better-known works are "Autumn Crocuses," "Adrienne Toner," "The Old Countess," and "Dark Hester." Among her earlier stories I like best "A Fountain Sealed," and of all her novels the one that produced the deepest impression on me was "The Encounter." I believe that if that had not been issued just at the outbreak of the World War, it would have attracted more attention.

* * * *

She had a serious and thoughtful mind, was very fond of reading philosophy; and among novelists her favorites were Tolstoi, Dostoevski, George Meredith, and Henry James.

The Man Who Came Back

Doubting Thomases Referred To Career Of Millionaire Candymaker Who Lost Everything At The Age Of 80 And Has Now Recovered His Grip On Life.

By Ralph E. Renaud.

Special Correspondence to The Post.

THERE are still people in the world who ask "Do you think the telephone is here to stay?" They are the chronic Doubting Thomases. They are the people who believe that good things never happen or, if they do, never continue to happen. So this article is addressed especially to them. It is to give them the news that this week "Old Man" Washburne became president of a million dollar candy concern, with a factory on Long Island and everything.

Maybe "Old Man" Washburne is a symbol of humanity in the depression. Certainly his career parallels that of a good many Americans in the recent economic unpleasantness, both in its downs and its ups. A while back this column carried Washmurne's story up to the point where the light was just beginning to break in his black night. It is now full dawn for Washburne again and his blue eyes, still keen but wrinkled enough at the corners, are a little misted by the intensity of the light. He is thinking less about himself than other men who haven't been so lucky.

Yet this is not a story of luck. It will be necessary to tell part of it over again. Nine months ago James M. Washburne was down and out and 80 years of age. It wasn't that he had just drifted into such a position, as many octogenarians do. He was catapulted there. In 1930 he was head of the New York string of Martha Washington Candy Stores. Business was still good. He could drop into many of his stores, take $1,000 out of the till and spend it in a day without giving it a second thought. He and his wife owned two summer homes in New Jersey, a lavish Park avenue apartment and were accustomed to spending three months in every winter in Florida. His was one of the $50,000 incomes that Congress seems to feel are the backbone of the New Deal.

WELL, Washburne's backbone was broken. Within a year he lost everything—literally everything. One after another his 15 stores closed up. His servants went, his automobiles went. One of his Jersey homes went and the other was so heavily mortgaged nobody would have it. He and his wife left their apartment for a single room and kitchenette. There wasn't any income at all. One by one, Mrs. Washburne sold her jewels, of which she had quite a collection. By and by they, too, were all gone.

Washburne lost more than his money. For a while he lost his belief in himself. He had lots of friends and a wide business acquaintance. But everywhere he applied, though he told them he was only 50, they said he was too old. He began to wonder if he really was. One day, in a daze of perplexity and a burden of doubt, he started to hitch-hike to Florida with some blind instinct to get back into the sunshine somehow, somewhere. But at Baltimore he came to himself and went back home—that is to his wife and their one room.

* * * *

THERE wasn't anything to do there but think. But slowly a thought came to him in which lay folded his whole future. For a long time he had been revolving in his mind a process of making candy from vegetables, from spinach, beets, corn, carrots and peas. It was to be sweetened only by the pure juice of the vegetables themselves and, as it would contain no sugar, was the sort of diet a woman candy-fancier could eat with impunity.

He and his wife tried it out in their kitchen. It was delicious. He called the candies "Garden Gems" and set out to sell them. Day after day he told his wife he was selling to "old customers." As a matter of fact he was standing right in Times Square with a placard on his chest—just a candy peddler. Still, the Garden Gems sold readily. They appealed to a new nerve in the customer's sweet tooth.

Then the newspapers got hold of Washburne's story. That meant that Mrs. Wasburne had to know he had descended to peddling, but it also meant the establishment of a mail-order business, too. Letters, ordering boxes of the Garden Gems began to pour into the Washburnes flat. Business began to pick up and the old couple were pretty busy in the kitchen.

* * * *

ONE morning a letter came from Joseph B. Kaufman, a wealthy candy manufacturer who was interested in "Old Man" Washburne's vegetable formula. But Washburne had been pushed down so fast he was determined to move up slowly. He did not intend to reveal his formula and he wasn't going to sell cheap candy. Even when he was peddling from the curb he charged 30 cents for a small box.

But Kaufman was persistent. The two men got together.

When James M. Washburne, 80 years old, walked into a downtown law office this week, he was smartly attired in a gray coat, striped trousers and white shoes. He didn't look much like the old fellow who was hitch-hiking for Florida last fall. He had just been made president of the James M. Washburne Candy Specialty Corporation with 2,000 of its 10,000 shares in his own name. Mr. Kaufman is treasurer of the concern which will do a strictly wholesale business and expects to have 500 men employed in its Long Island City factory within six months. It looks a little as though the Washburnes kitchen is going into the discard. But the Garden Gems will continue to shine brightly.

OLD MAN WASHBURNE, who rides in his own automobile again and occasionally plays a little golf, was willing enough to talk to reporters.

"We fellows who got money freely after the war spent it freely," he said. "We couldn't see the clouds. Everything seemed sunshine. At one time I had everything. And then I had nothing. Now it looks like I've got a chance again."

"How does your wife feel about all this?" he was asked.

"Well," he smiled, "she's still stringing along."

"And what, Mr. Washburne, are you going to do with all the money you expect to make?"

"I will look up the men in the position I was in life. How can I enjoy anything if I don't share with somebody?"

"Give it to charity"

"I will, indeed."

Your correspondent has twice told the story of "Old Man" Washburne. The final chapter can't be very far away, but it suggests a happy ending. And the moral of the tale seems to be that the real Townsend plan in America lies in the courage and toughness and ingenuity of the people. There are still a lot of Garden Gems to be mined in this country.

Horse Racing Saves Nebraska Fair's Life

Omaha, Nebr., Aug. 19 (AP).—Horse racing—king of sports—has been enlisted in the Nebraska "farm relief" movement.

Through it the State fair board hopes to wipe away the red ink used on its financial reports for the past four years.

In voting to operate pari-mutuel betting machines during an eight-day race meeting next month, the fair board today stated it was a "sink or swim" measure.

Labor's View

As Reported From Great Britain

Offspring Of Vainglory.

The following statement from "The Labor Press Service," official organ of the British Labor Party, shows the position taken by that organization on the dispute between Italy and Ethiopia.

ITALIAN Fascism is taking its predestined course. The offspring of vainglory and violence, it has been nurtured on self-deception and self-glorification. For the conflict of ideals, interests and cultures on the field of politics, it has substituted a uniform pattern of thought, education and behavior, with the army as the model of the state and a new Fascist empire as the summit of political endeavor. The army is the nation and the nation the army. Thirteen years of marching and countermarching, of giving and taking of salutes, becomes a ridiculous and costly pastime when there is no danger.

* * * *

FASCISM, by its very nature, creates its national dangers in order to provide an outlet for the combative energy which it generates. If Italians may not measure their skill one against the other on the field of humanitarian enterprise in which the battle of civilization is always waged, they will and must find an enemy whom they may fight in common, especially if it is thought that one is available who may be very easily beaten. There has been a renaissance of old-fashioned imperialism in Italy. The Fascists have learned nothing about the futility of colonial empires. Every year they presume to be able to afford four times as much as the British exchequer for colonial development. And now a bankrupt state is being led by a bankrupt politician to avenge Adowa. The adventure may end in a new Adowa for Mr. Mussolini, whether victory or defeat awaits him on the battlefield. But the peace of Europe will be endangered in any event, as the Italian war in Tripoli was the forerunner of the Balkan wars, and, finally, of the world catastrophe.

* * * *

IT is not a moment for nice calculations of the pros and cons, the advantages and disadvantages of this or that course of public policy for the states of Europe. Diplomatic support for a policy of peace in one corner of Europe is dearly bought at a price which permits a policy of conquest elsewhere. The blackmailer is never a good ally in any enterprise. Italian Fascism will consult its own interests whatever the time and the occasion. If the peace of Europe is to be preserved, European states must be prevented from going on large-scale buccaneering expeditions for the wholesale massacre of unarmed Africans.

* * * *

MR. MUSSOLINI was the president of the Stresa conference, which condemned unilateral breaches of treaties. It invited the League of Nations to inquire how such unilateral breaches of treaties may be prevented in the future by the application of appropriate sanctions. The committee is now engaged upon this task. Mussolini himself is openly and shamelessly preparing to violate several specific and general treaties, of which Italy is a signatory, which guarantee the independence and integrity of Abyssinia and create machinery for the settlement of all disputes which may arise between Abyssinia and Italy. The Council of the League has kept the subject upon their agenda. Nothing more substantial has really been achieved. The presence of Italy at the next meeting can not even be predicted. Abyssinia has appealed to the League Council under article 15 and asked for the appointment of neutral observers on the spot. Her requests can not be ignored much longer. Italy can not go to war this autumn if she observes the covenant, and if she is prevented now, there may be no war.

I hear a chuckle plaintly, loud and gay—
The laughter rises, coming from afar;
A grin suffuses sun and moon and star.

There is a rustle and a whir of wings;
In Kingdom Come the folks pull up a chair . . .
I know the reason for this state of things—
A saint with rope and chewing gum is there!

When Henry Passes.

(If those proposed inheritance taxes go through.)

The scene is a yard of a Ford factory. Two workers are talking:

"Well, the boss has gone."

"Yep. It's too bad. I feel awfully sorry for Edsel."

"Why?"

"He inherits the entire Ford business. It's very pathetic."

"It sure does leave him in a terrible hole, don't it? What'll he do?"

"All I know is that the business has been so well conducted that it's become a terrific liability."

"That sounds screwy."

"I know it sounds screwy, but that's just how it is. The business is so tremendous and in such fine shape that Edsell will have to borrow money to keep it running."

"Where will he borrow it?"

"From the bankers. They'll advance him enough to keep the business solvent after the Government takes most of Henry's estate."

"But I thought the bankers had been fighting for years to get control of the Ford business and had always been kept out."

"But I thought the Democrats were driving the money lenders from the temple?"

"Yeah. But there were buses outside the temple taking them direct to the Ford plant."

"Say, we're worrying about Edsel. What happens to us?"

"We're in a tough spot, too, only we don't have to worry in such high figures."

* * * *

"Are our jobs good, do you think?

"It depends on what kind of a job bankers and the Government do in the old man's place. I don't see how the bankers will dare run the business on so big a scale."

"Why not?"

"They know now that it's a mistake to build up a great industry and make huge profits. I figure they'll fire 50 per cent of the help, cut the business in half and make less money as a matter of good business sense. Do you follow me?

"No. It's too intricate."

* * * *

"Well, Henry was a good boss. Let's go over and extend our sympathies to Edsel."

"Wait a minute."

"Why?"

"Here comes Edsel to extend his sympathies to us!"

Italy Refuses Powers' Moves To Avoid War

would support France after France had failed to support Italy.

As for the League, they explained it has been so weakened already that it may die if Italy withdraws and if the whole world sees the League treaties flouted by one of the big powers and not able to halt a war.

The big German question mark is ever in French minds since the Treaty of Versailles began to tremble under the sledge-like blows of Germany's denunciation of its military clauses. French statesmen have sought a method to prevent a revival of German power. Organization of the former allies in a solid front has been their hope.

The late foreign minister, Henri Barthou, went down under an assassin's bullets as he neared the completion of his famous "ring of steel" around Germany. France already had organized the "Little Entente" of Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Rumania for the same purpose. A virtual military alliance had been made with Russia. French fortifications touched similar Belgian redoubts. With Great Britain and Italy, France has guaranteed Austria's independence. With them at her side she felt safe.

But the situation has changed. Though France counts on British support, she remembers that Britain on June 16 made a separate naval deal with Germany. Now the trouble with Italy rises to complicate matters. French officials wonder how Italy will use her influence in Central Europe if France and England interfere with what they call her colonial dream.

The opinion prevails that France's own safety and European peace depend upon respect for treaties and a new standard of international morality, which are assumed to be the League's mission.

If the League system were disregarded, one French official said ominously, the result would be "jungle law."

Aloisi Contradicts Britain.

Baron Aloisi, leaving the scene of the tri-power talks, contradicted the British assertion that Premier Mussolini had failed to state frankly what he wanted in Ethiopia.

"Italy's exact aims in the Ethiopian kingdom were told to Eden by Premier Mussolini himself when the British minister was in Rome," he said. "The French government also was informed and I confirmed them here during the conference."

"In the past 50 years we have signed different treaties with Ethiopia," he said in mentioning Italy's desire for colonies and security. "These treaties never have been observed.

"We have massed about 200,000 men in Eritrea and Somaliland who face 450,000 men," Aloisi went on.

"We, therefore, consider the life of our colonies as being in immediate danger.

No Fear of Europe.

"But concerning Europe, we soon are going to have great maneuvers in northern Italy with 1,000,000 men participating." That, he added, "will show that Italy has no fear for her European safety."

He said the Franco-British proposals were rejected by Italy because "they were only in the economic field. Of course we were offered control of postoffices, telephones and telegraph facilities and the policing of frontiers, but we found no security in these projects," he added.

Condemned Coleman Killers Seeking Writ

Richmond, Aug. 19 (AP).—An application for a writ of error for Joe Jackson and John Shell probably will be filed tomorrow or Wednesday, their attorney, E. H. Norrell, said today. Jackson and Shell, Negroes, were convicted of slaying Mr. and Mrs. John Coleman in Spotsylvania County.

The two men are in death row at the State Penitentiary here. They are scheduled to die in the electric chair August 30, when a second reprieve granted them by Gov. Perry expires.

Monte Carlo Fires Its Army—All 76

Monte Carlo, Aug. 19 (UP).—Prince Louis' discharged army of 76 men—sacrificed for economy—reflected tonight that even military careers in so pacific a state as Monaco are a gamble.

The scholarly, bewhiskered little prince, a noted oceanographer, studied red-ink balance sheets of the roulette wheels, around which all Monte Carlo life revolves, and then gave the army three months' notice.

economic resources for what is regarded as the inevitable conflict with Ethiopia was contained in an official decree announcing abolition of all commodity exchanges.

Mussolini Prepared.

Rome, Aug. 19.—Premier Benito Mussolini is almost ready to wage his war upon Ethiopia without fear of embargoes or blockades.

For months, authorities said, Il Duce has been completing arrangements to make Italy virtually self-sufficing as regards wartime commodities. With war probably no more than a month away, Mussolini now has little fear that the League of Nations or Great Britain can cripple him by economic sanctions.

The dictator early saw his African conflict not merely as a war with Ethiopia but a clash with Britain's diplomatic power—the first vital defiance of British opinion since Germany marched into Belgium 21 years ago.

Recognizing the force Britain can muster to enforce her wishes, Mussolini secretly strove to render Italy economically independent as regards war commodities.

The premier foresees that Britain, if driven to an extremity, may deny him coal, scrap iron and rubber. Already Italy has found a coal source in Germany, buying over 3,000,000 tons in the first six months of 1935.

Il Duce can obtain all the petroleum he needs in Rumania and Russia. He still pursues his effort to lay impregnable economic lines of communication while the powers invoke treaties and covenants.

The Italian chemical industry has been developed to a young giant, ready to serve its master as readily as the legions of young Black Shirts who have taken up guns to project Fascist destiny into the unexploited wastes of East Africa.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Berryville, Va., Aug. 19.—Mr. and Mrs. Wright Denny, of Charles Town, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Shannon, to Mr. Frank Jennings Beckwith, son of Judge Frank Beckwith, of Charles Town.

Miss Denny holds a B. A. degree from Randolph-Macon College of Lynchburg, receiving her M. A. degree at Columbia University, New York City.

Mr. Beckwith, a prominent attorney of Charles Town, is a graduate of the Shenandoah Valley Academy, Winchester, and received his LL. D. from Washington and Lee University. He is the great-great-grandson of Sir Jennings Beckwith, who came from England early in the eighteenth century and settled in Richmond County, Va. in the League of Nations. We are sure that England, with her traditional patience, determination and resourcefulness, will find a solution or a compromise."

Many women continued to clamor for permission to join the army. It appeared, however, that most of those accepted would go to the front as cooks, nurses or munition bearers.

The war spirit seized the children, too, and they paraded the streets carrying rifle-shaped sticks.

Evacuation Plans Made.

The Addis Ababa National Bank refused today to grant foreign merchants further advances on goods.

Most legations had completed plans for evacuation of their nationals in the event of war. However, many Germans anxious to leave found it impossible because they were unable to obtain funds from their country.

The Emperor was gradually organizing a medical service following the recent inauguration of an Ethiopian Red Cross. He enlisted 18 Greek doctors under the command of Col. Argiropoulos, who served under France in the World War.

Ethiopia, preparing for expected hostilities, was indulging in a race with the weather.

The nation's zero hour is expected to come at the end of the rainy season, normally in September, but the weather was showing signs of clearing up and the rains may end earlier this year.

Authorities of the French railroad, which is Addis Ababa's only modern means of communication with the rest of the world, stressed confidence they would be able to maintain service between important towns, even if railroad bridges are bombed between the capital and the frontier.

This could be done, they said, by relays at the points where the bridges might be wrecked, with a sufficient number of coaches and locomotives being maintained at those points.

Berbera, British Somaliland, Aug. 19.—Several thousand British and British-protected subjects in Harrar made arrangements today to seek refuge here in the event of hostilities between Italy and Ethiopia.

British Somaliland borders have been closed, with no one permitted to enter except by order of Gov. A. S. Lawrence.

University Head to Ask Governor for Approval.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 19.—Gov. Peery will be asked tomorrow by President John Lloyd Newcomb and a committee from the board of visitors of the University of Virginia to sanction an application for a PWA loan and grant of $950,000 for the construction of a new general library building at the university.

Complete application forms and plans for the new building prepared by Taylor & Fisher, Baltimore architects, will be presented to the Governor.

Should the Governor sanction the move and PWA authorities approve the application, a brick building of fireproof construction and following the architectural scheme of other buildings at the university will rise on the north axis of Monroe Hall at Charlottesville. The new building will vary from two to five stories in height. It would replace the present library.

Ethiopia's Trade Lags.

By the Associated Press.

The worst business situation in two decades today confronted Ethiopia as she prepared for possible war with Italy.

The Department of Commerce made this statement in a report, which added:

"This condition was attributed primarily to current political developments, although the continued weak demand and the low price level of the country's leading export products were also important contributing factors."

Another department report noted that recent Italian government decrees have authorized the erection of several new chemical plants and the extension of others in various parts of tIaly.

"These new and extended plants," the report said, "will manufacture a wide line of chemicals, including vanillin, bromine, cyanides, acids, phosphorous, coal tar intermediates and paint materials."

Church Denounces War.

By the United Press.

St. Louis, Aug. 19.—The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America tonight denounced the threatened war between Italy and Ethiopia and expressed amazement that Premier Mussolini should press his insistent demands on the East African monarchy.

In a statement denouncing the threatened struggle, Dr. Ivan Lee Holt, of St. Louis, president of the council, advocated passage of mandatory neutrality legislation, now before Congress, and urged that the United States withdraw aid "from all belligerants in this or any conflict that may arise."

'Blow to Britain' Seen.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, Aug. 19.—Under the headline, "Mussolini's reply a blow to Britain," the newspaper Der Angriff today printed the following dispatch from its London correspondent:

"From the most reliable sources I learn that the British ambassador to Rome informed the Italian government that an Italian declaration of war would be replied to by Great Britain with immediate occupation of territories around the sources of the Blue Nile (Lake Tsana).

"Moreover, British circles do not deny that in such an event Emperor Haile Selassie would count on British support on a large scale.

"If Britain and Italy should be unable to come to an understanding in some way or another a new Fashoda incident would in these circumstances be unavoidable."

Authoritative circles in London said the story was without foundation.

Vienna Has 'Solution.'

By the Associated Press.

Vienna, Aug. 19.—The breakdown of the tri-power conference at Paris over the Italo-Ethiopia dispute sharpened the impatience of radical monarchists today.

The monarchists argued a quick restoration of the Hapsburg dynasty would create a new situation demanding Premier Mussolini concentrate his defense for central European peace against those who might be tempted to drive out the Hapsburgs. Italy, they reasoned, would thus be given an opportunity to withdraw from an East African adventure without "losing face."

Premier Laval's Daughter Becomes The Bride of Count Rene de Chambrun

No Dowry in Marriage of Mrs. Longworth's Nephew in Paris.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Aug. 19.—Marie Jose Laval, the pretty brunette daughter of Premier Pierre Laval, became a countess today—without a dowry.

Her civil marriage to Count Rene Adelbert de Chambrun also made her a citizen of the United States. The count, a nephew of the late Speaker Nicholas Longworth, by law is an honorary citizen of the United States because he is also a descendant of Gen. Lafayette.

His bride, under French law, takes the nationality of her husband, hence both are citizens of France and the United States.

Rumors of a 10,000,000-franc "dot" were dispelled when it became known that no prenuptial agreement or evidence of parental gifts had been recorded in the marriage contract, as the law requires.

Gen. Pershing a Witness.

The ceremony, in the well-guarded Sixteenth Ward City Hall, was relatively simple. Tomorrow a religious ceremony will take place at the little Church of St. Clothilde, back of the ministry of foreign affairs, where the Lavals live.

Among the witnesses was Gen. John J. Pershing.

Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, Count Charles de Chambrun, the French Ambassador to Italy and brother of the bridegroom, and Senator Marquis de Chambrun were among the guests.

Luncheon Follows Ceremony.

The mayor, wearing the sash and gleaming metal chains of his office, read the legal phrases and heard the responses of the couple. Then he expressed the customary wishes for their happiness and the hope they would have many children.

The ceremony ended with the traditional collection for the poor and the two families of the 28-year-old bridegroom and 23-year-old bride proceeded to a wedding luncheon at the premier's home with a few close friends.

Photographers Barred.

Premier Laval issued orders forbidding photographers to attend the ceremony, and it was explained that he desired to avoid any ostentation.

There was only the barest official announcement of the wedding and no pictures of the principals were published.

The bride's trousseau, although from fashionable houses, was limited.

Laval, it was said, sought in every way to avoid a display which might have caused criticism in the midst of France's fight on the depression.

Hailed throughout France as a love match, the marriage today followed a long friendship between Mlle. Laval and Count de Chambrun.

Simple Civil Ceremony Is Held; Couple Plan Trip to America.

A comely brunette, the bride had been woed by many young Frenchmen, all of whom she had previously refused because she suspected their attentions were inspired partly by political ambitions.

Count de Chambrun, a member of the New York and Paris bars, is just starting his law practice in the French capital. His mother is the former Clara Longworth, of Cincinnati, and his father won distinction as commander of colonial troops in north Africa prior to his retirement a year ago.

Bride Visited D. C. in 1931.

Mlle. Laval, familiarly called "Josette," has interested herself in her father's official affairs, often accompanying him on diplomatic journeys as his secretary. She visited the United States in 1931 when the premier conferred with former President Hoover.

Many members of Capital society are anxiously awaiting the return of Mrs. Nicholas Longworth to this country that they may hear first hand the story of the wedding of her late husband's nephew, Count Rene de Chambrun, and Mlle. Jose Laval. The wedding had been planned for Friday, hence yesterday's ceremony was a surprise.

Count de Chambrun and his bride will come to this country for their wedding trip, arriving in Canada next week, where they will visit for a short time before going to Cincinnati to spend some time at Rookwood, the Longworth estate, and to visit Count de Chambrun's aunt, Mrs. J. Buckner Wallingford, the former Miss Nan Longworth, who attended the wedding and who will return to her home in Cincinnati shortly.

MRS. NICHOLAS LONGWORTH, who was a guest at the wedding of her nephew and Mlle. Marie Jose Laval yesterday. Mrs. Longworth and her daughter Paulina, are house guests of Gen. and Mrs. de Chambrun.

GEN. JOHN J. PERSHING, who was a witness for Count Rene de Chambrun at the civil marriage in the Paris City Hall yesterday.

Principals in Wedding of International Interest

Count and Countess de Chambrun, whose marriage in Paris yesterday is of international interest. The bride, the former Mlle. Marie Jose Laval, is the only daughter of the Premier of France, M. Pierre Laval, and Count Rene de Chambrun is the son of Gen. de Chambrun and Mrs. de Chambrun, the former Clara Longworth, of Cincinnatti. Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, and her daughter, Paulina, went to Paris for the wedding, and are guests at the De Chambrun home there. Gen. John J. Pershing was one of the witnesses for the bridegroom. Count de Chambrun and his bride will come to the United States on their wedding trip, and will visit at the Longworth home in Cincinnati. The countess was here in 1931 when her father came to Washington for a conference with President Hoover. Through her marriage yesterday, the bride became a citizen of the United States.

The outstanding sports feature of the week is the battle for the Warmack Trophy, between the Greenbrire Juniors and the Seniors, the South's outstanding polo classic. Contenders for the trophy represent eight States, three universities and four of the leading Eastern and Southern polo clubs.

Colorful Silks Will Feature Fall Fashions

Slate Green, Ultra-Marine Blues and Copper Among Modish Hues.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Fashion designers have decreed silks, with plenty of color—including new slate green, copper and ultra-marine blues—for both evening and street wear this fall.

Greek influences in the so-called "anatomical" clothes, which reveal a strip of flesh between brassiere and skirt, will continue in vogue, while less stress will be placed on the irhams and saris of the Hindu mode.

The drape effect will predominate in evening gowns, which will be either of heavy, rich, stiee silk with a picturesque quality of old portraits or thin silk faille, heavily metalized in silver.

One designer, Elizabeth Hawes, predicted boyish, athletic figures shortly will vanish from the style books and that the coming season will be a big one for the "womanly woman."

Hips and stomachs have returned to fashion and waspish waists are here again. Derrieres will be natural instead of repressed and bosoms, Miss Hawes said, "will take care of themselves."

Some of the heavy silks being shown for evening wear are stiff enough to have almost the appearance of being whaleboned. Gleaming brocades with small flowers in delicate pastel colors scattered on a gold background are featured. The easy, flowing effect predominates.

Plain silks "on the spongy side" have attracted attention for daytime wear. Odd shades are prevalent. Among the favorites for fall are slate green and slate blue. There also is a new copper tone and a new, dark ultra-marine blue. Blacks are scarce.

New Fall Hats Feature 'Halo'

Off-the-Face Styles Still Lead in Fashion Revue at Paris.

By the United Press.

PARIS.—There is a sudden and definite backward movement in the few early fall hats which have been displayed here. The off-the-face tendency is stronger than ever, and the new hats seem to have added height as well, conveying the idea of a sort of combination halo and bonnet.

The combination of felt and velvet promises to be smart for fall, as will the combination of velvet and gros-grain. The new halo hats consist of a tight-fitting little skull cap, usually of velvet, with an upturned felt brim which is wider in front than in back. In some cases the skull cap is in the form of a crushed bandeaux which comes forward in a dip over the forehead. Cut-out felts may have a certain vogue here, judging from several early models on display.

Carrying out the same upward trend is an "aureole" hat from Agnes which was inspired by the exhibition here of pictures of the Italian Renaissance period. A crushed velvet bandeau forms a skull cap on which is placed an enormous flat disk of black grosgrain. But for the bandeau, which dips over the forehead, the hat has the effect of an exaggerated flat beret.

The increased height of hats and the exaggerated off-the-face trend will certainly bring about some changes in coiffure, probably that of bringing the hair down flatly to the ears again.

Miss Eaton, Mr. Buckley Are Married

Miss Elizabeth Maxwell Eaton, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Volney Eaton, became the bride of Mr. Michael Lester Buckley, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Buckley, of Washington, last evening at 8:30 o'clock in the Bethesda Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Stanley White, former pastor of the church, assisted by the Rev. John L. Parke, present pastor, officiated. The church was effectively decorated with pale pink gladioli and white hydrangea, intermingled with Australian fern and potted palms. On the altar were branched candelabra holding tall lighted tapers.

The bride, who was escorted and given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin made on princess lines. The jacket was of heavy white lace and from it fell the long fan-shaped train, also of lace. Her voluminous tulle veil was held in place by a cap of seed pearls from which fell a short face veil. She carried a shower bouquet of ivory roses with the faintest tinge of pink, and lilies of the valley.

Miss Frances Magruder, the maid of honor and only attendant, wore a gown of shell pink net made with a full skirt of ruffles which formed a medium length train and a shoulder cape of ruffles. Her hat was of soft blue tulle and her slippers were of the same shade. She carried an arm bouquet of deep pink roses and blue delphinium.

Mr. Jack Buckley was best man for his brother, and the ushers were Mr. Craig Stevens, Mr. Paul Smith, Mr. John Foley, and Mr. Frank McAlwee.

A reception followed the ceremony in the reception hall of the church. The young couple were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Eaton, mother of the bride, who wore a gown of Alice blue silk lace, pink accessories and a shoulder corsage of pink roses, and Mrs. Harry Oliver, aunt of the bridegroom, who wore a frock of white crepe and a corsage of gardenas and orchid gladioli.

Modeling Styles No Longer an Occupation to Invite Raised Eyebrows, Society Girl Says

This BUSINESS of LIVING

May Wedding Announcements Properly Be Ordered After Ceremony?

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I am planning to be married in the near future. It may be necessary to rush the ceremony, or it may be delayed, because of certain circumstances. Will it be correct to order announcements after the wedding—to be mailed at a later date?

Also, is it necessary that the names of both my parents be on the announcement? Both are living, but in different States, as they are separated. I shall appreciate an early reply in The Post. Sincerely yours, M. A. E.

* * * *

DEAR M. A. E.: Under the circumstances, it is entirely permissible to order announcements after the wedding. It is customary to use the names of both parents on wedding announcements, even when they are separated.

More Advice For "G. P."

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I happened to read your column by chance this morning (Friday, August 16), for the first time and was interested in the letter from "G. P.," who asked for suggestions on how to help her brother-in-law, a resident of a Middle Western State, find a steady job. She told that he had lost an arm, and suffered other injuries, in an automobile accident eight months ago, since when he has been dependent upon relatives for the necessities of life.

* * * *

This man's very misfortune may be the incentive to fit himself for special usefulness in life. Nature usually comes to the rescue of the victim of partial disability by sharpening the remaining faculties and enabling him to derive greater usefulness from them. By obtaining suggestions from vocational training experts, and exerting himself to the utmost to develop special talents, he may rise to new planes of achievement.

* * * *

I have observed that business men often give special consideration to the handicapped person who tries bravely to get located in a position where he can be realy useful especially in positions calling for dependability, loyalty and honesty.

* * * *

Offhand, I would say that he could supervise the same work he had been actually doing in the past. Also, there is a lot of use for reliable inspectors or checkers in factories, warehouses, stores, hotels, lumber yards and as timekeepers for such enterprises.

* * * *

Let him get some one to write him a good, short job-soliciting letter, pointing out that he is an alert and fully reliable man, qualified to check all waste and theft and otherwise keep the interests of the concern constantly in mind. Then let him mail or deliver that letter with all his references attached to the different business places. He should follow up his letter by regular visits unti he is placed, which should not be long if he keeps everlastingly at it, like a letter-carrier on his route. Let him keep all the time a confident and smiling face. People are not interested in whiners and grouches.

* * * *

After he gets his job he may improve his education by applying to the National Institute of Adult Education, Investment Building, Fifteenth and K streets northwest, Washington, D. C.

If the above should prove of any value to this man it will have been a pleasure to have been instrumental to that end. Very truly yours,

L. MIESES.

* * * *

DEAR L. MIESES: If "G. P." will call your letter to the attention of her brother-in-law, I'm sure it will prove of value, if only through opening his eyes to the fact that he can still be master of his fate and captain of his soul despite his handicap. Your suggestions for immediate action are sensible and practicable. Thank you for submitting them. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write to her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Changeable Hats Made To Fit Various Apparel

Paris (AP).—"Changeable hats" are here with the new winter fashions. They take their name from the fact that they can be worn in several different ways to fit different frocks. Marjorie Dunton makes them of felt or velvet with sugar-loaf crowns and brims which may be rolled away from the face and down in the back or down over the forehead and up in the back.

Jobs Demand Ability, Says Patty Parker

Habits Imperiling Beauty Quickly Spoil Career; Debs in Demand.

By Dudley Harmon.

TIME WAS WHEN the word "model" evoked visions of tall and slinky ladies who wore long jade earrings and looked at one mysteriously through beaded, half-closed lashes. Needless to say, these exotic creatures were supposed to reek of perfume, cover themselves with powder and rouge and lead a life generally spoken of in whispers as "fast."

However, according to Miss Patty Parker, Washington society girl who has made a distinguished success as a model in New York, modeling now offers as safe a career to young women as school teaching. Miss Parker, who is the daughter of Capt. Arthur W. Parker, Army officer stationed in this city, believes that to an ever increasing extent girls of culture and background are earning their living by posing for photographers and fashion shows.

Nor does the fact that a lady once takes up modeling mean that she goes haywire and begins to stay up late at night and smoke cigarettes through an ebony holder six inches long. "The prime requisites for modeling," as Miss Parker put it, "are youth, freshness and health. If a girl goes out night after night she naturally loses some of her bloom. So, while we do not by any means lead secluded lives, we're very careful to see that our evenings of fun do not occur too frequently or last too long."

Many From Well-to-do-Families

"In the John Powers agency, where I am employed," continued Miss Parker, "I should say that the majority of the models come from well-to-do families. Some of them have had a college education, and many of them are products of our most exclusive finishing schools. New York debutantes, particularly, are in great demand.

"And, in spite of what one might have heard in the past to the contrary, business is strictly business in the modeling profession. By that, I mean a girl gets ahead in this line through her ability and nothing else. In my year's career as a model I have never yet been asked for a date by the photographers, advertisers or manufacturers who employ me. In fact, the misguided girl who tries to advance her career by playing up to those for whom she works often finds herself blackballed by other members of the profession. We're on pleasant and friendly terms with our employers, of course, and they with us, but that's as far as it goes."

"In view of the controversy last winter as to whether or not society girls who model are depriving less wealthy mannequins of a living, do you believe that the wealthy girl thus takes the bread away from someone who really needs it?" Miss Parker was asked.

Miss Patricia Parker, Washington society girl, is one of many well-to-do young women to adopt modeling as a career. Miss Parker believes that the average woman can learn some valuable lessons from models in the art of wearing clothes.

"Decidedly not,'" she replied. "In the first place, no girl is going to get anywhere in this profession just because she is wealthy. Her money won't get her a bit further than the girl who hasn't any. It's purely and simply a matter of ability. There are plenty of models in New York right now who arrived at their present success without financial assistance behind them. Then, too, I don't think anyone should be deprived of the right to work, be she rich or poor. I know that I, and many like me, would be most restless and unhappy if we had no jobs."

Miss Parker, who is blonde, slim, and beautiful, entered her present profession purely by chance. One day she dropped into John Powers' studio with a friend who was a well-known model, and five minutes later was on her way to pose for a cigarette company. The field is pretty crowded, she said, but there is always room for the girl who photographs well.

"One of the nicest things about modeling," said Miss Parker, "is that one gradually learns more and more of the art of dressing. Not that everybody can acquire the chic of the average model, for there are people who are more or less born with the ability to look smart in almost any old rag, and there are others who can never achieve the same distinction, no matter how hard they try. But the average woman can improve her appearance enormously by attention to small details. Grooming is very important. Hair and fingernails must be kept in the pink of condition. And if a dress is put on carefully, with every button and snap in place, its wearer will have a certain chic even if the frock is old. A good carriage helps tremendously, also. They teach us models that a natural posture, with chin erect and stomach in, is the most graceful. Accessories count for a great deal, too. It is impossible to exaggerate the importance to the ensemble of gloves, hats, shoes and jewelry."

After a month's rest and relaxation in Washington, Miss Parker plans to return to New York to resume her career. In company with a friend who is also a model, she hopes to enroll for some night courses at Columbia University next winter.

Child Needs Guidance in Use of Leisure

Tolerance and Sympathy Most Helpful, Says Mrs. Bartlett.

Changed Standards of Living Increase Spare-time Problems.

The following article is the first in a series to appear Tuesdays and Saturdays on home activities for children. Mrs. Bartlett is active in Parent-Teacher groups and a member of the Y. W. C. A. camp board. She previously taught in the city and country and ethical culture schools in New York.

THE LEISURE of our children offers a challenge to the intelligence and originality of progressive parents. Changes in living standards, in our economic and our social life require a substitute for the interests and activities which were a part of every child's daily life a few years ago but which have been eliminated by our present city living.

What will our children do with the increased leisure brought them by these changed conditions; by the freed from routine and the more limited opportunities for exploration and experimentation which were possible when they had yards, fields, barns and woods in which to romp? Will they merely put in their time or will this leisure mean growth and development?

Fortunate Ones Go to Camp.

Some of the more fortunate sons and daughters may spend summer vacations in camps. At the end of the summer, these children, in addition to their coats of tan, may have developed real interest. They will have participated in the life of a social group larger than their own little family world and learned not only how to get along better with their fellowmen, but also something more about themselves.

But what about those children who may not be so fortunate as to have camp opportunities. Some one has said that true education lies in the discovery of our real selves? If this is true, we as parents not only have the responsibility for the physical care of our offspring, but also we must be aware of the opportunities for real education and growth in everyday situations? for education goes on all the time and not only on school days. Through experimentation in all his work and play the child finds himself, gains self-confidence and security.

We can help our children take fullest advantage of the many daily opportunities for growth if we have a tolerant attitude toward their "private lives;" if we encourage their budding interests. Movies, radios, the funnies, playgrounds all have their places but happy indeed is the child who has a real interest, creative, spontaneous, coming from within rather than being fed passively from without. An appreciation by the parents of the child's need for intelligent guidance and a few actual examples of how leisure time can be spent profitably and happily may help to solve a real problem in your home.

One of Delegated Tasks.

My own 11-year-old daughter spent an hour the other day taking care of her guppies and turtles. This is one of the responsibilities around the house which has been delegated to her. This task entails not only the physical care of the fish if she wants to keep them, but also study of the habits and care of guppies. After changing the water and feeding them on a recent occasion, she said, "It certainly makes a person feel good to do something for those little creatures." But her interest did not stop there. The gratification of accomplishment and the self-satisfaction of discharging the responsibility gave her real pleasure and she decided to find out how her friend Mary was taking care of her fish.

"Why mother," she said when she returned, "you should see the awful state I found Mary's fish in. The sea weed was all decayed and two fish had died."

Mary's mother doesn't like the fuss and mess which comes with Mary's care of the fish; she would rather do the job herself. Mary must always ask, "Mother is it time to feed the fish?" "Should the water be changed?" Her mother is cheating her out of the fun of caring for the pets and stultifying her initiative by restricting her responsibilities and limiting the decisions she is permitted to make. In every way Mary's mother has tried to have Mary profit by her mother's experience, not realizing that a child learns best through his own experiences and not through the experiences of his parents.

Self-Pitying Attitude Wrong.

Parents must consciously search for ways and means of fostering real growth in their children. They cannot take the self-pitying attitude that the children are around the house and underfoot all day long and wish for heaven's sake that they would find something to do. It is up to the parents to provide them at least with materials for experimentation. And it is just as cheap to buy blocks and crayons and paints and scrapbooks and clay as it is to buy candy or ice cream or gum.

Children try many things, so don't be discouraged if your son or daughter starts several projects and doesn't stick to them. He is learning all the while and growing along with his experimentation. Each effort will result in some new drive. Let him try sketching or modeling in clay or building a bird house or a rabbit hutch or starting some sort of a collection. With the materials available he may show his own interest, but if not, start the job with him. You may have hidden talents yourself and what fun it would be to strike upon something which would mean a new interest for you.

And don't forget that work and play should be wisely balanced and that interest building activities, those which end in the creation of some special tangible accomplishment, make for a most satisfying day and renewed vigor for the next.

Tourist Guide In Southwest Inviting Field

A NEW AND UNUSUAL career for young women is opening up in the Southwest, where to an ever-increasing extent girls are being employed as guides to explain to the visiting tenderfoot the racial and geographical history of the region.

The territory covered by these couriers, as they are called, occupies a third of the United States. It includes the deserts, mesas and mountains of the old West.

The girl who is chosen as courier must meet many qualifications. In the first place, she must be a college graduate. In addition, she is required to pass examinations in an intensive training course in archeology, history, Indian and Spanish folk lore, and the geography and geology of the Southwest. She must be able to answer any question which the visitor may ask concerning the history of the country or its landmarks and monuments.

Her territory is so vast that trips run from two-day tours to a month's cruise, which may include the Grand Canyon in Arizona, the Mesa Verde National Park in Colorado, and Death Valley in California.

She must see that the tourists in her care mingle and enjoy themselves, and she also attends to such details as making hotel and car reservations, paying bills, starting parties promptly and retrieving lost children.

Soft, Listless Voice Called The Antithesis of Charm

Women Seeking to Cultivate Such Tones Are Stamping Selves as Nonentities, Expert Asserts; Suggests Jingles to Test Speech.

WOMEN who cultivate soft, listless voices may believe they are developing charm but they are more likely making themselves nonentities. Monotonous downward inflections of voice have ruined many executive careers, believes Dr. Elizabeth D. McDowell, associate professor of speech at Teachers College, Columbia University, who has just completed a survey on speech based on case studies of New York children.

Speech habits largely determine the success of one's relationship with other persons, Dr. McDowell believes. She says: 'A harsh rasping quality of tone, plus a downward inflection with explosive driving stress in short, snappy phrases has few rivals in building up antagonisms."

For those doubtful about the quality of their voices Dr. McDowell has devised some test jingles. She says if a child or anyone else can recite them correctly without stumbling he need not worry about his speech mechanism. Here are some of the jingles.

"Are our cars here?"

"Man a wit is not a whit wittier than Whittier."

"The menu is not less important than the men you will meet."

"What kind of noise annoys an oyster? A noisy noise annoys an oyster."

How one talks is determined largely by the size and shape of his facial features, Dr. McDowell has discovered. Clear, lyrical voices she says belong to persons with clear-cut features. She cites President Roosevelt's voice as an example of the clear, resonant, warm type.

"Broadly speaking," says Dr. McDowell in her report, "there are two types of voices that fit opposite types of faces. The round, broad-faced, full-cheeked domed head goes with a low, rich, full contralto voice. The long-faced, thin-nosed type goes with the high, narrow voice."

No wide differences in pronunciation such as exist in England are found in the United States, says Dr. McDowell. Moreover, speech peculiarities here do not denote social castes.

Races Attract Record Entry Of Aviatrixes

MORE women fliers will take part in the national air races at Cleveland this year than ever before, reports the Associated Press. The races will be held August 30 to September 2.

Last year the women fliers complained bitterly that they were being discriminated against in the races by Clifford W. Henderson, managing director of the event. Henderson refused to let the women enter the races unless they met the qualifying tests. This they were unwilling to do.

This year, when plans for the races were being formulated, the airwomen got in touch with Henderson to see what would be done about them this time.

It didn't take Henderson long to make up his mind. The ladies are in—definitely.

Amelia Earhart Putnam is sponsoring a closed course race for women pilots, and Ruth Chatterton is sponsoring a Transcontinental Derby which is open to women.

Among the women eligible to participate are Mrs. Phoebe Omlie, Blanche Noyes, Laura Ingalls, Mae Haizlip, Jean La Rene, Betty Lund, Louise Thaden, Ruth Elder, Mrs. Robert J. Brooks, New York society matron; Viola Gentry, Helen Ritchie, Henrietta Lantz, Edith Fasterling, Mrs. M. T. Davis, Florence Lowe Barnes and Margaret Cooper—a veritable "who's who in feminine aviation."

Contest Brings Ingenious Ideas For Fruit Pies

Today's Winners Receive $1 Each; Recipes Entered for Grand Awards.

Berry pies in spring and early summer, peach pies in August and apple pies in fall, all with the standard, double crust, constitute the limits of desserts of this type served in many a family. Husbands and children of Post food page readers fare far better, the recipes submitted in last week's contest indicate. They display remarkable ingenuity in devising ways of combining pie crust and fresh with delicious efforts and verify the impression that good cooks abound in Maryland, Virginia and the Nation's capital.

Each of the 12 women whose recipes won prizes this week will receive checks of $1, and their suggestions will be filed for judging in the final contest. Meanwhile, the contest continues, with "Cold Puddings" as the topic.

The grand prizes, for the final contest, are offered by The Post in co-operation with the National Electric Supply Co. This company sells every kind of electrical kitchen convenience, and from its stock of splendid equipment, three items which any housekeeper will appreciate have been chosen as prizes. Readers who have been following the contest since its beginning know that the first award is a Sunshine Mixmaster. Second prize is a G. E. Hotpoint Coffee maker, and third is a Dominion electric sandwich grill.

FRESH CHERRY PIE.

- 2 cups cherries.
- 1 cup sugar
- ¼ teaspoon cinnamon
- Tiny taste of salt
- ¾ cup scalded milk
- 1 lightly beaten egg
- 1¼ tablespoons cornstarch
- 1 tablespoon fine, dry bread crumbs

Line medium-sized pie plate with pastry. Brush bottom of pastry with butter, sprinkle in bread crumbs, put in cherries, sprinkle with cinnamon and half of sugar. Mix remaining sugar with cornstarch and "tiny taste" of salt. (A "tiny taste" is a pinch I reckon.) Add egg, hot milk, mix well and pour over cherries. Bake in hot oven until edge begins to brown, then reduce heat. Bake till filling is firm.

BLUE PLUM PIE.

Mix a good biscuit dough, adding an egg, 2 tablespoons sugar. Roll and spread about one-fourth inch thick into a well-greased pie plate. Fill with the following:

Seed 2 pounds blue plums, lay open side up. Mix the following: One stick butter, 3 tablespoons of white or brown sugar, teaspoon of cinnamon, 1 tablespoon flour. Roll between hands until it forms crumbles, spread it over plums. Bake until crust is golden brown. No top crust. The above mixture forms nice glazing. Only to eat this pie can the recipe be appreciated.

- 1 scant cup sugar
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice.
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon

Pour ¼ cup milk in center of pie. Bake ten minutes at 450 degrees, then reduce heat to 400 degrees or a little less, and bake till apples are raised and soft—probably 40 minutes longer, depending on apples.

When green, tart apples are in season, such as Early Harvest, omit lemon juice. Cover pie with whipped cream if desired.

Sprinkle over the berries the brown sugar, flour, salt, and a little nutmeg, cinnamon and ginger. Before cutting incisions into the top crust, brush crust with white of egg. OLD VIRGINIA FRIED PIES

We Virginians are extremely fond of those delectable, crescent-shaped dainties, known in the Old Dominion as "Fried Pies." They are delicious in summer when made from fresh apples or peaches, and equally good in winter made from evaporated apples or peaches, mixed in equal quantities. When using fresh fruit, care must be taken to have the sauce extra dry as fresh fruit does not have the consistency of dried fruit. To use the fresh fruit recipe, proceed as follows:

- 2 cups apple sauce (extra dry) or
- 2 cups peach sauce (extra dry)
- biscuit dough

Cook fruit (whether apple or peaches) until tender. If peaches are used, pick out the softest and ripest ones. Use as little water in cooking as possible. Sweeten and season to taste. Cool thoroughly, and place in sieve to drain off all surplus juices.

Make plain biscuit dough. Pinch off small pieces for the required number of pies. Roll out in rounds about five inches in circumference, and slightly thicker than for ordinary pie crust. Place a heaping tablespoon of fruit on half the round of dough; fold over the other half to form a crescent or half-moon. Press edges firmly together with the finger tips so that no juices may escape. Place on wire egg beater or cake turner, and lower gently into deep hot fat, frying just as for French-fried potatoes. Turn several times while browning so the dough may cook thoroughly. Fry only one pie at a time. Drain on brown paper and serve while hot or still warm.

If the fruit sauce is prepared one day and the pies cooked the next, this is one of the quickest and best desserts imaginable.

RHUBARB PIE.

- 2 cups rhubarb
- 1½ cups sugar (level)
- 2 tablespoons flour (rounding)
- 2 tablespoons milk
- 2 teaspoons butter (heaping)
- ½ teaspoon salt (level).

Method.

Split and cut in inch lengths young rhubarb and pour boiling water over it and let it stand about 3 minutes and drain. Beat egg well and add to it the other ingredients, keeping the butter to cup up over the top just before crust is put on. Fill crust with rhubarb and pour thick mixture over, add butter and crust and bake in hot oven to start, then lower heat. Fine—rich.

Blush apple pie is a pastry dessert of outstanding merit, for it is not specially expensive, and it is extraordinarily delicious. Under the circumstances, this was an obvious winner among the recipes received, and since three persons submitted it, $1 has been awarded to each of them. They are Mrs. Charles Lavinus, 108 S. Royal street, Alexandria; Mrs. W. T. Fishback, 516 Wolfe street, Harrisonburg, Va., and Mrs. W. G. Wright, 29 Forrester street southeast. The recipe follows:

BLUSH APPLE PIE.

- 5 large apples
- 3 slices pineapple, cubed
- ¼ cup red cinnamon drops
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
- ½ cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons flour
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- 3 tablespoons shortening.

Peel and slice apples. Add pineapple, cinnamon drops and all dry ingredients. Mix well and let stand while preparing double crust proportions of pastry. Divide dough into two parts. Roll out lower crust. Line deep pie plate. Fill with apple mixture. Dot over with shortening. Roll out upper crust. Make criss-cross or whole crust, which ever you prefer, but slash whole crust to let steam escape. Dampen edge of lower crust before crimping edge. Bake in hot oven—450 degrees Fahrenheit—for 10 minutes. Reduce heat to moderate—350 degrees Fahrenheit—and bake 25 minutes longer.

Melons Everywhere, and They're Good!

South Carolina sent these delicious watermelons to Washington. The woman who believes in the old adage, "Waste not, want not," will serve watermelon for dessert today, and preserve the rind for use next winter.

Shell Should Be Thick and Crisp But the Variety Is Unimportant

Long or Round Type, Green or Striped, All Are Equally Good and Offer Opportunity for Making Sweet Preserves or Spicy Pickles.

By Dorothea Duncan.

The best watermelons of the season are here. There are long, slender ones from the eastern shore of Virginia, round, plump ones from South Carolina and numerous other varieties, some solid green and others striped, from every part of the South.

Which kind is best? The person who lives in a "watermelon State" more likely than not will favor the variety grown in that section and uphold it against all other kinds. But it is largely a matter of personal preference and for the average person who simply wants to enjoy good watermelon, if it is large and has crisp, red pink flesh, nothing else is really important.

Most of us trust to luck when we buy an uncut melon, but some dealers will offer to "plug" it, cutting a small square down through the rind to prove its quality. Brittle flesh with few fibers is a mark of quality. A good, average wright is from 20 to 30 pounds.

Conserved Watermelon Rind.

If you are buying watermelon for pickling or conserving the rind the variety is not important. It is necessary only to choose a melon with a thick, crisp shell.

The first of the two recipes that follow will appeal to the sweet tooth, for it is really a preserve. The second is sweet but spicy.

Use only the white of the rind, taking care to remove all the red and green. Cut rind in small squares or any fancy shapes you prefer. Cover pieces with cold water and add two teaspoons of powdered alum to each quart of water to make it firm. Let stand overnight. In the morning pour all the water off and cover with fresh water to which add one heaping tablespoon ginger. Boil one-half hour, remove pieces of rind and rinse in fresh water. Make sirup of three quarts water, five pounds of sugar and the juice of five lemons. Cut lemon skins in small pieces and add to sirup. Also add to sirup two tablespoons whole mace. Boil sirup about five minutes, then add six or seven pounds of melon rind and boil until clear and sirup thickens. Skim often. Fill clean hot jars full to the brim with fruit and sirup and make jars air tight.

Pickled Watermelon Rind.

- 2 pounds watermelon rind
- 2 pounds sugar
- 1 pint vinegar
- 1 pint water
- 1 lemon, sliced thin
- 1 tablespoon cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon cloves
- 1 teaspoon allspice

Soak the watermelon rind overnight in salt water (one-fourth cup salt to 1 quart water) Drain off the brine. Cook the watermelon rind in clear water until tender.

Make a hot pickling solution of the other ingredients, add the drained rind and boil it rapidly until it becomes clear. The spices should be tied in bags and removed before the pickle is bottled. Seal in clean, hot jars.

Green tomatoes, cut crosswise in thin slices, may be used instead of the watermelon rind.

To Use More Milk.

Cereals may be cooked with milk instead of water or part milk and part water. This is a simple way of introducing more milk into the diet and making the dish more nutritious. Children who refuse milk can be induced to eat cereal cooked in milk and served with cream and sugar.

Mexican Tray Bears Hors d'Oeuvres

A gay caballero carries pickles and olives in his hat and other hors d'oeuvres around the tray he stands on. This is only one of many ingenious devices the stores are showing for serving the accompaniments to cocktails.

Will You Have a Pig or a Swan To Adorn Your Cocktail Tray?

Shops Offer Veritable Menagerie of Decorative Effects and Clever Hostess Finds Many Tidbits for Serving as Hors d'Oeuvres.

Hors d'oeuvres are gaining wide recognition in this country, so it is small wonder that the gift shops and department stores are displaying an unusual and resplendent assortment of trays on which to serve them. Satiny metal and polished or painted wood, as well as china and pottery, are the materials used in fashioning these trays. One shop features a graceful swan in dull, nontarnishing metal. Its back literally bristles with multi-colored toothpicks and its cocky little head is made of red glass as round and bright as a marble

Another shop features a fat little pig made of Robin Hood wood. This little pig, with his back full of toothpicks, his gay painted applique of plaid spots and ears, comes fastened to a large wooden tray or unattached.

A Gay Caballero.

The Mexican influence crops out in the tray illustrated. The tray itself is made of polished natural wood and the dashing figure kneeling under his olive laden hat is made of wood painted in white with a dash of bright blue here and there. More somber figures appear on all white trays painted to give the wood a cracked effect, while still other figures combine bright reds, blues and greens against a tray of natural wood.

And what shall we serve on these smart looking trays? Let's start with the burden of the bristling tooth picks. There is a never ending array of olives: Some are stuffed with pimiento, others with celery, onions, almonds or anchovies. There are giant, green olives and large, purple, ripe ones. Some of the ripe ones are stuffed with pimiento or anchovies. Look for pickled baby watermelons, the size of your thumb. Sweet pickled cauliflower blossoms, burr gherkins and sour pickled onions also belong atop a toothpick.

Don't forget cocktail frankfurters that can be served hot or cold, liverwurst that comes in cocktail size or minute green sausages that must be served hot.

Crackers Are Varied.

On the tray you can serve any number of delectable tidbits. Here are just a few of the canapes or hors d'oeuvres that can be found in your grocery store. Get of box of Japanese wafers and sprinkle them about the stuffed pig or Mexican man. These wafers come in assorted shapes and have a hard, crunchy surface and a rich poppy seed flavor. Some are the size of black-eyed peas, others resemble peanuts in appearance, some are square and others look like tiny flowers.

You will find at least ten varieties of canape toast and several kinds of canape crackers. These are crisp and have a delectable flavor. Topped off with a bit of deviled or minced ham, anchovy paste, etc., and garnished with finely chopped parsley or sliced stuffed ripe or green olives, they make a most intriguing sight.

There are numerous other crackers for the woman who entertains simply. These need no spreading or garnishing, but can be served straight from box to tray. The slender cheese or whole wheat logs are dainty and do nicely for alcoholic as well as nonalcoholic cocktails.

For the names of shops selling the items mentioned in this story, write to Dorothea Duncan, in care of The Post, inclosing a stamped addressed envelope.

White of Egg Clarifies Soup as It Does Coffee

Soup stock may be clarified by the addition of egg white and egg shell. Allow one egg white and shell to one quart of stock. Crush the shell into small pieces and mix with the slightly beaten egg white. Heat the stock just enough to liquify it, if it is jellied. Thoroughly stir the egg white and shell into the stock. Heat to the boiling point, stirring constantly, then boil without stirring two to five minutes. Add a cup of cold water and set on the back of the stove to settle. Strain through two thicknesses of cheese-cloth.

Cheese Sauces Change Flavor Of Vegetables

The frequent use of eggs and cheese as a meat substitute for dinner or luncheon menus will add variety to your menus and will cut down the cost of your meals as well. During the warm weather especially, an abundance of meat is not necessary in the diet. Eggs, cheese and milk can be relied upon to supply the necessary amount of protein. Some of the important vitamins and minerals will also be supplied by this trio of dairy products, while others will be contributed by a generous use of fresh fruits and vegetables.

A cheese sauce will greatly enhance the flavor and appearance of many of the fresh summer vegetables. Hollandaise sauce, which uses egg yolks and butter in abundance, is by far the most superior sauce for a group of vegetables which includes asparagus, cauliflower and broccoli. A mock hollandaise sauce, which substitutes flour for some of the thickening power supplied by the egg yolks in a genuine hollandaise and adds a quantity of milk is also a delectable sauce, and can be served in place of a real hollandaise if you find the first too expensive.

The less pretentious vegetables, potatoes, cabbage, onions and turnips, lend themselves particularly well to escalloped or au gratin dishes. Here you are able to work milk and cheese into the diet in another attractive dish.

A mild American cheese will melt without becoming tough or stringy and for this reason is the favorite cheese for baked dishes and sauces. Eggs and cheese together form an interesting combination. On a particularly warm evening, serve poached eggs on toast smothered in cheese sauce, accompanied by a green vegetable or two. The eggs should be poached and placed on points of toast and masked with a cheese sauce which is merely a medium white sauce to which a small quantity of grated American cheese has been added. When preparing the sauce be sure to cook the white sauce thoroughly before the cheese is added. Have the sauce in the top of a double boiler over hot water. Stir in the finely cut cheese and keep stirring the cheese until the mixture is smooth. A bit of chopped pimento adds a pleasing flavor and the necessary amount of color.

Grilled tomatoes on toast points smothered with a rarebit sauce and served with one or two green vegetables also makes a tempting dinner for hot weather. Slice the tomatoes in quarter-inch slices, top with a few bits of butter and slip under the broiler until they are slightly soft. Turn once while cooking.

Beauty Expert Of Film Colony Moves to D. C.

By Dudley Harmon.

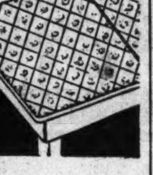
Substituting for Ruth Anne Davis.

HOLLYWOOD has moved to Washington! A man who for several years was make-up director and wave-giver for one of the largest film companies has recently opened a beauty shop on Connecticut avenue. Mary Pickford discovered him 12 years ago in Australia, and so delighted was she with his work that she brought him to this country. He spent some time as her special make-up man, and knows all there is to know about making ladies beautiful.

He is the one responsible for the make-up in that thriller of several years ago, "Frankenstein." We tell you this not to frighten you into thinking he will make a monster of you, but to show you how very, very clever he is. He recently won three cups at the International Hairdressers' Convention in New York, additional evidence that he is tops in his line.

His make-up treatments will make a different person of you. He blends colors and shades so skillfully as to smooth out hollows and reduce plump spots. After years of practice on the movie stars, he knows just how to bring out your best features. He can do wonders in the way of concealing lines and wrinkles. After several such treatments, you will learn enough about the art to carry on yourself.

Asbestos Mats for Kitchen.



THE household department of a downtown store is featuring some grand asbestos mats for the kitchen. They are ideal to place on stove, refrigerator, or table, and will prevent hot articles from burning. With one of these on the stove, dishes are completely protected from scorching. They also protect porcelain and other kitchen surfaces against scratches and chipping. The top is covered with oilcloth, which can be easily cleaned with a damp rag. The mats come in attractive patterns or in solid colors. The price is only 49 cents.

This unusual value comes in the following shades: Ivory, natural, beige, rosepetal, primrose, tan, brunette, and dark. It's of the finest quality, and is put out by a well-known cosmetics house. The powder has been taken through an expensive process to make it absolutely shineproof, so that no matter how warm the day, you need never fear that your nose is gleaming beacon-like on those around you.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

Leprosy.

THE fact that there are relatively few localities in which leprosy is found in the United States—certain small areas in Louisiana, Minnesota and South Carolina—does not exclude the possibility of the existence of sporadic cases that may occur along the seacoast due to immigration from countries where the disease is more common. Reports that are considered reliable indicate that leprosy is increasing somewhat in Argentina. At the present time leprosy is a real problem in other parts of South America and in the Orient.

Nevertheless, an increase in our country is improbable unless quarantine regulations become notably lax. Bad hygienic conditions and unfavorable surroundings undoubtedly have much to do with the spread of the condition. Physicians and nurses who work in leper colonies are seldom attacked, although a few dramatic cases are on record of scientists who have lost their lives in this manner.

There is probably no disease which has such an unpleasant history. It dates back as far as 3000 B. C., at which time it was prevalent in Egypt. It was well known to the early Hebrew writers, although the description in Levitcus, no doubt included numerous other skin diseases. The writers of the Old Testament took no chances. Anything that resembled leprosy was so classed and, as a consequence, the disease acquired an unsavory reputation which was not entirely justified. It has been estimated that there were 20,000 leper colonies in Europe following the crusades, and certainly the disease was much more prevalent during the middle ages than at present. Perhaps this segregation or quarantine had much to do with the decline of the malady.

The causative organism resembles in many ways the tubercle bacillus, and it is possible that the bacillus enters the body through abrasions of the skin or the mucous membrane. Insects, particularly the bedbug and the mosquito, have been under suspicion as possible agents in the spread of the infection.

Every now and then an individual case of leprosy will be found by some alert health officer and identified by the typical lesions or by finding the bacillus of leprosy in the skin nodules, in discharges from ulcers, or in the mucous lining of the nose and throat.

The disease may assume two forms. The one called "nodular" is characterized by the formation of lumps in the skin, usually in groups, which develop most commonly on the feet, the face and the backs of the hands. As the disease progresses thickened areas of skin will appear on the forehead, in the region of the eyebrows, and on the ears, cheeks, nose and about the mouth. The so-called "anesthetic" form is recognized by large, flat patches that may be distributed evenly on both sides of the body. These patches exhibit a smooth surface and in appearance they often simulate other skin diseases. The areas are at first extremely sensitive, but as the disease progresses all sensation is lost because of destruction of the skin nerves. Injuries and burns may then occur without the patient's knowledge.

The outlook in advanced cases is not hopeful. However, under proper treatment lepers may live a normal span of life. Chaulmoogra oil and its derivatives have been used extensively and seem to be the best therapeutic agents known at this time.

Individuals afflicted with leprosy should be isolated. Every precaution that is exercised in the care of the tuberculosis patient should be redoubled in leprosy.

Some day a skin test for leprosy similar to the tuberculin test for tuberculosis will probably be developed.

There are times when the defending side must grab tricks while it may, but every so often the inscrutable gods of chance distribute the cards so that it is the best defense for a player to refuse to win a trick, even though it may conceivably mean he may never be able to cash it.

In today's hand East recognized such a situation and by restraining the natural urge to win one trick eventually enabled his side to gain two.

1—North might have opened with one notrump on his 4-3-3-3 distribution. With five honor-tricks, however, he gave the preference to the spade call.

2—Having made a minimum response and received a very encouraging raise to two notrump, South with an honor in every suit decided to gamble for game.

The Play.

West opened the Jack of hearts, which declarer properly ducked in both hands. A low heart was continued and South was faced with the problem of deciding in which hand to win the trick. The extreme scarcity of entries to his hand dictated the play of the King from dummy. Attempting to create a second in-card, declarer led a low spade from the Ace-King. East played low and South the Jack, which West won with the Queen, returning a third heart. South won this with the Ace and determined that although there was but faint hope of bringing in the suit, the diamonds offered the only possibility of making contract. He therefore led a low diamond, and hope blossomed when West played the Queen. North's King forced East's Ace. East exited with a spade, which was won by the King in dummy, and the seven of diamonds returned.

Here East made his brilliant play. He realized the play of the nine of diamonds would insure a diamond trick, but he gave South due credit, and knew that that player would allow the nine to hold and later finesse against the ten. He therefore played the four of diamonds, allowing the seven to win in dummy and made certain he could still control the diamond suit, because he had a fourth round winner and his play effectively blocked declarer out of his hand.

Making only two tricks in diamonds instead of the three for which he had hoped, there was no way for declarer to win more than eight tricks, although he played for the one remaining chance, a squeeze against West if that player had held both the Queen and Jack of clubs. West had discarded one spade on the second round of diamonds, but on the third round, which declarer won with the Jack, he discarded a low club, and South was helpless.

COMMEMORATING an outstanding construction achievement, the twenty-first anniversary of the operation of the Panama Canal by the United States has just been observed.

Lodge No. 88, A. F. G. E., of Cristobal, Canal Zone, makes the following report in the current issue of the Government Standard:

"The Panama Canal, unlike many other governmental activities, is a profitable enterprise. After paying all expenses for first-class maintenance and operation, including many improvements to property and equipment, large sums are turned into the United States Treasury each year.

"The Canal Zone has no political government as that term is understood in the United States. The laws and regulations in effect in the Canal Zone are based upon acts of Congress relating to the construction, operation, sanitation and government of the Canal and the Canal Zone, and these acts frequently give wide powers to the President of the United States in carrying out the purposes of the acts of Congress, with the result that a large number of executive orders covering many details have been issued, and these have the effect of law in the Zone. None of the Federal laws in the United States applies to the Canal Zone unless that is specifically provided therein. No officer in the Canal Zone is elected by the residents ,and no votes can be cast by the Americans in the Zone for any officer of the United States Government. In this respect the Zone is like the District of Columbia. The Governor, who is appointed by the President, is the chief executive in charge of the Panama Canal and the government of the Zone.

"The American employes are from all parts of the United States. Nearly all of them are married and have their families in the zone.

"So far as Americans are concerned, there is only one employer in the Canal Zone and that is the United States Government. Employes receive their appointments in the United States. If, after their arrival, they find the work unsuited to them, there is no other firm or employer to whom they might apply for work; they must either stay with the canal or go back to the United States."

Wallace Flees Food Strikers' Plea for Slash

Feminine Logic Too Much for Secretary as Group Cites High Prices.

By the United Press.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace tried politely to explain his cattle and hog reduction program to some Detroit housewives yesterday but their only reply was that meat prices were too high. In the face of this feminine logic he grabbed his hat and departed as gracefully as possible.

"How about that investigation of meat prices?" Mrs. Mary Zuk, the leader, called after him.

Wallace closed the door behind him as if he had not heard.

There were five housewives in the delegation. The others were Mrs. Irene Thompson, Pearl Alterman, Katherine Mudra and Elizabeth Moss.

They described themselves as the Detroit delegation of farm women of the Central Action Committee Against the High Cost of Living. They made a bee-line for the office of AAA Consumer's Counsel Calvin Hoover.

Mrs. Zuk, spokeswoman, wasted no time in getting to the point. She said the housewives wanted:

1. Immediate investigation of Detroit meat packers.
2. Prosecution of packers found guilty of profiteering.
3. A flat 20 per cent reduction in all meat prices as of July 15.

Their argument was that the Government was to blame for high meat prices because it had "destroyed millions of head of cattle, introduced the processing tax, and refused to aid the farmers during the drought."

In addition, they complained, the money raised through the processing taxes had been "gobbled up by the bankers, loaners and mortgage holders."

"And," said Mrs. Zuk, "the packers boosted prices sky high."

While Hoover was facnig the fire of charges Wallace arrived. He noticed that newspaper correspondents were busy taking notes.

"We can't have a frank discussion," he suggested to Mrs. Zuk, "with the press present."

"We would rather have an open discussion," replied Mrs. Zuk with a finality that settled that point.

"Is the Government going to see that meat prices are reduced 20 per cent?" Mrs. Zuk demanded.

No guarantee Possible, He Says.

"Under drought conditions it is impossible to guarantee future meat prices," Wallace said. "If prices are higher in Detroit than elsewhere, an investigation might accomplish something."

"Why does the Government pay farmers not to raise little pigs?"

"The Government is only concerned with not raising pigs for European consumption, a market that no longer exists," said Wallace. "Do you think farmers are making too much money?" he added.

"Not at all," said Mrs. Zuk. "But meat prices have gone up. The packers have made money. We don't think there is any excuse for these high prices."

Wallace reminded the women that Congress has pending a resolution by Representative John D. Dingell (Democrat), Michigan, to investigate meat prices, but he saw another barrage of questions was coming. He reached for his hat and left.

Mrs. Zuk was indignant when she was told Representative Clarence Cannon (Democrat), Missouri, had suggested packers had inspired the group's protest against processing taxes.

"That's a dirty lie," she said, "and we intend to tell Mr. Cannon so. Our expenses were paid in pennies, nickels and dimes from Detroit housewives. It was money saved by not buying meat."

Supply, Demand Cited.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—The lever under the price of meats is the old economic statute—the law of supply and demand—representatives of the packers said today.

All the big Chicago meat processing concerns declined any direct answer to the statement of aroused Detroit housewives, who carried their demand for a 20 per cent cut in meat prices to Washington.

The packers, accused by the delegation of boosting values sky high with governmental encouragement, were quick to disclaim responsibility. They asserted an investigation of their industry, as asked of AAA authorities, would bear out their claim that prices are "simply dependent on the flow of livestock to market."

"If we could buy livestock for less, we could sell the meat for less, and that's all there is to it," they agreed.

Chicago Wives Irate.

By the United Press.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—Irate housewives threatened today to "mobilize half the women of Chicago" in a butcher shop boycott unless meat prices are slashed 20 per cent within the next two weeks.

The ultimatum of a meat strike, laid down by a women's organization calling itself the "United Conference Against the High Cost of Living," carried with it the threat of a "meatless march" on the great sprawling Union Stockyards.

"The meat packers are hiding behind the Government's skirts," Mrs. Dinah Ginsberg, head of the united conference, announced with a flourish of a clenched fist.

"It's the packers, not the Government, that are to blame," she added. "Look at the packers' profits —$3,000,000 in 1932 and $8,000,000 already this year."

River, Harbor Bill Is Sent to Senate

House Adopts Conference Report on Measure.

By the Associated Press.

A measure to authorize $614,000,000 in river and harbor improvements in every part of the Nation cleared the next to the last hurdle last night on the way to the White House.

Only Senate acceptance of a conference report adjusting differences with the House over the legislation was required to let the bill go to the President's desk for signature.

Included in the authorizations are scores of projects estimated to cost $421,512,907 for which the Public Works Administration already has allotted $288,020,549 and $106,655,666 for which no funds have been earmarked.

The House prepared the way for final Senate action by adopting the report and then agreeing to a disputed Senate amendment to authorize the $63,000,000 Grand Coulee project in the Columbia River and the $13,000,000 Parker and $10,000,000 proposed Head Gate Rock dams on the Colorado River.

K. of C. Convention To Hit Communism

Resolution Due Tomorrow at N. Y. Session.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 19.—Sharp criticism of Mexico's policy toward Catholics and the spread of Communism in the United States will be embodied in resolutions at the annual convention of the Knights of Columbus, opening tomorrow, Martin H. Carmody, of Grand Rapids, Mich., supreme knight, said tonight.

"This convention will express in the strongest possible language its protest against religious intolerance in Mexico," Carmondy said.

Bishop Francis Clement Kelley, Bishop of Oklahoma City and Tulsa, Okla., authority on the Mexican situation, will address the supreme convention on conditions in that country Wednesday afternoon.

The organization's united opposition to communism may lead to the voting of an appropriation to combat the current growth of Bolshevism in America, Carmody said.

Alfred E. Smith, former Governor of New York, will speak at a "victory dinner" tomorrow night.

Jilting Blamed For Girl's Leap At Roof Party

Night Club Waitress and Man Who Tried to Save Her Will Recover.

A young woman, believed despondent over the loss of a sweetheart, and a man who attempted to rescue her as she leaped from the balcony of the Hangar Club, in nearby Arlington County, were recovering from serious injuries in Emergency Hospital last night.

The woman, Miss Fern Moesta, 27, of the 1200 block of L street, pretty night club waitress, is suffering from a fractured skull, received when she hurtled from the balcony toward the Airport Pool, and struck the cement runway between the pool and the balcony, instead.

The man, William S. Tipton, 45, of the 600 block of F street northeast, received a strained leg and a broken wrist when he fell to the concrete after losing his balance in an effort to save her.

Both were rushed to the hospital from the club after they were injured early yesterday morning. Police were told by Miss Jessie Richardson, roommate of Miss Moesta, that the latter was despondent over a quarrel with her sweetheart, and that a waiter at the club where she works, who had gone on the party, teased her about it.

She threatened to jump into the pool, Miss Richardson said, and when she was dared to do so, she leaped from the balcony, 17 feet above the concrete.

Standing nearby, Tipton, a stranger, made a plunge for Miss Moesta in an effort to save her. He caught her just in time to be pulled down with her.

Physicians said both victims would recover.

G.O.P. Chief Wants Purge For Virginia

Treasurer of Young G.O.P. Clubs of State Takes Glass to Task.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Aug. 19.—Randolph Leigh's opposition to Senator Carter Glass will only "add rage to confusion," Oliver K. Brooke, treasurer of the Virginia Young Republican Clubs, said here today.

He declared announcement of the Fairfax Citizen that he will oppose the veteran Virginia Senator denotes "a confused condition of Democratic politics in Virginia," and urged a "purging" by two strong parties.

"Leigh should be too proud to join its ranks with his indictment of the party,'" Brooke said.

"Proud of his Virginia heritage, Leigh should remember the independence and pride of opinion which placed Marshall and Jefferson in different political parties and which so marked his ancestors. In a most expedient manner, Virginia gave the Nation the principles of the two-party system. Today, Virginia needs to know again these very principles. Virginia needs the purging that will come when a union of the bona fide forces of opposition is effected, providing a channel for progressive political action.

"Both Byrd and Glass are irretrievably committed against the New Deal," Brooke asserted. "Virginia Republican leaders have repeatedly pointed out the "inconsistency" of the one-party system.

"This illusion of democracy in Virginia must be challenged. The Republican Party in Virginia is not the party of the utilities and vested interests, what with Byrd and Peery so zealously guarding their interests * * *"

He said young Republican activities are growing with the purpose of breaking "the unthinking sectional solidarity in this State and in the South."

Glass Silent on Rival

By the Associated Press.

Announcement by Randolph Leigh, of Fairfax, Va., that he would oppose Senator Carter Glass for renomination by the Democrats next year yesterday drew from the veteran Virginia Senator "no comment"—other than:

"I do not konw Mr. Leigh."

In an announcement Sunday, Leigh said his candidacy was grounded on a belief that "Roosevelt represents the one way out for America," and that "if Roosevelt is to carry Virginia in the general election, Glass must be defeated in the primaries."

Power Company Wins Thirty Year Franchise

By the Associated Press.

Winchester, Va., Aug. 19.—Becoming lukewarm on the question of a municipal plant, the city of Winchester has granted a 30-year franchise to the Northern Virginia Power Co., subsidiary of the Potomac-Edison Co. The grant does not give the company an exclusive right.

Veteran observers of municipal affairs today said there was little prospect for the erection of a municipal plant, despite intermittent flares of sentiment calculated to show how taxpayers could save money thereby.

Train Service On South Shore Ends Tuesday

President of New B. & A. R. R. Announces Final Abandonment.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 19.—There will be no rail service over the South Shore Division of the present Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis Railroad after midnight Tuesday, Harry T. Connolly, president of the new Baltimore & Annapolis Railroad, said today.

Earlier it had been thought that the B. & A., which will operate the old Short Line route, might run some of its trains via Naval Academy Junction until September 15, when this section will be turned over to the new owners.

The bridge over the Severn River on the North Shore route is to be strengthened. Trains may continue to pass over the bridge while this is being done, or passengers may be brought over the Severn in buses on the highway bridge.

Connolly's announcement removes the last hope of persons living along the South Shore line that partial operation might be continued while the bridge is being strengthened.

Connolly also said that the present railroad shops located at Odenton, Md., will be moved to the Bladen Street Station of the old system in Annapolis.

He said that the contract for reinforcing the Severn River and other bridges on the North Shore line had been let to the Empire Construction Co. of Baltimore.

Money for this work was procured from the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, which has agreed to lend $250,000 to the new company. State Senator Ridgely P. Melvin, of Anne Arundel County, is to be a member of the six-man board of directors of the new line.

Connolly also said that the B. & A. has not yet decided whether it will extend its service to Crownsville, where a State hospital is located.

Trains on the W. B. & A. main line between Baltimore and Washington will stop after the 12:30 a. m. train Wednesday morning. The service between Naval Academy Junction and Annapolis will stop at the same time.

The North Shore division will be continued by the new company with the present schedule and using the present terminal.

Cessation of the W. B. & A. operations follows two receiverships for the company. The first trains ran on the line in February, 1908. It was recently sold in parts at a foreclosure sale.

Judge Names First of Three Commissions

Body Which Is to Condemn 20,000 Virginia Acres Begins Work.

By the Associated Press.

Waynesboro, Va., Aug. 19.—The first of three commissions named to condemn approximately 20,000 acres in five Valley and Blue Ridge counties for Federal parklands began its work here today.

The commissioners, named by Judge John Paul, of the United States District Court of Western Virginia, to determine the value of 4,494 acres in Augusta and Nelson counties, were sworn in by Postmaster J. Frank Harper today in the presence of Howard C. Gilmer, jr., of Pulaski. Gilmer is an assistant of Joseph Chitwood, United States district attorney.

Two other commissions, to fix the value of other prospective parklands in Nelson, Amherst, Rockbridge and Bath counties, will be sworn and start work by September 19.

One group will meet at Millboro Springs postoffice Monday to begin a valuation survey of 15,647 acres in Bath County. A third commission will be sworn in September 19 at Lovingston to set a valuation on 1,528 acres in Nelson, Amherst and Rockbridge counties.

The condemnation proceedings began in Bath County are against the Tidewater Oil Co. and others.

19 New Cases Of Paralysis Hit Virginia

Eight Taken Ill in One County, Albemarle, Over Week-End.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 19.—Albemarle County again took a prominent place in the State's infantile paralysis situation today as the State health department reported 19 cases over the week-end, eight of them from Albemarle.

One county, Franklin, reported its first of the present outbreak. Other new cases were distributed as follows: Alleghany County, one; Amelia County, one; Louisa County, one; Bedford, one; Chesterfield, one; Rockingham, one; Tazewell, two, and the city of Roanoke, two.

Instructions from Dr. I. C. Riggin, State health commissioner, were sent today through officials here to case workers that they avoid homes where there is a "suspicious illness" as a precaution against infantile paralysis. The workers were told to report any suspicious illnesses they found immediately so investigations could be made.

In addition, health authorities have decreed that children of that age be kept away from public gatherings, Sunday schools shall be closed, and all public swimming pools drained.

Auto Driver Is Held In Death of Passenger

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 19.—Walter Dodd, of Hartwood, Stafford County, was held for the grand jury today following an inquiry by Trial Justice R. H. L. Chichester into the death of Carlin Cropp, 22, of Cropp, Va., in an automobile-truck collision, August 4, near Dumfries, on U. S. Route 1.

Cropp was a passenger in a machine driven by Dodd when it ran into the rear of a truck. Cropp was thrown from the car and run over, dying a few minutes later. Walter Mattson, of Swedesboro, N. J., driver of the truck, was exonerated.

Sherwood Anderson Praying For Bold, Daring Leadership

By the Associated Press.

Marion, Va., Aug. 19.—Sherwood Anderson, deeply occupied here in the editing of two weekly newspapers, believes men want daring, bold leadership, and prays: "God, grant it won't be cheap!"

"I think," said the author of Winesburg, Ohio — a chronicle of the common man of two decades ago—"That 100 years from now men will look back on this age as a dark age in human thought, when men tried to explain all the mystery of existence by the laws of economics."

Anderson became the owner of his weeklies through royalties from his books. He has no political label himself and he divides the policies of his papers. One is Republican, the other Democratic.

"A new Lincoln," he said, "may be the thing most needed.

"I think most of what Abe Lincoln called 'common people' must be as I am. When I talk to most radicals I'm strong for capitalism and individualism, but when I talk to most capitalists I'm hot for the radicals.

"Men are a good deal lost in our time," he went on. "They have lost the sense of being a part of the big complex thing in which we seem to be caught. They want that—to feel a part of something big going on.

"Until the turn of the century there was such a feeling. I do think that feeling is lost.

"The twists of finance, legislation and its effect, all the mysteries of government. Do not blame the people of small towns and the farmers that they do not understand.

"Do you, do I, did the big men, so-called, who made the peace after the World War know what they were doing? I think not."

Guard Units Start Moves In War Game

29th Division Trains in Pennsylvania for Area Maneuvers.

'Attack' on Railroad Is Feature of First Day's Action.

By Phil Austensen.

Camp Reckford, Mount Gretna, Pa., Aug. 19.—First taste of the rigors of warfare today was given members of the Twenty-ninth Division of the National Guard in camp here as part of the training which will culminate with participation in Third Corps area maneuvers next week.

Droning airplanes from the Twenty-ninth Division aviation soared overhead and cooperated with battalions of the Twenty-ninth Division engaged in a mimic contest for the possession of a rail at Pattison's Hill near Colebrook, Pa.

The position was defended by the second battalion of the First Infantry, commanded by Maj. Edward McK. Johnson, who in civil life is captain and commander of the Maryland State Police.

Three battalions attacked the position with the intent of capturing and holding the rail head until a detail of engineers arrived to destroy the important line of communication of the enemy.

Strong Position.

The three battalions, each of which attacked separately, were the Third Battalion, First Infantry, commanded by Maj. S. P. Fuller, Crisfield; First Battalion, First Infantry, commanded by Maj. W. A. Harward, Belaire, and the First Battalion, Fifth Infantry, Maj. Foster Davis, of Baltimore.

Each major directed his own attack and was on his own initiative. The position actually was a strong one for the defending force because the defense was on an elevation with clear fields on front and flanks and except through absolute necessity the attack would not be made with equal forces but for the purpose of the meaneuver it was assumed necessary to attack with the small force.

Civilians Watch.

The rattle of rifle and machine gun fire attracted a number of civilian spectators who watched the troops advance and attack.

The maneuver was observed by Brig. Gen. Washington Bowie, Baltimore, commander of the Fifty-eighth Brigade, and his staff, who acted as umpires.

Today's battles will be repeated tomorrow on a larger scale when a regiment will attack the same position defended by a battalion. Artillery may be used to support the attack.

The Second Battalion, First Infantry, Maj. Harry E. Flook, Cumberland, and the Third Battalion, Fifth Infantry, Maj. Franz Rasmer, Baltimore, fired combat range today. Lieut. J. B. Schindel, Washington, was in command of the pits.

Divisional athletic events were held this afternoon in Oury Bowl at camp.

Officers of the 110th Field Artillery entertained tonight at Hotel Conewago in honor of Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, commanding general of the Twenty-ninth Division, and Mrs. Reckord. Officers of the division were guests.

Quarantine Lifted.

Evidence of the strict supervision on troops' health being exercised in the second line of defense in the Nation's largest peace time maneuvers was demonstrated today by prompt quarantine of the Sixth Field Artillery when a case of tonsilitis appeared.

First report of the illness of a member of the regiment showed symptoms that might indicate infantile paralysis. The quarantine was lifted however when it developed that the man's illness was tonsilitis.

Maneuvers in Virginia.

By the Associated Press.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 19.—Long-range firing and brigade combat problems in which many types of weapons were used, occupied infantrymen of the Ninety-first Brigade, Virginia National Guard, today on the first week-day of their two weeks' training period at the State military reservation at Virginia Beach.

Long-range firing will be in order tomorrow again. The two regiments comprising the brigade, the First and 116th are alternating on the range. Beginning tomorrow, the two regiments will engage in larger and larger problems until the entire brigade is in action at once.

Maryland WPA Announces Aid Awaits Pupils

Colleges Notified by Dryden of Terms Required for Federal Help.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 19.—Maryland colleges have been notified that the Federal Government is willing to give $15 a month aid to a limited number of students, Francis H. Dryden, Maryland Works Progress Administration head, said today.

The money is made available from WPA funds through the National Youth Administration. Additional money will be available to provide help for poor students in high schools, it was said.

The total amount allotted to any college will be $15 per month per student for 12 per cent of its enrollment in October, 1934. In case some students do not need the entire $15 allotment, up to $20 per month may be paid to other students.

The money will be paid directly by the Federal Government on pay rolls made up by the institutions. Students will be required to do "socially desirable" work for the school, but will not be allowed to work more than 30 hours per week. They may do research or extension work, but will not be allowed to do work which is normally done with school funds.

Federal aid may be extended only to those students who would be unable to attend the institutions without it. If any school does not require aid for its full quota of students, the surplus of its funds may be transferred to help students in other schools in the State.

Aid for students in high schools will be limited to those whose families are on relief. The number to be helped is limited to 7 per cent of the total number on relief in May, 1935. And the amount of relief is limited to $6 per month. Only those between 16 and 25 are eligible.

Waynesboro, Va., Aug. 19 (AP).—Injuries received when he was struck by an automobile near his home last night proved fatal today to James Argenbright, 88, of Greenville, in August County.

Sheriff Frank Armstrong said the man got out of an automobile and started across the road directly in front of a car driven by A. T. Lloyd, a Roanoke attorney. Lloyd's car was badly damaged when he swerved from the highway in an effort to avoid hitting the man. No charges were placed against him, pending a hearing tomorrow.

Maryland State Police to Use Planes in Pursuing Bandits

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 19.—Maryland State police are ready to take the air in case of grave necessity, Maj. J. Purdon Wright, superintendent of the State force, announced today.

Maj. Wright has made arrangements with Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord for the use of the National Guard planes in emergencies. A squadron of six planes is kept at Logan Field, Baltimore, and two pilots are always available. Each plane can carry three policemen in addition ot the pilot, and is armed with machine guns.

Under the new arrangements, the State force can have six men in the air and on their way to any part of the State within 25 minutes of the time they are called for. An additional 12 men can be dispatched in the other four planes within two hours.

Not only will the planes be available to transport police, but they also can be used to spot fleeing bandits in cars. By circling over the car once it has been sighted other policemen can be sumoned, or machine-gun fire directed from the air.

Use of the National Guard planes will be limited to the most serious emergency, and must be ordered by Maj. Wright or someone with specifically delegated authority.

It was pointed out that the Michigan State police, for example, have their own force of planes, owned by the department and piloted by regular policemen. Planes have been used before to locate fleeing bank robbers and other criminals, but this service will be speeded up with arrangements already made.

Nice to Call Lawmakers In February

Decision Follows 2-Day Trip on Bay With State Senators.

Kimble Announces Plan for Income Tax Bill Based on U. S. Scale.

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Aug. 19.—With two days of conferring, cruising and fishing behind them, members of the Maryland State Senate and other State officials disembarked here today from the State yacht du Pont after a week-end cruise on the Chesapeake.

Chief developments of the week-end were:

That Gov. Nice probably will call the Legislature into special session next February rather than next March. The special session is needed because the 1 per cent gross receipts tax, Maryland's only means of providing funds for relief and old-age pensions, expires next March 31.

That the Governor asked the Senators to limit introduction of bills at the special session to measures dealing with relief measures. Old-age pensions, voting machines and permanent registrations so as to avoid clogging the files with local measures.

That Senator Milton L. Veasey, of Worcester (Democrat), announced he would sponsor legislation which would require all local subdivisions of the State, county and city, to carry their share of the relief load. Such a share, Veasey explained, would be "not less than 25 per cent."

That Senator Robert B. Kimble, of Allegany (Republican), announced he would favor a State income tax of 15 per cent of the Federal rate. Such a tax, Kimble estimated, would produce $6,000,000 annually if levied on money actually earned in Maryland.

Gov. Nice said it was practically definite that he would call the special session early next year. Either in the last week in January or the first week in February.

He said the suggestion of Senator Raymond E. Kennedy (Democrat), Fifth District, Baltimore, that pressing discussions of important problems he held had met with favorable reaction. No definite plans were made to carry out this program.

A desire seemed apparent on the part of the Senators to reduce the session to as short a time as possible to pass essential legislation. In line with this, Gov. Nice urged the legislators to agree to limit bills to subjects such as relief taxation, old-age pensions, voting machines and permanent registration.

The prospect of a hard battle over relief and old-age pension revenue raising measures appeared in prospect because of the varying opinions as to the proper methods of taxation.

Train Service On South Shore Ends Tuesday

President of New B. & A. R. R. Announces Final Abandonment.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 19.—There will be no rail service over the South Shore Division of the present Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis Railroad after midnight Tuesday, Harry T. Connolly, president of the new Baltimore & Annapolis Railroad, said today.

Earlier it had been thought that the B. & A., which will operate the old Short Line route, might run some of its trains via Naval Academy Junction until September 15, when this section will be turned over to the new owners.

The bridge over the Severn River on the North Shore route is to be strengthened. Trains may continue to pass over the bridge while this is being done, or passengers may be brought over the Severn in buses on the highway bridge.

Connolly's announcement removes the last hope of persons living along the South Shore line that partial operation might be continued while the bridge is being strengthened.

Connolly also said that the present railroad shops located at Odenton, Md., will be moved to the Bladen Street Station of the old system in Annapolis.

He said that the contract for reinforcing the Severn River and other bridges on the North Shore line had been let to the Empire Construction Co. of Baltimore.

Money for this work was procured from the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, which has agreed to lend $250,000 to the new company. State Senator Ridgely P. Melvin, of Anne Arundel County, is to be a member of the six-man board of directors of the new line.

Connolly also said that the B. & A. has not yet decided whether it will extend its service to Crownsville, where a State hospital is located.

Trains on the W. B. & A. main line between Baltimore and Washington will stop after the 12:30 a. m. train Wednesday morning. The service between Naval Academy Junction and Annapolis will stop at the same time.

The North Shore division will be continued by the new company with the present schedule and using the present terminal.

Cessation of the W. B. & A. operations follows two receiverships for the company. The first trains ran on the line in February, 1908. It was recently sold in parts at a foreclosure sale.

Judge Names First of Three Commissions

Body Which Is to Condemn 20,000 Virginia Acres Begins Work.

By the Associated Press.

Waynesboro, Va., Aug. 19.—The first of three commissions named to condemn approximately 20,000 acres in five Valley and Blue Ridge counties for Federal parklands began its work here today.

The commissioners, named by Judge John Paul, of the United States District Court of Western Virginia, to determine the value of 4,494 acres in Augusta and Nelson counties, were sworn in by Postmaster J. Frank Harper today in the presence of Howard C. Gilmer, jr., of Pulaski. Gilmer is an assistant of Joseph Chitwood, United States district attorney.

Two other commissions, to fix the value of other prospective parklands in Nelson, Amherst, Rockbridge and Bath counties, will be sworn and start work by September 19.

One group will meet at Millboro Springs postoffice Monday to begin a valuation survey of 15,647 acres in Bath County. A third commission will be sworn in September 19 at Lovingston to set a valuation on 1,528 acres in Nelson, Amherst and Rockbridge counties.

The condemnation proceedings began in Bath County are against the Tidewater Oil Co. and others.

19 New Cases Of Paralysis Hit Virginia

Eight Taken Ill in One County, Albemarle, Over Week-End.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 19.—Albemarle County again took a prominent place in the State's infantile paralysis situation today as the State health department reported 19 cases over the week-end, eight of them from Albemarle.

One county, Franklin, reported its first of the present outbreak. Other new cases were distributed as follows: Alleghany County, one; Amelia County, one; Louisa County, one; Bedford, one; Chesterfield, one; Rockingham, one; Tazewell, two, and the city of Roanoke, two.

Instructions from Dr. I. C. Riggin, State health commissioner, were sent today through officials here to case workers that they avoid homes where there is a "suspicious illness" as a precaution against infantile paralysis. The workers were told to report any suspicious illnesses they found immediately so investigations could be made.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Moorefield, W. Va., Aug. 19.—The death of a 19-month-old child of Mr. and Mrs. J. Smith, at Flats, this county, Friday, was laid officially to infantile paralysis.

Children Are Barred

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Berryville, Va., Aug. 19.—Because of prevailing infantile paralysis, children 16 years of age and under will be prohibited to enter the show grounds at the Berryville Horse Show to be held here Thursday and Friday, it has been announced by the Clark County Board of Health.

In addition, health authorities have decreed that children of that age be kept away from public gatherings, Sunday schools shall be closed, and all public swimming pools drained.

Auto Driver Is Held In Death of Passenger

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 19.—Walter Dodd, of Hartwood, Stafford County, was held for the grand jury today following an inquiry by Trial Justice R. H. L. Chichester into the death of Carlin Cropp, 22, of Cropp, Va., in an automobile-truck collision, August 4, near Dumfries, on U. S. Route 1.

Cropp was a passenger in a machine driven by Dodd when it ran into the rear of a truck. Cropp was thrown from the car and run over, dying a few minutes later. Walter Mattson, of Swedesboro, N. J., driver of the truck, was exonerated.

Sherwood Anderson Praying For Bold, Daring Leadership

By the Associated Press.

Marion, Va., Aug. 19.—Sherwood Anderson, deeply occupied here in the editing of two weekly newspapers, believes men want daring, bold leadership, and prays: "God, grant it won't be cheap!"

"I think," said the author of Winesburg, Ohio — a chronicle of the common man of two decades ago—"That 100 years from now men will look back on this age as a dark age in human thought, when men tried to explain all the mystery of existence by the laws of economics."

Anderson became the owner of his weeklies through royalties from his books. He has no political label himself and he divides the policies of his papers. One is Republican, the other Democratic.

"A new Lincoln," he said, "may be the thing most needed.

"I think most of what Abe Lincoln called 'common people' must be as I am. When I talk to most radicals I'm strong for capitalism and individualism, but when I talk to most capitalists I'm hot for the radicals.

"Men are a good deal lost in our time," he went on. "They have lost the sense of being a part of the big complex thing in which we seem to be caught. They want that—to feel a part of something big going on.

"Until the turn of the century there was such a feeling. I do think that feeling is lost.

"The twists of finance, legislation and its effect, all the mysteries of government. Do not blame the people of small towns and the farmers that they do not understand.

"Do you, do I, did the big men, so-called, who made the peace after the World War know what they were doing? I think not."

Guard Units Start Moves In War Game

29th Division Trains in Pennsylvania for Area Maneuvers.

'Attack' on Railroad Is Feature of First Day's Action.

By Phil Austensen.

Camp Reckford, Mount Gretna, Pa., Aug. 19.—First taste of the rigors of warfare today was given members of the Twenty-ninth Division of the National Guard in camp here as part of the training which will culminate with participation in Third Corps area maneuvers next week.

Droning airplanes from the Twenty-ninth Division aviation soared overhead and cooperated with battalions of the Twenty-ninth Division engaged in a mimic contest for the possession of a rail at Pattison's Hill near Colebrook, Pa.

The position was defended by the second battalion of the First Infantry, commanded by Maj. Edward McK. Johnson, who in civil life is captain and commander of the Maryland State Police.

Three battalions attacked the position with the intent of capturing and holding the rail head until a detail of engineers arrived to destroy the important line of communication of the enemy.

Strong Position.

The three battalions, each of which attacked separately, were the Third Battalion, First Infantry, commanded by Maj. S. P. Fuller, Crisfield; First Battalion, First Infantry, commanded by Maj. W. A. Harward, Belaire, and the First Battalion, Fifth Infantry, Maj. Foster Davis, of Baltimore.

Each major directed his own attack and was on his own initiative. The position actually was a strong one for the defending force because the defense was on an elevation with clear fields on front and flanks and except through absolute necessity the attack would not be made with equal forces but for the purpose of the meaneuver it was assumed necessary to attack with the small force.

Civilians Watch.

The rattle of rifle and machine gun fire attracted a number of civilian spectators who watched the troops advance and attack.

The maneuver was observed by Brig. Gen. Washington Bowie, Baltimore, commander of the Fifty-eighth Brigade, and his staff, who acted as umpires.

Today's battles will be repeated tomorrow on a larger scale when a regiment will attack the same position defended by a battalion. Artillery may be used to support the attack.

The Second Battalion, First Infantry, Maj. Harry E. Flook, Cumberland, and the Third Battalion, Fifth Infantry, Maj. Franz Rasmer, Baltimore, fired combat range today. Lieut. J. B. Schindel, Washington, was in command of the pits.

Divisional athletic events were held this afternoon in Oury Bowl at camp.

Officers of the 110th Field Artillery entertained tonight at Hotel Conewago in honor of Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, commanding general of the Twenty-ninth Division, and Mrs. Reckord. Officers of the division were guests.

Quarantine Lifted.

Evidence of the strict supervision on troops' health being exercised in the second line of defense in the Nation's largest peace time maneuvers was demonstrated today by prompt quarantine of the Sixth Field Artillery when a case of tonsilitis appeared.

First report of the illness of a member of the regiment showed symptoms that might indicate infantile paralysis. The quarantine was lifted however when it developed that the man's illness was tonsilitis.

Maneuvers in Virginia.

By the Associated Press.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 19.—Long-range firing and brigade combat problems in which many types of weapons were used, occupied infantrymen of the Ninety-first Brigade, Virginia National Guard, today on the first week-day of their two weeks' training period at the State military reservation at Virginia Beach.

Long-range firing will be in order tomorrow again. The two regiments comprising the brigade, the First and 116th are alternating on the range. Beginning tomorrow, the two regiments will engage in larger and larger problems until the entire brigade is in action at once.

Maryland WPA Announces Aid Awaits Pupils

Colleges Notified byDryden of Terms Required for Federal Help.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 19.—Maryland colleges have been notified that the Federal Government is willing to give $15 a month aid to a limited number of students, Francis H. Dryden, Maryland Works Progress Administration head, said today.

The money is made available from WPA funds through the National Youth Administration. Additional money will be available to provide help for poor students in high schools, it was said.

The total amount allotted to any college will be $15 per month per student for 12 per cent of its enrollment in October, 1934. In case some students do not need the entire $15 allotment, up to $20 per month may be paid to other students.

The money will be paid directly by the Federal Government on pay rolls made up by the institutions. Students will be required to do "socially desirable" work for the school, but will not be allowed to work more than 30 hours per week. They may do research or extension work, but will not be allowed to do work which is normally done with school funds.

Federal aid may be extended only to those students who would be unable to attend the institutions without it. If any school does not require aid for its full quota of students, the surplus of its funds may be transferred to help students in other schools in the State.

Aid for students in high schools will be limited to those whose families are on relief. The number to be helped is limited to 7 per cent of the total number on relief in May, 1935. And the amount of relief is limited to $6 per month. Only those between 16 and 25 are eligible.

He died early this morning in Mary Washington Hospital here. The youth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Garner, had been employed on his father's farm.

Greenville Man Dies From Auto Injuries

Waynesboro, Va., Aug. 19 (AP).—Injuries received when he was struck by an automobile near his home last night proved fatal today to James Argenbright, 88, of Greenville, in August County.

Sheriff Frank Armstrong said the man got out of an automobile and started across the road directly in front of a car driven by A. T. Lloyd, a Roanoke attorney. Lloyd's car was badly damaged when he swerved from the highway in an effort to avoid hitting the man. No charges were placed against him, pending a hearing tomorrow.

Maryland State Police to Use Planes in Pursuing Bandits

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 19.—Maryland State police are ready to take the air in case of grave necessity, Maj. J. Purdon Wright, superintendent of the State force, announced today.

Maj. Wright has made arrangements with Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord for the use of the National Guard planes in emergencies. A squadron of six planes is kept at Logan Field, Baltimore, and two pilots are always available. Each plane can carry three policemen in addition ot the pilot, and is armed with machine guns.

Under the new arrangements, the State force can have six men in the air and on their way to any part of the State within 25 minutes of the time they are called for. An additional 12 men can be dispatched in the other four planes within two hours.

Not only will the planes be available to transport police, but they also can be used to spot fleeing bandits in cars. By circling over the car once it has been sighted other policemen can be sumoned, or machine-gun fire directed from the air.

Use of the National Guard planes will be limited to the most serious emergency, and must be ordered by Maj. Wright or someone with specifically delegated authority.

It was pointed out that the Michigan State police, for example, have their own force of planes, owned by the department and piloted by regular policemen. Planes have been used before to locate fleeing bank robbers and other criminals, but this service will be speeded up with arrangements already made.

Nice to Call Lawmakers In February

Decision Follows 2-Day Trip on Bay With State Senators.

Kimble Announces Plan for Income Tax Bill Based on U. S. Scale.

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Aug. 19.—With two days of conferring, cruising and fishing behind them, members of the Maryland State Senate and other State officials disembarked here today from the State yacht du Pont after a week-end cruise on the Chesapeake.

Chief developments of the week-end were:

That Gov. Nice probably will call the Legislature into special session next February rather than next March. The special session is needed because the 1 per cent gross receipts tax, Maryland's only means of providing funds for relief and old-age pensions, expires next March 31.

That the Governor asked the Senators to limit introduction of bills at the special session to measures dealing with relief measures. Old-age pensions, voting machines and permanent registrations so as to avoid clogging the files with local measures.

That Senator Milton L. Veasey, of Worcester (Democrat), announced he would sponsor legislation which would require all local subdivisions of the State, county and city, to carry their share of the relief load. Such a share, Veasey explained, would be "not less than 25 per cent."

That Senator Robert B. Kimble, of Allegany (Republican), announced he would favor a State income tax of 15 per cent of the Federal rate. Such a tax, Kimble estimated, would produce $6,000,000 annually if levied on money actually earned in Maryland.

Gov. Nice said it was practically definite that he would call the special session early next year. Either in the last week in January or the first week in February.

He said the suggestion of Senator Raymond E. Kennedy (Democrat), Fifth District, Baltimore, that pressing discussions of important problems he held had met with favorable reaction. No definite plans were made to carry out this program.

A desire seemed apparent on the part of the Senators to reduce the session to as short a time as possible to pass essential legislation. In line with this, Gov. Nice urged the legislators to agree to limit bills to subjects such as relief taxation, old-age pensions, voting machines and permanent registration.

The prospect of a hard battle over relief and old-age pension revenue raising measures appeared in prospect because of the varying opinions as to the proper methods of taxation.

A Rider of Pegasus Soars Sorrowful Way Home on Tragic Wings of Sable Grief

Will Rogers Is Theater's Ace King of Boards

Memory Will Live Among Those Who Cherish the Best of Theaters.

By Nelson B. Bell.

Not since that steam-drawn mausoleum, draped with the sable plumes of grief, snailed its way across 3,000 miles of sorrowing terrain from the Palace Hotel on Market street, in San Francisco, Calif., to the majestic portals of the White House, in Washington, with the mortal remains of Warren Gamaliel Harding, twenty-ninth President of the United States—12 years ago to the month—has so mournful a cortege pursued its course from the fringes of the continent to a last resting place as that being heroically piloted by Fred Crosson from the farthest outpost of the Nation to the honored graves of Will Rogers and Wiley Post.

Wiley Post, I regret to say, I have never known or even seen, outside of the newsreels. It was always my impression, however, that he was something beyond the 35 years of age with which the reports of his tragic death have endowed him.

With Will Rogers, I enjoyed a fair sort of friendship.

It began back in those remote days of 30 years or so ago, as the crow flies, when he had not yet achieved the latterly potent dub of "philosopher"—cowboy or otherwise—and when he had not as yet made his first impress upon public consciousness as a wit whose pithy comments on men and affairs might best be made in print.

Was a Rope Thrower.

At the time of which I speak, Will was a rope thrower fresh from the ranges of his native Indian Territory—now included in the soverign State of Oklahoma. He had with him, in those old times of the "two-a-day," as an accomplice in vaudeville, a hazardous soul known as "The Sheriff of Pawnee County."

You will observe upon reference to any of the old Rand-McNallys that in the day of which I speak there really was a "Pawnee County." Whether it ever had a sheriff, outside of vaudeville billing, I would not know.

However, I do know that at this purely promissory point in his career, Will Rogers had not become articulate. He was still the bashful, diffident and slightly quaint rope-thrower of the prairies.

And how he could throw those ropes!

Whatever proficiency Fred Stone later manifested as a lariat-spinning tap-dancer, he owes to the tutelage of Will Rogers and he would be the first to admit it, now that his lifelong friend has paid a penalty of adventurous courage that he himself almost paid back in 1929.

Will, at this point, at least, had begun to chew gum. That was a partial concession to the stage fright that still pursued a lad who at heart was a cowhand.

The only "wisecrack" that I recall Will's having made at this period of his professional development was when he had a rope in each hand and expressed it as his avowed purpose—to matinee and night audiences at the old P. B. Chase Theater, later Poli's, and now torn down from the corner of Fifteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue to make way for a little spread of lawn in front of the Commerce Department Building—to ensnare the "Sheriff" around the neck or upper arms and shoulders, with the right hand, and catch the broncho's left front foot with the left.

"All On But One."

After the manner of vaudevillians, Will missed this trick the first couple of times out and thus gave himself the opportunity for the first of his "wisecracks" that I remember, which was to the effect that, "Well, I got 'em all on but one."

When he got them both on, he garnered enough applause to insure his future.

But Will had to be heard or read to be appreciated. In silent films he was not foremost among the box-office panics of the day. Even his own crisp "sub-titles," when squirted into his inarticulate screen plans, failed to elicit the later encomiums that were the reward of a terse and tacit paragrapher.

It was along in the early 1920's, I should say at wild guess, when I caught him—in an earlier incarnation, I should say—in the balcony of the Metropolitan Theater, which I was serving in a minor capacity of official booster at the time, watching two or three projections of his picturization of the late Sol Smith Russell's "The Poor Relation," for Sam Goldwyn.

Cornered, and with no visible means of escape, Will admitted that he thought the picture pretty good. So did we.

So we stood out on the corner of Tenth and F streets for an hour wondering what ailed Will at the box office. We both reached a simultaneous conclusion that what principally mattered was lack of feminine appeal at the ticket-wicket.

That tousled hair, blue serge suit and bow tie, just didn't click with 90 per cent of the movie patronage. So there you were. And so there, also, was Will, until sound came along. And when it did come along, look what happened! Rogers was the best bet in pictures.

Soared With Sound.

Just as the polls of the Lambs and Friars Clubs in New York have proved, Will never rated in the first flight of actors. He was not an actor. He was a meandering philosopher whose real matter was the written word or the spoken speech, ad libbed more often than not.

Above all, of course, he was a showman. There need be here and now no obeisance to a fictitious sense of "give all" on Will Rogers part. He collected high tribute for everything he contributed to the joy of living—for which there is still a tricky French term, if I could only think of it.

He was not one of the "common peepul;" he was, on the other hand, a capitalist, pure and simple, who gained great wealth by the "showmanship" best exemplified by the blue serge suit and the soft collar!

As his body, mashed and mangled by the impact of a cruel fate, soars back to its final resting place, it can not be evaded that every member of any company in which Will Rogers ever was star, swears by him as a paragon of all the virtues.

It is the same way with W. C. Fields. Both of these agile comedians, by the way, came to their greatest fruition under the guiding genius of the late Florenz Ziegfeld.

Word of Mouth Bargains.

Ziegfeld and Rogers never had a written contract between them. Will was engaged for the "Broadway run of play"—a stereotyped form of agreement—and when that "run of play" ran over the expected season something was done about it by word of mouth. That happened, for example, one year when a "Follies" that had been expected to run 40 weeks, at the most, ran 62.

And when Zieggy produced his last musical comedy, "Hotcha," at the National, Will Rogers was a member of the audience. When discovered, and given a round of applause by those in attendance, he pulled his overcoat up over his head and "played dead."

Irene Rich, charming actress and delightful person, told me afterward that "that was just like Will."

It was no such thing. It was part of the "act" that made him a multimillionaire.

My intention, way back younder was to remark that when Will was in town looking at himself two or three times on a Sunday afternoon as "The Poor Relation," his real mission was to open the Shubert "invasion" of vaudeville the next afternoon.

When queried as to what his act was likely to be, he said, "Well, if there is a lot of news in the paper tomorrow morning, there will not be much rope-swinging; if there is not very much news, there will be plenty of rope-swinging and very little chatter."

And that is the way it was.

For which Will received $3,500 per week.

With Flo Ziegfeld gone before his time, it has been one of the many feathers in Will Rogers' cap that he has seen to it that Billie Burke, widow of his former producer, has had some of the most desirable assignments in Hollywood.

And when Dave Montgomery was stricken fatally ill years ago, to break up the team of Montgomery and Stone, it was Will Rogers who first got relief steps in action, while playing with "The Follies" at the National.

When Fred Stone was cracked up in an airplane accident in 1929, it was Will who flew east to take his part in "Three Cheers," with Dorothy Stone, as the leading feminine member of the cast.

Andy Tombes was costar of that one, and together they went down to Fred's Bayside, Long Island, estate to show him what the "spread" scenes of the production looked like to a layman.

Since then, Fred has appeared locally at the Earle with his daughter and son-in-law and has paid his bit to the worth of a pal he will miss tremendously.

As who will not?

Will Rogers was a man whisked to brave heights by a propitious destiny. In his demise we view the passing of a giant.

Vale, old friend.

Makes Long Trek in Next Film

Having been cast for a leading role with Cary Grant and Claude Rains in "The Last Outpost," an Alabama adventure girl goes to British India for her next picture. This traveling young woman would be the beauty pictured above, whose name, in case you have not already guessed it, is Gertrude Michael. Miss Michael is an accomplished pianiste, as well as actress, and is recognized in the cinema as one of the screen's most promising blondes. She is under contract, or so one is led to believe, to Paramount.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Eleventh summer concert by the National Symphony Orchestra at the Potomac Watergate. Emanuel Balaban, Gustav Strube and Richard Horner Bales, guest conductors; Lillian Knowles, contralto, soloist. Program: Symphony in F minor (Chaikovski), Eight Russian Folk Songs (Lyadov), Second movement of "Sylvan Suite" (Strube), "Mon coeur s'ouvre a ta voix" (Saint-Saens), "Habanera" (Bizet), Overture to "Rienzi" (Wagner).

Giving a different turn to the once-popular procedure of three symphonies on one program, the National Symphony Orchestra tried the variation of three conductors last night, and an interesting experiment it proved to be. For the audience had the opportunity to draw comparisons between the veteran authority of Gustave Strube, the maturity of Emanuel Balaban, and the promising confidence of the 20-year-old Alexandrian, Richard Horner Bales.

Mr. Balaban gave us a vigorous, thoroughly integrated and impassioned reading of Chaikovski's fourth symphony. The first movement, which can become, under the beat of an excitable conductor, unpleasantly hysterical and frenetic, was invested with emotional dignity. The energy of the music was fully embodied, the significance of the struggle against ineluctable fate was eloquently set forth, and the spiritual motivation was kept in clear perspective. Chaikovski's melancholic outbursts, so easily exaggerated into shrillness, were forcefully intoned, yet gained in impressiveness by the restraint imposed upon them.

The grace of the second movement and its atmosphere of nostalgic suffering were admirably displayed, and the scherzo was crisp and rhythmically neat. In the finale, the climatic moments were built up with a fine sense of dynamics.

Lyadov's arrangement of Russian folk songs, entertaining and cleverly scored though it is, did not give Mr. Bales the means to demonstrate his ability as a conductor. When he came to terms with the "Rienzi" overture, however, he presented evidence of firm control. Directing without the score, he used a clear beat and exactitude in his indications. That some of the transitions were a little hurried may have been due to nervousness. His general conception of the overture was sound, and he was constantly alert to the importance of tempi, which were never permitted to lag.

One will watch with interest the development of Mr. Bales on the podium. He has not yet the ease which experience will bring, and there are some angularities in his manner. But he has assurance, he knows the music which he essays, and there is good conductorial metal in him. The audience liked his reading of the stirring overture so much that he was recalled repeatedly until he acknowledged the applause with an extra number.

Gustav Strube, who has many friends in Washington, was welcomed with a hearty acclaim, when he entered to conduct the "Fantasia" from his "Sylvan Suite." One wishes that at least another movement of this work, which shows in its harmonic texture that he is no conservative in his ideas, might have been included in the program. The solidity of the music, the richness of its scoring, and the skill in instrumental color, whetted the appetite.

Lillian Knowles, whose contralto has depth of color and firmness of timbre, made an excellent impression in her two operatic excerpts. In the Saint-Saens aria, one noticed a few weaknesses of timbre in the middle register of the voice, but they disappeared as she warmed to her singing. Her range is wide, and her high tones are serenely sonorous. She was at her best in the seductive aria from "Carmen," which the audience obliged her to repeat. Mr. Balaban's accompaniments were models of their kind, flexible to the point of perfection, and exactly adjusted to the singer's needs.

Missing Midshipman Reported on Way Home

By a Staff Correspondent.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 19.—Missing from the Naval Academy since Wednesday, Midshipman John C. Brunner, 19, is bound for his home in Waumego, Kans., according to information received today by officials of the institution. Lieut. Comdr. Theodore T. Patterson, aid to the superintendent, said word to this effect was received from Miss Lily Brunner, sister and official guardian of the missing youth.

Brunner entered the Academy in July. Officials believe that the youth brooded over the death of his mother, which occurred a few weeks prior to that, and that he became homesick. Under naval law, Brunner could be classified as a deserter.

MARLENE DIETRICH continues to ask Josef Von Sternberg for advice about the flicker she is to make at Paramount . . . Dorothy Lee is en route to Chicago to settle her martial difficulties . . . Rene Torres seems to be the desired gal for she has been escorted by John Gilbert and Harry Richman . . . The next all-color flicker will be produced by Walter Wanger, who will do an outdoor yarn with Henry Hathaway directing . . . Merle Oberon's beach house has been dubbed "The British Consul." Merle is now on her way to New York town and Brian Aherne is lonesome . . . The Hubert Mundins are back together again . . . Lawrence Tibbett is always singing in his dressing room, and performers in that building who pay to hear his concerts, have been complaining that he makes too much noise.

• • • •

Because of the Hays organization, Sam Goldwyn can't announce that he purchased "The Children's Hour." When it is made into a flicker the title will be changed and the lie will be about another matter instead of the present theme of the play . . . A point in its favor is that Lillian Hellman, who wrote the play, will write the screen version . . . The Goldwyn office will give out no data, for they believe the less being said about it the better . . . Rubinoff plays a violin solo in "Thanks a Million." He recorded the song in the sound room and then went on the set to go through the motions of playing it for the camera as he listened to the playback . . . It took Rubinoff a day and a half to learn how he played it.

KETTI GALLIAN is being escorted to the night clubs by Paul Levitan . . . The Lee Tracy-Estelle Taylor romance is not off. Tracy is busy working in the flicker, "Getting Smart," and Miss Taylor's companion has been Van Smith . . . There is a shop in Westwood which has novels on the lunch counter for the customers to read while they eat . . . Lily Pons, because of her mannerisms and her French accent, reminds one of Irene Bordoni . . . Lucille Ball, a stock player at radio, gets a deserved opportunity for she plays the other feminine lead in Miss Pons' flicker, "Love Song" . . . The credit slide of "Top Hat" introduces Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in a novel manner. Their names are not flashed on the screen in the beginning: instead you see Astaire's feet dancing and then Miss Rogers' feet dancing . . . Peggy Hopkins Joyce is to be in the movies again, playing the role of a charm teacher in "Collegiate." It's safe to bet she'll have pupils off the set.

• • • •

Eddie Cantor, when he returns to his broadcasts, will feature a different orchestra every week . . . The conferences on the Cantor flicker, "Shoot the Chutes," are very amusing . . . The other day Goldwyn asked Cantor how he liked a scene. Cantor said, "It's not funny." "It's not funny," barked Goldwyn. "How do you know?" "You sent for me," answered Cantor. "I'm a comedian." "Don't be so egotistical," replied Goldwyn . . . Mrs. Pat Campbell had finished playing a scene for Director Von Sternberg in "Crime and Punishment," and she said to him: "There are only two things I'd want to be, either an actress or a duchess." "Right now you're being a duchess," answered Von Sternberg.

• • • •

ALICE WHITE and Charles Locker have been attending parties together . . . George Givot, who will open at a night club here, has resumed his romance with Marcella Napp of the Metro casting department . . . Columbia was told that they couldn't use the name Burke in the title of a flicker when it is released in England as the word Burke means something naughty there . . . When Theresa Helburn received this memo she sent it back with this notation: "What about Burke's peerage?" . . . Ina Claire is in town, stopping at William Haine's house, and getting ready for the local production of "Ode to Liberty" . . . William Powell returned from his vacation and immediately took up his option on Jean Harlow. They have been Club Trocadaring . . . Although they object to writing "Behind the Scenes" stuff, Paramount has made a short titled, "Hollywood Extra Girl" which takes you "Behind the Scenes" and shows you Cecil B. DeMille shooting a scene for "The Crusades." Although sold as a short it is really a trailer for "The Crusades." It was made by the Paramount exploitation department and puts on display those things that same department insists destroys the movie fan illusions.

It was while the flicker, "The Affairs of Cellini," was being made that there were many debates about the title. There were many concerned with the picture who didn't want it to be called "Cellini." The main argument was that no one knew who Cellini was. "The average person," insisted one of the supervisors, "doesn't know him and the title will hurt the business." "The average person does know Cellini," claimed another supervisor. "I'll tell you what," he continued, "Call in Sam, the barber, and ask him." . . . Sam, the barber, was summoned. "Do you know who Cellini is?" he was asked. "Sure," answered Sam, the barber, without any hesitation. "He's Fredric March."

Will Rogers Is Theater's Ace King of Boards

Memory Will Live Among Those Who Cherish the Best of Theaters.

By Nelson B. Bell.

Not since that steam-drawn mausoleum, draped with the sable plumes of grief, snailed its way across 3,000 miles of sorrowing terrain from the Palace Hotel on Market street, in San Francisco, Calif., to the majestic portals of the White House, in Washington, with the mortal remains of Warren Gamaliel Harding, twenty-ninth President of the United States—12 years ago to the month—has so mournful a cortege pursued its course from the fringes of the continent to a last resting place as that being heroically piloted by Fred Crosson from the farthest outpost of the Nation to the honored graves of Will Rogers and Wiley Post.

Wiley Post, I regret to say, I have never known or even seen, outside of the newsreels. It was always my impression, however, that he was something beyond the 35 years of age with which the reports of his tragic death have endowed him.

With Will Rogers, I enjoyed a fair sort of friendship.

It began back in those remote days of 30 years or so ago, as the crow flies, when he had not yet achieved the latterly potent dub of "philosopher"—cowboy or otherwise—and when he had not as yet made his first impress upon public consciousness as a wit whose pithy comments on men and affairs might best be made in print.

Was a Rope Thrower.

At the time of which I speak, Will was a rope thrower fresh from the ranges of his native Indian Territory—now included in the soverign State of Oklahoma. He had with him, in those old times of the "two-a-day," as an accomplice in vaudeville, a hazardous soul known as "The Sheriff of Pawnee County."

You will observe upon reference to any of the old Rand-McNallys that in the day of which I speak there really was a "Pawnee County." Whether it ever had a sheriff, outside of vaudeville billing, I would not know.

However, I do know that at this purely promissory point in his career, Will Rogers had not become articulate. He was still the bashful, diffident and slightly quaint rope-thrower of the prairies.

And how he could throw those ropes!

Whatever proficiency Fred Stone later manifested as a lariat-spinning tap-dancer, he owes to the tutelage of Will Rogers and he would be the first to admit it, now that his lifelong friend has paid a penalty of adventurous courage that he himself almost paid back in 1929.

Will, at this point, at least, had begun to chew gum. That was a partial concession to the stage fright that still pursued a lad who at heart was a cowhand.

The only "wisecrack" that I recall Will's having made at this period of his professional development was when he had a rope in each hand and expressed it as his avowed purpose—to matinee and night audiences at the old P. B. Chase Theater, later Poli's, and now torn down from the corner of Fifteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue to make way for a little spread of lawn in front of the Commerce Department Building—to ensnare the "Sheriff" around the neck or upper arms and shoulders, with the right hand, and catch the broncho's left front foot with the left.

"All On But One."

After the manner of vaudevillians, Will missed this trick the first couple of times out and thus gave himself the opportunity for the first of his "wisecracks" that I remember, which was to the effect that, "Well, I got 'em all on but one."

When he got them both on, he garnered enough applause to insure his future.

But Will had to be heard or read to be appreciated. In silent films he was not foremost among the box-office panics of the day. Even his own crisp "sub-titles," when squirted into his inarticulate screen plans, failed to elicit the later encomiums that were the reward of a terse and tacit paragrapher.

It was along in the early 1920's, I should say at wild guess, when I caught him—in an earlier incarnation, I should say—in the balcony of the Metropolitan Theater, which I was serving in a minor capacity of official booster at the time, watching two or three projections of his picturization of the late Sol Smith Russell's "The Poor Relation," for Sam Goldwyn.

Cornered, and with no visible means of escape, Will admitted that he thought the picture pretty good. So did we.

So we stood out on the corner of Tenth and F streets for an hour wondering what ailed Will at the boxoffice. We both reached a simultaneous conclusion that what principally mattered was lack of feminine appeal at the ticket-wicket.

That tousled hair, blue serge suit and bow tie, just didn't click with 90 per cent of the movie patronage. So there you were. And so there, also, was Will, until sound came along. And when it did come along, look what happened! Rogers was the best bet in pictures.

Seared With Sound.

Just as the polls of the Lambs and Friars Clubs in New York have proved, Will never rated in the first flight of actors. He was not an actor. He was a meandering philosopher whose real matter was the written word or the spoken speech, ad libbed more often than not.

Above all, of course, he was a showman. There need be here and now no obeisance to a fictitious sense of "give all" on Will Rogers part. He collected high tribute for everything he contributed to the joy of living—for which there is still a tricky French term, if I could only think of it.

He was not one of the "common peepul;" he was, on the other hand, a capitalist, pure and simple, who gained great wealth by the "showmanship" best exemplified by the blue serge suit and the soft collar!

As his body, mashed and mangled by the impact of a cruel fate, soars back to its final resting place, it can not be evaded that every member of any company in which Will Rogers ever was star, swears by him as a paragon of all the virtues.

It is the same way with W. C. Fields. Both of these agile comedians, by the way, came to their greatest fruition under the guiding genius of the late Florenz Ziegfeld.

Word of Mouth Bargains.

Ziegfeld and Rogers never had a written contract between them. Will was engaged for the "Broadway run of play"—a stereotyped form of agreement—and when that "run of play" ran over the expected season something was done about it by word of mouth. That happened, for example, one year when a "Follies" that had been expected to run 40 weeks, at the most, ran 62.

And when Ziggy produced his last musical comedy, "Hotcha," at the National, Will Rogers was a member of the audience. When discovered, and given a round of applause by those in attendance, he pulled his overcoat up over his head and "played dead."

Irene Rich, charming actress and delightful person, told me afterward that "that was just like Will."

It was no such thing. It was part of the "act" that made him a multimillionaire.

My intention, way back younder was to remark that when Will was in town looking at himself two or three times on a Sunday afternoon as "The Poor Relation," his real mission was to open the Shubert "invasion" of vaudeville the next afternoon.

When queried as to what his act was likely to be, he said, "Well, if there is a lot of news in the paper tomorrow morning, there will not be much rope-swinging; if there is not very much news, there will be plenty of rope-swinging and very little chatter."

And that is the way it was.

For which Will received $3,500 per week.

With Flo Ziegfeld gone before his time, it has been one of the many feathers in Will Rogers' cap that he has seen to it that Billie Burke, widow of his former producer, has had some of the most desirable assignments in Hollywood.

And when Dave Montgomery was stricken fatally ill years ago, to break up the team of Montgomery and Stone, it was Will Rogers who first got relief steps in action, while playing with "The Follies" at the National.

When Fred Stone was cracked up in an airplane accident in 1929, it was Will who flew east to take his part in "Three Cheers," with Dorothy Stone, as the leading feminine member of the cast.

Andy Tombes was costar of that one, and together they went down to Fred's Bayside, Long Island, estate to show him what the "spread" scenes of the production looked like to a layman.

Since then, Fred has appeared locally at the Earle with his daughter and son-in-law and has paid his bit to the worth of a pal he will miss tremendously.

As who will not?

Will Rogers was a man whisked to brave heights by a propitious destiny. In his demise we view the passing of a giant.

Vale, old friend.

Makes Long Trek in Next Film

Having been cast for a leading role with Cary Grant and Claude Rains in "The Last Outpost," an Alabama adventure girl goes to British India for her next picture. This traveling young woman would be the beauty pictured above, whose name, in case you have not already guessed it, is Gertrude Michael. Miss Michael is an accomplished pianiste, as well as actress, and is recognized in the cinema as one of the screen's most promising blondes. She is under contract, or so one is led to believe, to Paramount.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Eleventh summer concert by the National Symphony Orchestra at the Potomac Watergate. Emanuel Balaban, Gustav Strube and Richard Horner Bales, guest conductors; Lillian Knowles, contralto, soloist. Program: Symphony in F minor (Chaikovski), Eight Russian Folk Songs (Lyadov), Second movement of "Sylvan Suite" (Strube), "Mon coeur s'ouvre a ta voix" (Saint-Saens), "Habanera" (Bizet), Overture to "Rienzi" (Wagner).

Giving a different turn to the once-popular procedure of three symphonies on one program, the National Symphony Orchestra tried the variation of three conductors last night, and an interesting experiment it proved to be. For the audience had the opportunity to draw comparisons between the veteran authority of Gustave Strube, the maturity of Emanuel Balaban, and the promising confidence of the 20-year-old Alexandrian, Richard Horner Bales.

Mr. Balaban gave us a vigorous, thoroughly integrated and impassioned reading of Chaikovski's fourth symphony. The first movement, which can become, under the beat of an excitable conductor, unpleasantly hysterical and frenetic, was invested with emotional dignity. The energy of the music was fully embodied, the significance of the struggle against ineluctable fate was eloquently set forth, and the spiritual motivation was kept in clear perspective. Chaikovski's melancholic outbursts, so easily exaggerated into shrillness, were forcefully intoned, yet gained in impressiveness by the restraint imposed upon them.

The grace of the second movement and its atmosphere of nostalgic suffering were admirably displayed, and the scherzo was crisp and rhythmically neat. In the finale, the climatic moments were built up with a fine sense of dynamics.

Lyadov's arrangement of Russian folk songs, entertaining and cleverly scored though it is, did not give Mr. Bales the means to demonstrate his ability as a conductor. When he came to terms with the "Rienzi" overture, however, he presented evidence of firm control. Directing without the score, he used a clear beat and exactitude in his indications. That some of the transitions were a little hurried may have been due to nervousness. His general conception of the overture was sound, and he was constantly alert to the importance of tempi, which were never permitted to lag.

One will watch with interest the development of Mr. Bales on the podium. He has not yet the ease which experience will bring, and there are some angularities in his manner. But he has assurance, he knows the music which he essays, and there is good conductorial metal in him. The audience liked his reading of the stirring overture so much that he was recalled repeatedly until he acknowledged the applause with an extra number.

Gustav Strube, who has many friends in Washington, was welcomed with a hearty acclaim, when he entered to conduct the "Fantasia" from his "Sylvan Suite." One wishes that at least another movement of this work, which shows in its harmonic texture that he is no conservative in his ideas, might have been included in the program. The solidity of the music, the richness of its scoring, and the skill in instrumental color, whetted the appetite.

Lillian Knowles, whose contralto has depth of color and firmness of timbre, made an excellent impression in her two operatic excerpts. In the Saint-Saens aria, one noticed a few weaknesses of timbre in the middle register of the voice, but they disappeared as she warmed to her singing. Her range is wide, and her high tones are serenely sonorous. She was at her best in the seductive aria from "Carmen," which the audience obliged her to repeat. Mr. Balaban's accompaniments were models of their kind, flexible to the point of perfection, and exactly adjusted to the singer's needs.

Missing Midshipman Reported on Way Home

By a Staff Correspondent.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 19.—Missing from the Naval Academy since Wednesday, Midshipman John C. Brunner, 19, is bound for his home in Waumego, Kans., according to information received today by officials of the institution. Lieut. Comdr. Theodore T. Patterson, aid to the superintendent, said word to this effect was received from Miss Lily Brunner, sister and official guardian of the missing youth.

Brunner entered the Academy in July. Officials believe that the youth brooded over the death of his mother, which occurred a few weeks prior to that, and that he became homesick. Under naval law, Brunner could be classified as a deserter.

Hollywood

By Sidney Skolsky

The Gossipel Truth.

Hollywood, Aug. 19.

MARLENE DIETRICH continues to ask Josef Von Sternberg for advice about the flicker she is to make at Paramount . . . Dorothy Lee is en route to Chicago to settle her martial difficulties . . . Rene Torres seems to be the desired gal for she has been escorted by John Gilbert and Harry Richman . . . The next all-color flicker will be produced by Walter Wanger, who will do an outdoor yarn with Henry Hathaway directing . . . Merle Oberon's beach house has been dubbed "The British Consul." Merle is now on her way to New York town and Brian Aherne is lonesome . . . The Hubert Mundins are back together again . . . Lawrence Tibbett is always singing in his dressing room, and performers in that building who pay to hear his concerts, have been complaining that he makes too much noise.

• • • •

Because of the Hays organization, Sam Goldwyn can't announce that he purchased "The Children's Hour." When it is made into a flicker the title will be changed and the lie will be about another matter instead of the present theme of the play . . . A point in its favor is that Lillian Hellman, who wrote the play, will write the screen version . . . The Goldwyn office will give out no data, for they believe the less being said about it the better . . . Rubinoff plays a violin solo in "Thanks a Million." He recorded the song in the sound room and then went on the set to go through the motions of playing it for the camera as he listened to the playback . . . It took Rubinoff a day and a half to learn how he played it.

• • • •

KETTI GALLIAN is being escorted to the night clubs by Paul Levitan . . . The Lee Tracy-Estelle Taylor romance is not off. Tracy is busy working in the flicker, "Getting Smart," and Miss Taylor's companion has been Van Smith . . . There is a shop in Westwood which has novels on the lunch counter for the customers to read while they eat . . . Lily Pons, because of her mannerisms and her French accent, reminds one of Irene Bordoni . . . Lucille Ball, a stock player at radio, gets a deserved opportunity for she plays the other feminine lead in Miss Pons' flicker, "Love Song" . . . The credit slide of "Top Hat" introduces Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in a novel manner. Their names are not flashed on the screen in the beginning: instead you see Astaire's feet dancing and then Miss Rogers' feet dancing . . . Peggy Hopkins Joyce is to be in the movies again, playing the role of a charm teacher in "Collegiate." It's safe to bet she'll have pupils off the set.

• • • •

Eddie Cantor, when he returns to his broadcasts, will feature a different orchestra every week . . . The conferences on the Cantor flicker, "Shoot the Chutes," are very amusing . . . The other day Goldwyn asked Cantor how he liked a scene. Cantor said, "It's not funny." "It's not funny," barked Goldwyn. "How do you know?" "You sent for me," answered Cantor. "I'm a comedian." "Don't be so egotistical," replied Goldwyn . . . Mrs. Pat Campbell had finished playing a scene for Director Von Sternberg in "Crime and Punishment," and she said to him: "There are only two things I'd want to be, either an actress or a duchess." "Right now you're being a duchess," answered Von Sternberg.

• • • •

ALICE WHITE and Charles Locker have been attending parties together . . . George Givot, who will open at a night club here, has resumed his romance with Marcella Napp of the Metro casting department . . . Columbia was told that they couldn't use the name Burke in the title of a flicker when it is released in England as the word Burke means something naughty there . . . When Theresa Helburn received this memo she sent it back with this notation: "What about Burke's peerage?" . . . Ina Claire is in town, stopping at William Haine's house, and getting ready for the local production of "Ode to Liberty" . . . William Powell returned from his vacation and immediately took up his option on Jean Harlow. They have been Club Trocadaring . . . Although they object to writing "Behind the Scenes" stuff, Paramount has made a short titled, "Hollywood Extra Girl" which takes you "Behind the Scenes" and shows you Cecil B. DeMille shooting a scene for "The Crusades." Although sold as a short it is really a trailer for "The Crusades." It was made by the Paramount exploitation department and puts on display those things that same department insists destroys the movie fan illusions.

• • • •

It was while the flicker, "The Affairs of Cellini," was being made that there were many debates about the title. There were many concerned with the picture who didn't want it to be called "Cellini." The main argument was that no one knew who Cellini was. "The average person," insisted one of the supervisors, "doesn't know him and the title will hurt the business." "The average person does know Cellini," claimed another supervisor. "I'll tell you what," he continued. "Call in Sam, the barber, and ask him." . . . Sam, the barber, was summoned. "Do you know who Cellini is?" he was asked. "Sure," answered Sam, the barber, without any hesitation. "He's Fredric March."

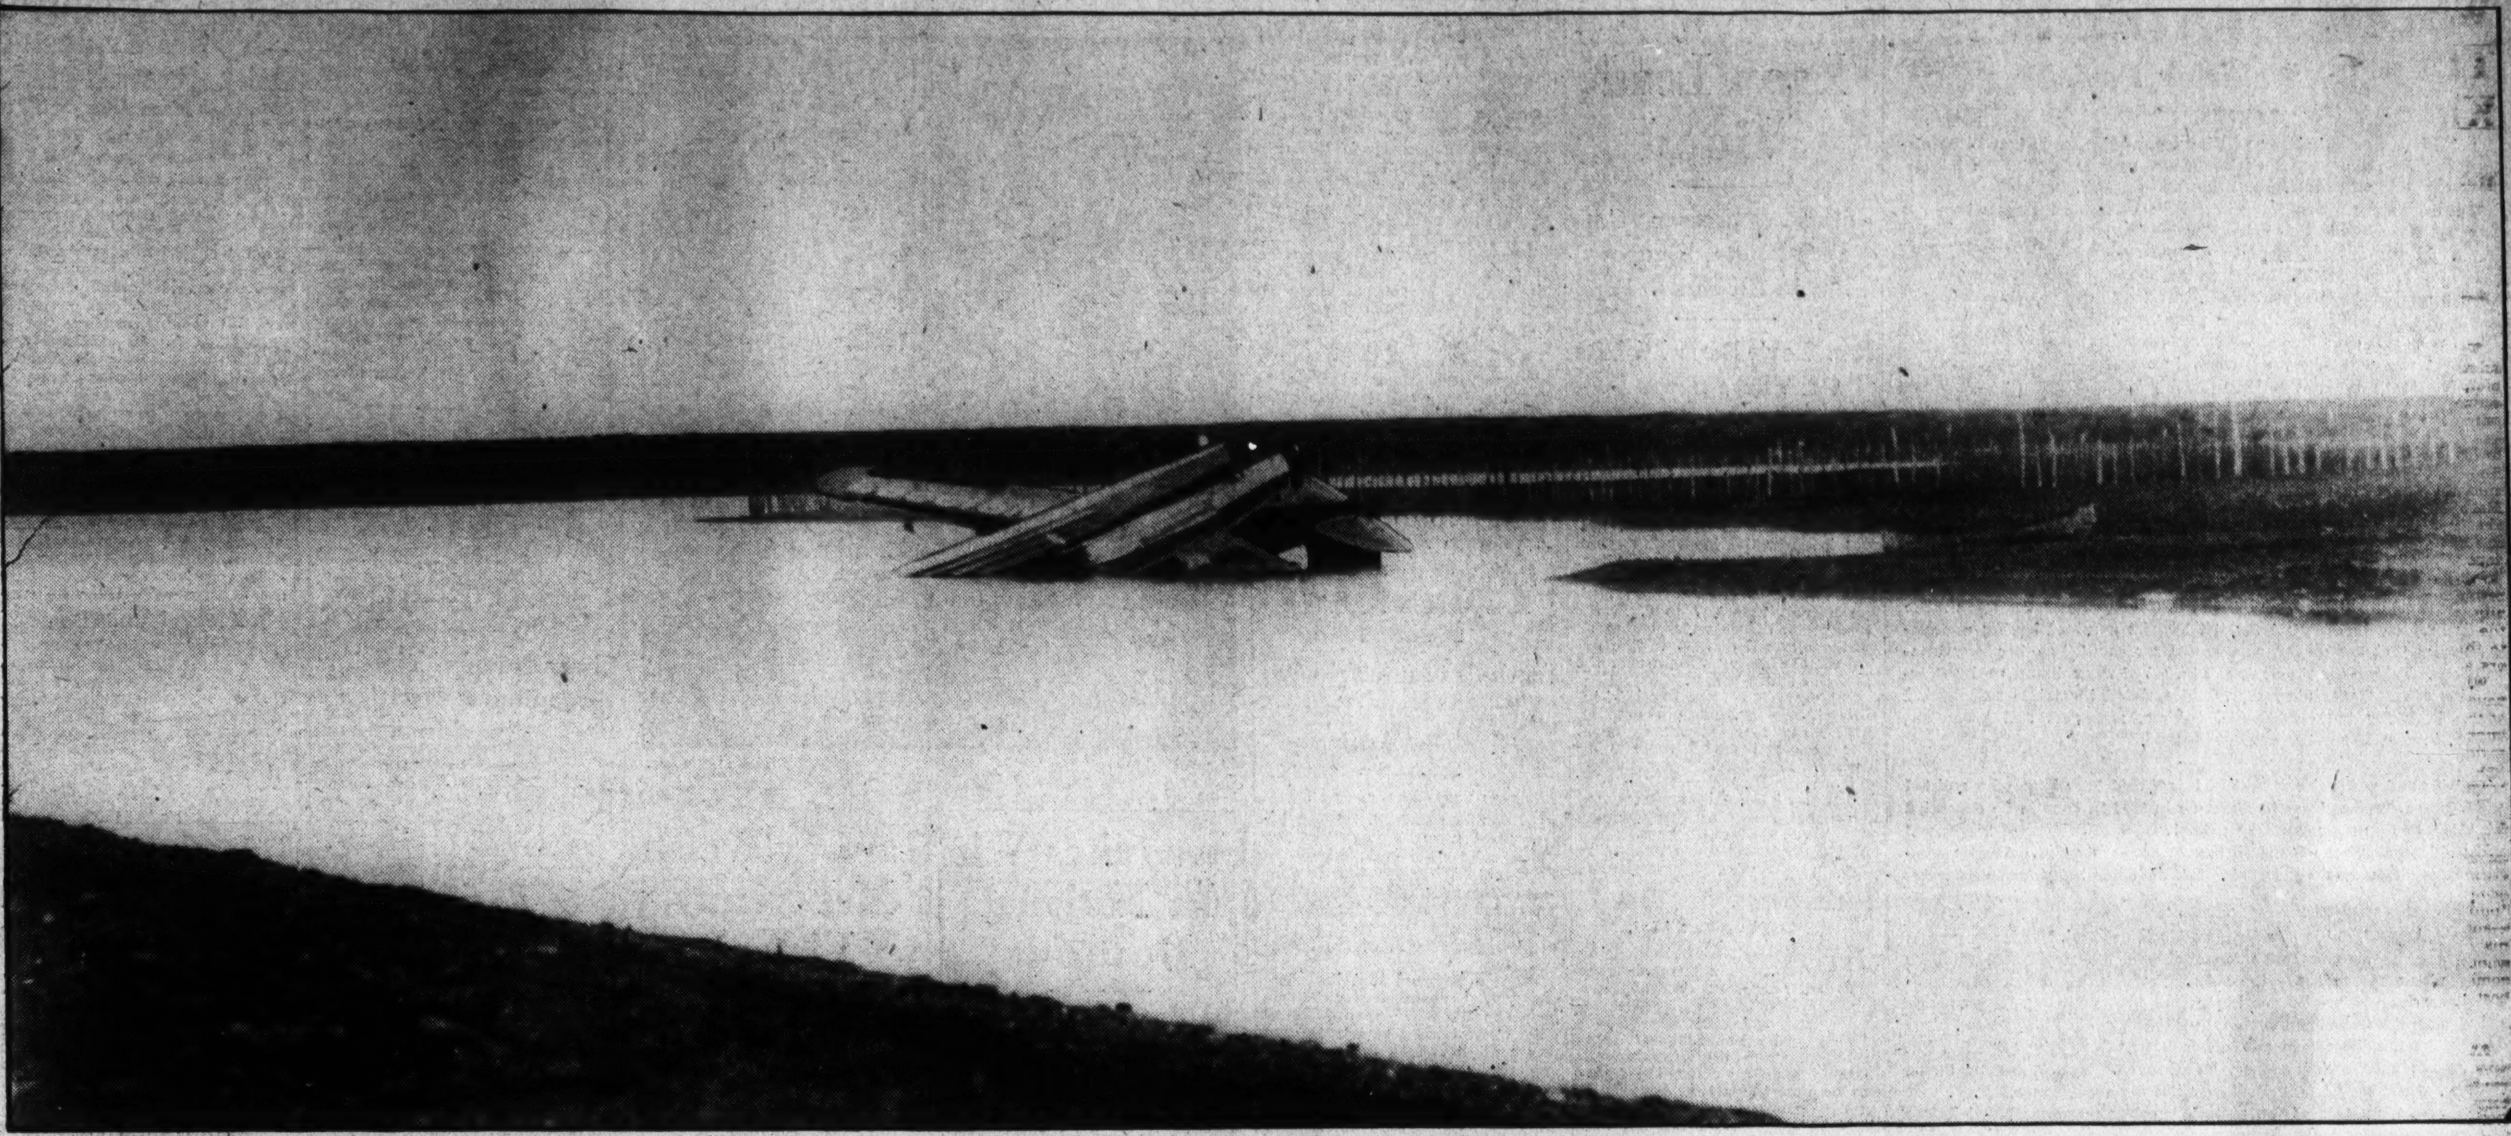
Cavalry Charges in War Games; Haile Selassie Reviews Troops



Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

LAST LANDING OF ROGERS AND POST.—This picture, flown thousands of miles and wirephotoed thousands more, shows the plane in which Will Rogers and Wiley Post died, in a little lake on the lonely and savage tundra of Alaska, where it crashed in a dense fog with a missing motor. It shows also that Post might have made a safe landing there—on a clear day.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

SILENT JOURNEY.—The bodies of Will Rogers and Wiley Post have just been loaded in a whaleboat by Eskimos for the trip back to civilization.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

RACED WITH FATAL NEWS.—And this is Claire Oakpeha, the Eskimo who ran 15 miles to Point Barrow to carry the news that the Post-Rogers plane had crashed on the tundra. The Eskimo, behind whom part of the plane wreckage is visible, covered the distance in remarkable time.

SOLDIERS MUST HAVE WATER.—Down the dusty road go members of Company I, Tenth Infantry, New York National Guard, with cans to get drinking water for their comrades in the first Army maneuvers at Pine Camp, New York, where approximately 35,000 troops are in "war games."

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

SHE WAS THREATENED.—Thelma Todd, movie actress, who received threats demanding $10,000 which will result in arraignment today of a Long Island father of two children. A note also warned orchestra leader Abe Lyman that Miss Todd would be killed if no money was paid.

Yankees Snap Streak, Trim Tigers, 7 to 5, as Selkirk Stars

This Morning...

With Shirley Povich

ANOTHER commissioner will be appointed, somebody will be elevated to the vacant chairmanship, and boxing in the District probably will survive, but the death of Maj. Lucian Vandoren is by all odds and any reckoning the greatest setback the sport here has received since legalization halted the bootleg bouts. It was not the pleasure of this department to know Maj. Vandoren as more than a semi-business acquaintance, but I do know what he contributed to the game here.

POVICH.

To a sport overridden with connivers, chiselers and racketeers, a racket, in fact, Maj. Vandoren brought a keen legal mind that kept the rascals out. Under his chairmanship, until yesterday, when he got a short count in life at the age of 40, the District Boxing Commission and boxing in the District was untouched by what they call the breath of scandal. He was commissioned to keep it clean and the superb start of legalized boxing here stands as his monument.

Uninitiated in the ways of prize fighting and the manipulations of the half-world characters who infest it, Commissioner Vandoren made it his business to draw up for the District a set of boxing commission rules that has served as a model for countless other new commissions. Taking the rough draft of a set of rules drawn up by Commission Secretary Heinie Miller, he translated them into a fool-proof guide book for the commission, fighters, managers and promoters, which, in fact, has never been challenged.

Quietly and without ostentation, this World War hero who enlisted upon his graduation from Georgetown in 1917 in time to be decorated with the Croix de Guerre (two palms), D. S. M., Order of Merit, and the Gold Star, put the District's boxing house in order. And no complimentary title was Vandoren's. His shoulder straps he won under fire.

MANAGERS, fighters and promoters found Maj. Vandoren easy to approach, and a gentleman of reason, but unyielding when he was asked to shade the rules. Early in his career as a commissioner he put aright the impression that fighterrs or promoters could appeal to the commission in obtaining disputed purses. The boxing commission would administer the affairs of boxing here, but it was not a collection agency, he declared. Money due or owing fighters, managers or promoters was not a commission affair.

Theer was the case of the preliminary boy who was haled before the commission for a disturbance at Griffith Stadium. A little toughie, he had become embroiled in a row with the gatekeeper, who suspected him of passing his license back through the gate so a pal could obtain free admission. Still tough, the boy appeared before the commission ready to deny all. Maj. Vandoren's action in that case was a model for juvenile court judges the world over.

"Young fellow," he told the lad, "we don't want to punish you. But you don't understand the workings of boxing in the District. That license you hold makes you a quasi-official of the District Boxing Commission. We depend upon you to help keep the peace, help keep the game clean. We want no fights outside of the ring, especially from a quasi-official of the District Boxing Commission such as you, who holds a license. We do not issue licenses to anybody who applies. So, that's all I wanted to tell you. I want you to report to me if you see anything going wrong."

And, needless to say, that particular preliminary lad walked from the commission's office with a new slant on life, boxing and himself. He was a quasi-official of the boxing commission, whatever a quasi-official is. Maj. Vandoren had said so. Vandoren was a great guy; and if he saw anything going wrong, he'd let the major know. Yep, that's what he'd do. We officials have to stick together.

Lewiston, Me., Aug. 19 (AP).—Led by "Ducky" Medwick, who found Larry Benton for two home runs, the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Boston Braves in an exhibition game today, 8-3, before 6,000, a record for this city.

Ruth's Successor Gets Five Blows, Figures in All Runs.

New York Raps 16 Hits Off Three Second-String Hurlers.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Aug. 19.—Paced by George Selkirk, Babe Ruth's successor in right field, who was instrumental in scoring all of their runs, the New York Yankees snapped their losing streak at three games today a. they turned back the Detroit Tigers, 7 to 5, in the third game of the series before an overflow crowd of 32,000. The defeat cut the Tigers' margin over the Yanks to seven games.

Selkirk pounded out five hits, including two ground-rule doubles, in as many times at bat, drove in four runs and scored three times himself. Red Rolfe, Tony Lazzeri and Johnny Broaca were the only members of the Yanks that failed to connect safely as they jumped on three of Mickey Cochrane's second-string hurlers for a total of 16 blows, a half-dozen of them ground-rule doubles into the crowd that lined the outfield.

Off to Three-Run Lead.

The Yankees lost no time going to the front. They counted three times on four hits, two of them doubles by Selkirk and Lou Gehrig, in the first inning off Vic Sorrell, who was making his first start since beating the New Yorkers July 23. In the third they drove the right-hander from the mound and picked up the remainder of their runs at the expense of Elon Hogsett and young Joe Sullivan.

The Tigers did not get started against Johnny Broaca until the fourth. Then, with Gehringer, Greenberg and Goslin hitting doubles, they scored three runs. White's ground-rule double and Gehringer's single produced another run in the fifth and brought Walter Brown to the mound.

Chicago, Aug. 19 (AP).—Swift Sport, racing for Max Hirsch, of New York, and trained by his son, W. J. Hirsch, galloped to an easy victory in the mile feature event at Lincoln Fields today.

Ridden by Jockey H. Dudley, Swift Sport jumped to the front as the field of six was sent away and gradually lengthened his lead to take down the purse by ten lengths. The Corsicana Stables' Blessed Event beat Mose Goldblatt's Gilbert Elston for the place in the final jumps to the wire.

Bar on Games Is Urged By President of A.A.U.

New York, Aug. 19 (AP).—Judge Jeremiah T. Mahoney, president of the American Athletic Union and a member of the American Olympic committee, tonight said it was his opinion that unless conditions in Nazi Germany were radically changed at once, United States should not compete in the 1936 Olympic games in Berlin.

"I regret to say," the judge said in a radio address, "that irrefutable proof seems to exist that the discriminations in Germany against Jewish athletes have been continued in such a manner as to justify a definite and positive decision by America that she will not participate in the Olympic games in Berlin, unless conditions are radically changed at once."

Hadley Fails, Nats Bow to Tribe, 11-5

Trosky's Clout, Trio On, Clinches Game After See-Saw Battle.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 19.—An official protest registered by Manager Steve O'Neil, of the Cleveland Indians, in the first inning of the game today was settled in the eighth inning by Irving Hadley, Washington pitcher, to the complete satisfaction of the Cleveland club.

O'Neil announced that the game was being played under protest when Umpire Bill Dineen deprived Bill Knickerbocker of a home run on a ball that stuck in the screen atop the right field wall. After Knickerbocker had circled the bases, Dineen ruled it a two-base hit, whereupon O'Neil entered his complaint.

But he withdrew it in the eighth inning. That was the inning in which, with the score tied at 5-5, Hadley prevailed upon O'Neil to forget the protest by pitching a home-run ball to Nick Trosky with the bases full and otherwise settling matters in favor of the Indians by an 11-5 score.

Is Given Lead Twice.

Hadley was grossly unappreciative of what the Nats had done for him. They had battered down a 3-0 lead he had given the Indians in the first inning, and they had put him in front twice, by scores of 4-3 and 5-4, besides turning in a pair of fast double plays that saved Hadley from being battered out of the box. But he failed 'em in the eighth when six Cleveland runs came cascading across the plate to break the tie.

Hadley dug his own pitfall in the eighth when he walked Bill Knickerbocker to start the inning. He managed to get two out but then pitched a single to Pitcher Thornton Lee and the winning run scored. But the Indians weren't through with Hadley, or vice versa. Milton Galatzer rapped out his second triple of the game to score Lee, and Hadley walked Averill and Vosmik to fill the bases.

Four More Runs.

It was at this point that big Trosky wheeled on an inside pitch and lofted it over the right field wall for the homer that accounted for four more runs. It was the Indians' sixteenth and final hit off Hadley.

Earl Averill reached Hadley for a home run over the right-center field wall to start the Indians on a three-run scoring spree in the first inning that was climaxed by Knickerbocker's disputed double, but the Nats countered with two runs against Walter Stewart in the second inning. Schulte doubled and Travis, Powell and Holbrook singled to bring in the runs.

Takes 4-to-3 Lead.

Four more hits, with Hadley and Kuhel driving in the runs, established Hadley in a 4-3 lead in the fourth, but he gave the tying run back to the Indians in the fifth when Galatzer trippled to right-center and scored on Averill's fly.

Again the Nats established Hadley in a one-run lead when Holbrook singled and eventually scored from third on Joe Kuhel's long fly, but the Indians reached Hadley for the tying run in the same inning. Hadley was lucky to get out of it with only a run scored against him on four hits. He helped himself out of the hole when he threw Hale out at the plate on an attempted squeeze bunt by Brenzel.

Saved in Seventh.

A double-play started by Ossie Bluege on Hale's grounder with men on first and third and one out saved Hadley in the seventh, but there was no saving him in the eighth.

The Nats were joined today by Billy Starr, young Albany catcher, who may share the backstopping duties with Sammy Holbrook upon whom they had devolved since the injuries to Bolton and Redmond. Starr, a weak hitter, is regarded as a clever receiver.

Favorites Win In National Doubles

By the Associated Press.

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 19.—Boston's tennis followers who remained away from Longwood Bowl by the thousands today missed none of their favorite thrills as the stand-outs blasted through the opening rounds of the men's and women's national doubles play.

The only happening of even mild interest to the few racquet addicts present was the not-too-surprising victory registered by J. Brooks Fenno and Henry R. Guild, the veteran Brooklinites, over the third seeded pair, Guy Cheng, of China, and William Reese, of Atlanta, 6—4, 6—2, 6—2.

The top-seeded teams on both lists romped into the second round, Willmer Allison and Johnny Van Ryn conquering T. E. Jansen and G. H. Perkins, of Boston, 6—0, 6—0, 6—1. The premier foreign entries, Roderick Menzel, of Czechoslovakia, and Enrique Maier, Spain, got little more than a warm-up eliminiating Wilbur Hess, of Fort Worth, Tex., the national intercollegiate champion, and Hal Surface, of Kansas City, 6—3, 6—3, 6—3.

Budge, Mako Win.

Don Budge and Gene Mako, the California youngsters selected for Davis Cup service this year, were forced to go overtime, on a distant court, to defeat Leonard S. Patterson, of Los Angeles, and Gerard Phipps, of Denver, son of the former United States Senator from Colorado, 6—3, 6—2, 6—8, 6—0.

Helen Jacobs and many of the British women stars were unable to reach here today, with the result that only four of the nine women's title matches were decided.

While Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan waited for her Wightman Cup doubles partner, with whom she is top-seeded, the other three favored American teams gained the third round on byes and second-round victories.

U. S. Swim Stars Bow to Japanese

Host Relay Team Sets World Mark at Tokyo.

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo, Japan, Aug. 19.—Japan hurled a resounding challenge tonight for 1936 Olympic Games swimming honors when its powerful team defeated United States stars 36 points to 27 in a three-day meet.

Three of tonight's four final events were won by the Japanese in a dazzling finale to an international meeting that saw the 800-meter free style world record bettered by 6.2 seconds.

In the relay, the concluding event, Nasanori Yusa, Ishi Harada, S. Makino and Hiroshi Negami churned over the 800 meters in 8:52.2. The world record of 8:58.4 was set by the Japanese team in the last Olympics, August 9, 1932.

Barney Welsh, McElvenny Victors

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 19.—Led by the defending champion, 22-year-old Barney Welsh, of Washington, D. C., all seeded favorites in the annual National Public Parks tennis tournament advanced to second and third round matches in the opening play here today.

Welsh breezed through his initial encounter against Richard Uible, of Norwood, Ohio, his hard forehand drive to the back court running Uible breathless. The scores were 6—0, 6—4, 6—1.

Welsh's doubles partner, Ralph McElvenney, young Government lawyer, who is seeded No. 5, likewise advanced, defeating Hobart Wrobbell, of Detroit, 6—3, 6—3, 6—3.

Arnold Simons Victor.

Second-seeded Arnold Simons, of Louisville, twice public parks champion and runner-up to Welsh last year at Minneapolis, had an easy time in eliminating Brent Baxter, of Cleveland, 6—1, 6—1, 6—0.

Simons advanced into what the experts predict will be one of the toughest matches of the tournament. He is to play William Hughes, of Memphis, the Tennessee State champion, tomorrow. Hughes outclassed Felix McGivney, of Galveston, Tex., 6—0, 6—1, 6—1.

Johnston Strikes Back at Hammond

'He'll Be Lucky to Keep Job,' He Declares.

By the United Press.

New York, Aug. 19.—Charging Board Chairman John S. Hammond with "trying to get President John Kilpatrick and me booted out at the stockholders' election on September 24," Jimmy Johnston, matchmaker for Madison Square Garden, struck back at Hammond today after the latter had charged Kilpatrick with waste and extravagance during his regime.

"Hammond wants to be president," Johnston declared. "But he'll be lucky to have a job himself after that election. He's been trying to pull stuff like this for years and the big shots in the Garden are tired of it."

While admitting that boxing had not made money for the Garden during the last two years, Johnston defended his office by pointing out that the game has been in dire circircumstances throughout the Nation. He contended that the present revival of the sport would see the Garden's turnstiles clicking merrily again.

Fight Site Decision Near.

New York, Aug. 19 (U.P.).—Mike Jacobs, Twentieth Century Club promoter, may decide tomorrow whether he will hold the Max Baer-Joe Louis heavyweight fight next month in Chicago or New York.

Myer Is Tied With Greenberg As Vosmik Takes Hitting Lead

BATTING leaders were shuffled violently again yesterday when Buddy Myer, Washington captain, surrendered the league lead to Joe Vosmik, Cleveland outfielder.

Held to one hit in four times at bat by the Cleveland southpaws, Walter Stewart and Thornton Lee, Myer lost a fraction of a point, but maintained a .345 average. Vosmik, however, was making capital against the pitching of Irving Hadley, with three hits in four appearances at the plate and added 3 points to his average to boost his figures to .346.

Vosmik was fourth in the batting standings before yesterday's games.

In Tie for Second.

Myer dropped into a tie for second place with Hank Greenberg, Detroit first baseman, who gathered two hits in three appearances against Yankee pitching and boosted his mark to .345.

At Chicago, Roger Cramer, Philadelphia outfielder, who has been pressing the leaders, made three hits in nine times at bat to maintain a .344 average that dropped him from third into fourth place, a point behind Greenberg and Myer, and three points to the rear of Vosmik.

Knight Gets Cold Feet; Won't Battle Everett

Joe Knight, former National Boxing Association light heavyweight champion, suddenly developed cold feet and has definitely refused to meet Buck Everett, local heavyweight, as scheduled on the Police Benefit Card at Griffith Stadium September 30.

Knight had agreed verbally to meet Everett, but following a hectic battle between the two in Miami, suddenly decided he would not fight unless "Everett made 175 pounds." Knight gave as his reason, the fact that he did not care to give away 5 or 6 pounds to a heavyweight, although he has been campaigning almost exclusively gainst those in that division of recent years.

Smallwood Beaten by Overlin

Lipps Pounds Veigh for Unanimous Decision in Semifinal.

KEN OVERLIN, Norfolk middleweight, punched his way to a unanimous decision over Joe Smallwood, a ranking middleweight, in an uninteresting ten-round feature witnessed by some 1,500 fight fans at Griffith Stadium last night.

Smallwood was so completely outclassed in speed and ringmanship that his vaunted right-hand punch availed him absolutely nothing. The Post score sheet gave every round to Overlin.

Joe Lipps, of Ty Ty, Ga., took a unanimous decision from a New York stumblebum known as Julius Veigh in a comical six-round heavyweight semifinal. Lipps pounded and pounded at the unsteady Julius, but was unable to swat him into a swoon in the time allotted him to perform the task.

Gene Buffalo Wins.

Gene Buffalo, a miniature Joe Louis, smacked out a unanimous decision over Sammy Blackburne, of Chester, Pa., in a colorful welterweight six-rounder. Blackburne always had a threatening right hand zipping around and over the Philadelphia lad's person, but he wasn't able to land it often enough to come even near to taking the decision.

Frankie Blair, of Camden, N. J., walloped his way to a unanimous six-round decision over Eddie Faris, of Scranton, in a middleweight preliminary which was exciting, although too one-sided, because Faris landed an occasional blow which might have been a knockout punch on any one less rugged.

Sammy Mara, Florida featherweight, knocked out Miller Lee, of Baltimore, in the third round of an opener scheduled for four. The coupe de grace was applied with a short inside right to the chin.

Young Matron Steals Show In Shoot

Mrs. Hall Defeats Men at Vandalia; Pa. Man Sets World Record.

By the Associated Press.

VANDALIA, Ohio, Aug. 19.—Mrs. Lela Hall, of East Lynne, Mo., stepped into a man's game today and stole the show from her masculine opponents for the second straight year as the thirty-sixth Grand American Trapshooting program opened.

Mrs. Hall, about 24 years old and weighing just a bit over 100, broke 198 out of a possible 200 targets to tie for the Class B crown, the highest score a woman marksman ever made in big league competition, and then won a shoot-off with Dr. L. E. Botts, of Wauseon, Ohio, and Dillie Craig, of Derby, Ky., to take the crown.

Greatest Scoring Spree.

Her performance was not the feature of the thrill-packed inaugural of the annual shoot. Seventeen shooters broke their first 100 targets in the class competitions today and six of them broke 200 straight, the greatest scoring spree the fixture has ever experienced.

Walter Beaver, of Berwin, Pa., North American clay target champion and Grand American Handicap winner in 1933, set a world record for consecutive targets broken with 635. The old mark of 621 was set ten years ago by Boyd Duncan, of Lucy, Tenn.

John Taylor, of Newark, Ohio, a professional for the last 31 years who turned amateur for this year's meet, copped the Class A championship with 200 straight.

The Class A title, the highest in the sport, went to B. C. Butts, of Ferndale, Mich. Butts, who has been shooting but four years, broke 200 in a row to get into a shoot-off with Steve Brothers, veteran, from Chestnut Hill, Pa., and "Russ' Elliott, of Raytown, Mo., and then defeated them in a 50-target shoot-off by breaking 50 more in a row.

Yankee Third in Race.

Baer Serious; Is Confident He'll Win

Is As Grave as Tunney Ever Was; Happy Out of Spotlight.

His Hands No Longer Question, Spectators Are Certain.

By the Associated Press.

SPECULATOR, N. Y., Aug. 19.—The forgotten man of pugilism, Max Baer, has been found again, but you'd scarcely recognize him.

He's roaming the hills where Gene Tunney, who never was unprepared, practiced running backward for that night in Chicago when had had to retreat faster than Jack Dempsey could move forward, or get himself annihilated.

He's swinging an ax in the forests that cover the Adirondacks, crowding down on his mountain cabin. He rows daily over the same lake Tunney pulled a pair of oars and planned his fighting strategy. He squeezes hard rubber balls in his hands all day long to strengthen them, as Tunney did.

Serious This Time.

It's difficult to believe, unless you see it, but Max Baer at the moment is as serious about his profession as Gene Tunney, the most serious of all the heavyweights, ever was. He has hit the comeback trail with a vengeance.

For the first time since he gained fame as prize fighter he seems happy to be out of the spotlight, content to let the rest of the world sing the praises of Joe Louis, the dark thunderbolt, while he himself grimly prepares to demolish the Negro on the night of September 24, probably in the Polo Grounds in New York.

"I practically gave my title to Jimmy Braddock,' he said after finishing five rounds of harder work than he did in an entire week at Asbury Park, N. J., where he tincanned through six weeks of tomfoolery before losing the heavyweight championship to the Jersey Irishman.

Confident of Victory.

"But this time—I'm not fooling. I'm getting ready to fight a world war all by myself if I have to. I can become the greatest man in the fight world again by knocking out Louis. I can get another shot at Braddock, and I can win back the title. I'm going to do all that. I'm going to tear Joe Louis apart."

Baer isn't fooling a bit. He's been here a week. He's worked like a savage. The palms of his hands are covered with callouses, healed blisters from chopping wood.

His wife is here superintending food. His father, Jacob Baer, the original butcher boy of Livermore, Calif., is here with Max's mother. Max does as his dad tells him. So intent are the Baer forces on the comeback campaign that they've even brought Will McCarney up here as the general major domo and field marshal of the camp and training things in general.

65 Seek Amateur Qualifying Berths at Indian Spring Today

Par Elusive In Practice Rounds

By Dave Herman.

SIXTY-FIVE golfers from eight States and the District of Columbia, who will aspire for qualifying berths in the National Amateur in the 36-hole trials scheduled today, got some idea yesterday how really tough the Indian Spring course is when it is heavy and wet.

All day long the golfers, 37 of whom are from Washington, fired away in practice rounds in a futile effort to break par for the 18 holes.

Roger Peacock, pride of the host club and twice a qualifier for the National Amateur, came through with the best performance when he shot 14 holes in even par, after going out in 36. Playing with him in the same foursome were Robby Riegel, Richmond's Southern amateur champion; Morton McCarthy, Middle Atlantic titleholder from Norfolk, and Levi Yoder, of Indian Spring. Each of this trio was from two to four strokes over par when the shooting ceased.

Fondren, Davis Get 75's.

W. D. (Dub) Fondren, of Biltmore Forest, N. C., and Dave Davis, of Dallas, Tex., both of whom are "floaters" from other sections, shot approximate 75s in the morning, and spent the afternoon working from the tee. Fondren is bothered with his woods.

Another who had trouble controlling his shots in the fairway yesterday was Bob Albertus, the tall Washington Golf and Country Club entry, who scored a 38 in a 9-hole round. Playing the back side, Albertus unleashed two terrific wood shots on the 525-yard sixteenth, reaching the edge of the green in 2, and scoring a birdie 4. He played the last six holes in one under par. Albertus is a former Philadelphia amateur champion.

John Shorey, Kenwood entry, reported a 75. He had two 73's Sunday.

Sixty of the 65 golfers will battle for eleven places allotted the Middle Atlantic sector. The other five—Jennings B. Gordon, of Atlanta; Bob Elian, of Jacksonville; Judd Brumley, of Knoxville; Fondren and Davis are the "floaters" and must equal or excel the highest qualifying score of the eleven qualifiers in order to win places. Their qualifying scores in no way will interfere with the Middle Atlantic golfers who win berths.

Play will begin at 8:30 and will be resumed at 12:30. Reid W. Diggest, of Kenwood; Harvey Johnson, of Columbia, will be the first to tee off. Others will follow at six-minute intervals.

Peacock Is Favored.

Peacock, strongly favored to win the medal, in view of his familiarity with the course, is paired with 200-pound Morton McCarthy and Henry A. Parr 3d, Baltimore veteran, at 9:30 and 1:30.

Riegel plays with Maury Nee, young Columbia star, who qualified for the 1932 Amateur at Five Farms, and M. Parker Nolan, the long-belting Congressional Adonis, at 9:48 and 1:48. Nolan played only six holes of the back nine yesterday, but showed some real stuff with a 2-under-par performance.

Fondren's touring companions are Billy Dettweiler, Congressional boy star, and Atlanta's Gordon, who play at 10:06 and 2:06.

Harry Pitt, of Manor, who has played in numerous national amateurs, is paired with Brumley and Frank Goodwin, of Congressional, at 9:24 and 1:24.

Back seeking a qualifying berth for the fourth straight time is Martin F. McCarthy, of Beaver Dam, who went to the third round of the Amateur at Brookline last season.

Twelve of the contestants are Baltimoreans. Virginia has entered eight; Pennsylvania, three.

Tourney Opens September 9.

The successful qualifiers—and there can be as many as 16—will compete in the all-match-play National Amateur at the Country Club, Cleveland, September 9-14.

Al Houghton, of the professional staff, who placed the pins yesterday, expects 147 to be the medal-winning score, with 156 to win a place. Others think 143 will win the medal and 158 a qualifying berth.

Cubs Held to Five Hits, But Nip Phils

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, Aug. 19.—Although they were held to five hits and blanked for the first seven innings, the Chicago Cubs came through with a 2-to-1 victory over the Phillies today to go into a virtual tie for second place with the idle St. Louis Cardinals.

For six innings Joe Bowman held the Cubs hitless. He yielded two blows in the seventh but kept them away from the plate only to be driven from the mound in the eighth when an error by Mickey Haslin, Pinch-Hitter O'Dea's double and a walk to Augie Galan loaded the bases. Sylvester Johnson was called to the rescue and Billy Herman greeted him with a single, sending two runs over the plate.

903 Vie Today In Amateur Qualifying

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug 19.—The annual "zero hour" for America's amateur golfers will be reached tomorrow when a far-flung army of 903 goes over the top on 26 fronts for 176 places for the national championship to be played at Cleveland, September 9-14.

The second straight all-match-play tournament will number 201 players, an increase of more than 20 over last year. Ten qualified last week in the Far West and 15 others, comprising 10 former winners and 5 foreign entrants, are exempt from the 36-hole sectional qualifying tests.

W. Lawson Little, jr., the defending champion; George T. Dunlap, jr., winner in 1933, and big Tony Torrance, of England, are among the leading players who qualify automatically.

Goodman Seeks Place.

Johnny Goodman, who won the open crown two years ago, will take the test in the Omaha district, where 14 players are entered for three places. Goodman survived an even tighter squeeze there last year. Vieing with him will be his hometown rival, Rodney Bliss, jr., and the formidable Jack Hoerner, of Stanford University.

Dallas and Oklahoma City also offer some keen rivalry. Dallas has been apportioned eight places for 23 contestants, including Dave Goldman, Little's victim in the 1934 final; Reynolds Smith, Leland Hamman, Ed White and young Charley Dexter, jr. Walter Emery, Zell Eaton and the long-hitting Harry Gandy are among the field of 16 seeking four places in Oklahoma City.

Only something on the order of form reversals should prevent the other headliners from making the trip to Cleveland next month.

Yates in Field of 20.

Charley Yates, the Georgian who holds the Western amateur title, will compete in a field of 20 for four places at Atlanta. Gus Moreland and Jack Westland, 1934 Walker Cupsters, are entered in the Chicago district along with such able players as George Dawson, Don Armstrong, Johnny Lehman and Freddie Haas. Another internationalist, Johnny Fischer, will take the test in Cincinnati.

The New York district, with 23 places for 133 entrants, offers plenty of breathing room for Frankie Strafaci, newly crowned public links champion; Watts Gunn, Gene Homans, George Voigt, Dick Chapman, Willie Turnesa and Tommy Goodwin. Young Robert Carpenter, (Bobby) Jones of Detroit, who gained the headlines by eliminating the veteran Francis Ouimet in the first round at Brookline, will shoot for one of the six places in his native section.

Chicago Splits Double Bill With A's

Wins, 7-2, and Bows, 8-4; Foxx, Johnson, Hayes, Piet Hit Homers.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Jimmy Foxx's twenty-third home run of the season with a man on helped the Philadelphia Athletics today to an 8 to 4 victory over Chicago in the second game of a double-header.

The White Sox took the opener, 7 to 2, behind John Whitehead's effective pitching.

A pair of two-run homers by Jack Hayes and Tony Piet accounted for all the Chicago runs in the second game, after Bob Johnson set the style with his twenty-second round trip blow in the opener.

Augusterfer, '34 C. U. Captain, To Play With Pirate Grid Pros

By Lewis F. Atchison.

GENE AUGUSTERFER, burly 200-pound captain and quarterback of Catholic University's 1934 football team, departed yesterday for Pittsburgh, where he will begin pre-season training with the Pittsburgh Pirates' professional eleven. He signed to play with the Smoky City aggregation Sunday.

A brainy field general on the field of battle and a veritable Spartan physically, Augusterfer won the praise of Head Coach "Dutch" Bergman as the greatest blocking back developed at Catholic University during his regime, and veteran observers are willing to concede that he was the best of a decade. He rarely carried the ball, kicked or passed, but chiefly confined his efforts to clearing a path for a teammate.

"Fod" Cotton, Cardinal end coach, yesterday said Augusterfer should make his mark in paid ranks. Cotton pointed out that good blocking backs are much sought after by pro outfits, which can obtain all the prima donnas they can carry. Cotton speaks from experience, having played with Rock Island immediately after his graduation from Notre Dame.

Joe Bach, Pirate coach, took a fancy to the poker-faced "Gussie" when he saw him perform against Duquesne. Bach was Elmer Layden's assistant at the time. It was Bach who tendered the offer to Augusterfer, reputedly at a price of $100 per game.

Augusterfer is the third Cardinal recruit to march off to the professional gridiron wars. Ed Lynch, an end and halfback, played with Detroit after graduating in 1925, and Tom Whelan, speedy halfback, performed with the Pirates and Brooklyn after graduating in 1932. Whelan quit football only last season.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

HARRISONBURG, Va., Aug. 19.—The Culpeper Champions and the Front Royal All-Stars enter the last of the second-half race in the Valley League race, neck and neck, both maintaining their positions during the past week by winning all their games.

Culpeper holds a one-game lead over Front Royal, but the Champions have played 1 games while the All-Stars have participated in only 10. Front Royal has two postponed games with the two Charlottesville clubs, having been forbidden to play by Warren County health authorities because of fears of an epidemic of paralysis.

Climb Near Top.

Harrisonburg climbed within two games of the top by taking four games during the week. Harrisonburg has won as many games as Frant Royal, but has lost two more. The Culpeper clash tomorrow will be a factor in the leadership should Harrisonburg win, but the most important clash is that Wednesday between Culpeper and Front Royal.

During the past week, Culpeper disposed of the Albemarle Weavers (replacing the Heurich Brewers) and Charlottesville, while Front Royal took the measure of Waynesboro and Staunton.

Harrisonburg registered victories over Staunton, the Weavers, Orange and Charlottesville, getting brilliant pitching which permitted only six runs in these games.

Charlottesville slipped back, being unable to halt Culpeper and Harrisonburg, although triumphing over Waynesboro.

Waynesboro went into fifth place by vanquishing Orange yesterday after losing to Charlottesville and Front Royal. Orange, in fifth place, manager to score a victory over Staunton. The Augusta County champions returned to their losing ways and dropped three games and wound up only a game ahead of the Weavers in the cellar. The Weavers inherited an adverse standing when they took over the Heurich franchose and have been unable to register a victory.

This Week's Schedule.

Tuesday—Harrisonburg at Culpeper.
Wednesday—Culpeper at Front Royal, Harrisonburg at Waynesboro.
Thursday—Front Royal at Orange; Culpeper at Staunton.
Saturday—Weavers at Waynesboro, Culpeper at Orange, Front Royal at Staunton.

"Out Fishin'"

By Jack Hawley.

SATURDAY and Sunday's fishing at South West Middles netted all boats the total sum of nothing.

Saturday the wind was northeast and blowing a gale which forced all boats in during the afternoon. Sunday the wind was due east and very moderate, the water was in ideal condition for both chumming and trolling and approximately 50 boats were on the fishing grounds early and remained until noon, when the majority of boatmen called it a day. It was useless to continue as the bluefish had ceased to strike. Naturally the wind was responsible and as the saying goes "when the wind is in the east, the fish bite least" held true to its tradition.

The blues are still there as proven Sunday morning when they showed themselves in the clear crystal-like water as we were dropping anchor, about 5 feet below the surface. Chum was put over the side in an effort to get them to strike but it was a useless gesture. The blues seemed paralyzed, lazily swimming away without a glance toward our fresh menhaden bait. Six bushels of chum were used by our two boats and not a strike was had by any members of our party. A careful checkup of all boats showed that not one fish had been taken during the day.

Same All Over.

Information received late Sunday night from a radius of 200 miles of Washington proved that the above conditions were prevailing everywhere in the Potomac and lower part of the bay. The boatmen had good returns financially as every one of them were busy. Even so, they regretted the fact that their parties had seen the worst fishing of the season. With a strong south or west wind you can look for a return of the excellent blue fishing on the Middles.

Last week was the banner week, but will not remain so for long. The next few weeks should bring about better blue fishing as the large ones seem to have established their headquarters on the Middles. Saturday evening this writer made inquiries in regard to the nets that are being used to circle large schools of breaking blues on the Middle Grounds, as many complaints have been received by anglers who claim that it was illegal and destroying the chances of both trolling boatmen and chummers. Only three commercial fishermen are using such a method of netting fish and they are within their rights because they are using gill nets, which is permissible under the law.

This writer, however, is of the opinion that it is detrimental to take this fish in such a manner in that it will injure the fishing by cutting down the supply, reduce the incomes of boatmen catering to sport fishermen, discourage the anglers and force them to seek other and less favorable fishing grounds. Gill nets used while anglers are trying to catch a few bluefish in the vicinity is nothing short of "butchery" at the expense of decent boatmen and respectable anglers.

Spot Fish on Way.

Solomons Island drew two blank days over the week-end, says Capt. J. C. Lore. Business was good, but the fishing the worst ever. Every place on the bay marked up a zero on the score sheet for results obtained. Watch the wind's direction and if other than northeast or southeast grab your tackle and give the fishing a try. You should be well rewarded. Remember the spot are now coming up the bay in large quantities and what bait is better for the weak fish (trout) than a nice strip of spot, his favorite food.

James D. Jarman reports very good fishing at Ocean City, Md., last week and expects same to improve from now through the end of the present season. Blue fishing is reaching its peak with boats returning with tremendous catches. However, the blues are not running over 3 pounds and approximately the same weight for trout. Stingerees are being taken daily up to 75 pounds apiece. Marlin are being sighted daily about 25 miles off the coast of Ocean City.

Capt. Wilbur Pembroke, of Ridge, Md., writes that his phone number has been changed to 16-F-11 and his fast dependable boat is available for parties wishing to reach the Middle Grounds.

Reports received from the lower part of the bay for Monday are discouraging, with weather conditions remaining unchanged and threatening to continue for another 24 hours. This will complete the usual three-day blow from the east, after which we can look for some excellent weather and ideal fishing. Monday's reports were received at 4 p. m.

Alexandria Lists Donkey Games

Special Dispatch to The Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Aug. 19.—Chris Heurich, jr., and Hamilton Fish, prominent Washington Lions Club members, are among the players that will show here August 22 in the donkey baseball attraction for the benefit of the local Lions Club charity fund. The following night the Bar Association All-Stars, managed by Judge Harry Kennedy, will oppose the Lions Club.

The St. Mary Celtics are without a game for Sunday. Teams interested should call Manager Beach at Alexandria 1275-J.

John Travers, manager of the Alexandria Eagles, is after a game for his team with out-of-town teams for Sunday. Call Alexandria 510 between 6 and 7 p. m.

The Red Robins and The Washington Post carriers will hook up at Baggett's Stadium Monday, August 26, for the city junior baseball title.

The following players will represent the St. Marys Celtics in the State baseball tourney at Richmond, beginning August 30 and 31: Art Benson, Frank Brewer, Otts Zahn, Walter Morris, Red McMenniman, "Pepco" Barry, Ellet Cabell, Joe Hamilton, "Huck" Hilleary, Archie Scrivener, Jim Titcomb, "Shout" Taylor, Art Lacy and Johnny Bosek.

Carl Stonebraker, Jr., Is Tourney Medalist

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 19.—Carl Stonebraker, jr., with a 77, was medalist in the qualifying round in the championship golf matches at the Fountain Head Club here. The youngster nosed out his father, who shot a 78 to tie with C. W. Cromer and M. Wellington Crane. The championship matches will get under way in two weeks.

Tennis Tourney Won by Blue And Dower

Root and Borden Beaten in Playground Finals by 6—1, 6—3.

THE Takoma Park team of Melvin Dower and Delwin Blue, whose Seventh Day Adventist views postponed their finals match from Saturday to Monday, yesterday won the senior boys' doubles tennis championship of the Department of Playgrounds. Apparently refreshed at the consent of the department to delay the championship round, they trounced Sam Root and Paul Borden, of Chevy Chase, 6—1, 6—3, to take the title won by Allie and Nate Ritzenberg, of Cooke Playground, last year.

While the Takoma team was setting back one Chevy Chase combination on its own court, another Chevy Chase duo was likewise stumbling on its home soil, Angelo Valenza and Richard Buckingham losing the junior title to Doyle Royal and Harold Landsman, of Park View Playground, 6—2; 6—1.

Dower Chief Figure.

Dower was the foremost figure on the court in the senior fracas, though ably assisted by the white-capped Blue. Hitting with a power belieing his slender physique, Dower's drives forced Root and his partner away from the net consistently, at which point the Takoma Park boys would take the forecourt and invariably put the point away.

The result was something of an upset, despite Dower's being No. 1 man on the Roosevelt High tennis team. Root captained Central's net team in 1934 and Borden, though playing his first year of tennis, has been described as the most improved player in the tournament.

In winning, Dower and Blue justified their ranking at the top of some 500 boy teams of the city in the senior division, and Royal and Landsman likewise atop another 500 teams which originally began competition in the junior division.

Middletown's Nine Adds to Advantage

Defeats Brunswick by 8-3, Near First Pennant in Fifteen Years.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

FREDERICK, Md., Aug. 19.—Middletown defeated Brunswick, 8 to 3; Taneytown set back Thurmont, 5 to 3; New Windsor took the measure of Emmitsburg, 3 to 2, and Union Bridge downed Woodsboro, 8 to 4, in the Frederick County League games.

By defeating Brunswick, Middletown moved within the shadow of its first pennant since the organization of the county league 15 years ago. The valleyites scored two runs in the first inning and were not headed thereafter. The game was a pitchers' battle between Arthur Hauver and Woody Younkins, 17-year-old Brunswick rookie.

New Windsor came from behind to down Emmitsburg. Althoff held the collegians scoreless until the eighth inning, when a walk, singles by Barnes and Shilling and a double, by Baker, put over three runs.

High Officials to Play In Benefit Ball Game

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Elkins, W. Va., Aug. 19.—Gov. H. G. Kump and Representative Jennings Randolph have been invited to participate in the baseball reunion to be held here August 23 for the benefit of "Farmer" Powers, former Elkins catcher.

Gov. Kump formerly played a fast game at third base for Elkins, and his former mates here feel that if he can be excused from his official duties he will consent at least to play part of the game.

Randolph has been asked to pitch the first ball, but not to play, since he is too young to qualify with the original team.

Whopper, at $2.90, Scores Easily at Narragansett Park

GlyndonBelle Runs Second In Feature

Legume Finishes Third; Daily Double Returns $56.70 Mutuel.

By the Associated Press.

NARRAGANSETT PARK, R. I., Aug. 19.—Hal Price, Headley's Whopper, a sizable son of Pharamond, II, come into his own here today with an easy victory in the Pawtucket, a mile and 70 yards for 3-year-olds.

Only a neck back of Advising Anna when the Haughton horse equaled the track record for a mile here last week, Whopper today ran the distance only a fifth of a second slower than the record. The bay colt's time was 1:42 3-5 and his margin over Percy Pike's Glyndon Belle was two lengths.

J. B. Partridge's Barcarolle was the first to show on top but in front of the clubhouse Whopper moved up and was followed by Glyndon Belle. These two never changed their positions, while Barcarolle and Breckenridge Long's Legume vied for the next position, with the others out of it.

Answers Challenge.

Around the far turn Glyndon Belle moved up on Whopper, but the Headley horse answered the challenge -- easily it seemed as if the record might have been broken had Whopper been pressed more.

Straightening out down the back stretch, Legume came on the outside and established himself in third place. He had 2½ lengths on Baracarolle as they flashed past the judges.

Whopper paid $2.90, $2.70 and $2.20. Glyndon Belle paid $5.50 and $3 and Legume, $2.60.

The daily double today paid $56.70, with 295 tickets sold on the combination of More News in the first and Dancing Lady in the third.

MEROVECH was well up the entire trip, though unable to improve his position in the closing drive. MERELY, well up, dropped back after rounding the far turn.

Rally by Giants Tops Reds In 10th, 4-3

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—The New York Giants took advantage of the Cardinals' idleness today and increased their lead to three full games as they rallied to whip the Cincinnati Reds, 4 to 3, in 10 innings.

Dick Bartell, who collected three hits during the afternoon, struck the deciding blow after the league leaders had knotted the count in the eighth. With only one out, the Giants got to Tony Freitas and placed two on as Mel Ott walked and Mark Koenig came through with a single.

Don Brennan was called from the bull pen, but after getting out Hank Leiber, he walked Gus Mancuso, filling the bases. Then Bartell came through, beating out a hit to short while Ott scampered home with the winning run.

At the Post . . .

Narragansett Park, Aug. 19.

Dear Al:

Business was fairly good again today for Bennings, Inc. We had three winners, including Airy Heiress at $15.80 (I'm still trying to figure how they let him go to the post at such odds). We also had three seconds, including Postscript, which we barely missed chasing home, and two thirds. Eight out of eight in the money. Trainer Joe believes he has a real hot thing for tomorrow in Mr. Pete. I couldn't see that one with a telescope and he looked daggers (there's a hunch on Three Daggers in the eighth) at me when I left him out of the money. However, I promised to pass it along to his friends, who probably won't be his friends after the race. I did follow Joe closely on several other horses which have made fast moves. A week from tomorrow Bennings, Inc., will have a family reunion at Marlboro. You know Clocker Mike is holding the fort now at Cumberland which resumes its meeting tomorrow. He did very well last week with the half-milers and I'm going to see if I can't get him a raise.

BILL.

First race—Lady Greenock is the natural choice in the day's opener. She has both races and trials to recommend her. Clasp appears second best. Breaks off the rail and will be in the thick of the chief going. Counter Pass has worked well and may surprise.

Second race—Acautaw, providing those ailing legs hold up, is going to have a lot to say about the distribution of this purse. Has the speed to take advantage of that inside post position. Aegis, an old timer, should do the chief chasing. Jessie D. M. is not entirely outclassed and is a factor.

Third race—Queen Helen has one victory to her credit over such as these and she should be at her best tomorrow. Coin for the place and Fair Countess to show. The last named packs a heavy stretch punch.

Fourth race—Crackle probably will go well in this company. Gets in with steadying weight and has a fair rider in Stevenson. Bedight and Crazy Jane are both fit and ready and will be battling it out if the top one makes mistakes.

Fifth race—Single Regan has been knocking at the door of late and with an assignment of 110 pounds I see no reason for mistakes. Wall will do the saddle work. Hogan's Fox could make his presence felt in this company. Col. Greene to take care of the others.

Sixth race—Ramus turned in a nice winning effort for us last out and I expect him to make it two in a row. Barry closed like a house afire and was barely beaten in a recent sprint. Should go well at the longer route. Integrity for the rest.

Seventh race—Teddy Carl finds a route to his liking and he should annex a set of brackets, probably at a fair price. Big Gawk and Goldfin for the place and show awards.

Cumberland.
1—Any Price, Tuleyries Rock, Dressmaker.
2—Foggy Dawn, Pordina, Rapidup.
3—Lodorus, Justa Teacher, This Play.

Center Market And Acacia Tie, 3 to 3

ACACIA INSURANCE and Center Market, the series winners in the National Capital loop, battled to a 3-to-3 tie yesterday on the Ellipse in the opening game for The Post Association title in this league. Two thousand five hundred fans saw the game. These teams will clash again today on the Ellipse diamond.

Joe Giovanetti's bat supplied the momentum which enabled the Insurance Nine to come from behind and tie the confident Marketmen in the fourth and fifth innings. Young Giovanetti collected three hits off "Cousin" Kaplan.

Led by Tonker and Murphy, both of whom clouted lusty triples, the Market team was away to an auspicious 3-run lead, but further outbursts by the Marketmen were effectively quelled under the influence of Dick Nichol's southpaw pitching. Kaplan, on the mound for Center Market, matched Nichol's 6-hit performance and, as far as these boys were concerned, the final score reflected the difference between them in yesterday's struggle.

Du Pont Raises Common Rate, Declares Extra

Quarterly Dividend Lifted From 65 to 90 Cents; Extra 35 Cents.

By the Associated Press.

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 19.—The E. I. Dupont de Nemours & Co. declared today an extra dividend of 35 cents on the common stock and increased the regular quarterly dividend on the common to 90 cents from the previous rate of 65 cents. Both dividends are payable September 14 to the stockholders of record August 28.

The company also declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent on its debenture stock, payable October 25 to stockholders of record October 10.

The company last December declared an extra dividend of 15 cents on the common stock. Last September a 50-cent exra also was paid.

Of the 90 cents a share on Dupont common, it is figured that about 67½ cents comes from the company's investment in General Motors. The company owns 10,000,000 shares of General Motors.

General Motors' last dividend was 75 cents a share, which in this instance is apportioned among the Dupont Co.'s own stockholders, who hold 11,065,762 shares of Dupont stock.

Wheat Is Lower, Market Nervous

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—Nervous wheat price fluctuations today characterized a market in which a watchful waiting attitude among traders predominated. Closing prices were near the low point of the day with net losses of about a cent a bushel.

There was little in the trade situation to stimulate buying. An extremely heavy primary movement and a liberal increase of more than 6,000,000 bushels in the domestic visible supply of wheat were bearish factors.

Wheat closed ½ to 1 cent below Saturday's finish, December 87⅝ to 87¾, and corn was ⅝ to 1⅜ off, December 55@55⅛, rye was ¼ off and barley unchanged to ½ down.

Copper at 8½ Steps Upward From Old Level

Rise of ½-Cent Reflects Continued Expansion of Industry.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 19.—Sales of copper have been made in the domestic markets at 8½ cents a pound, it was learned today, an advance of one-half cent over the price prevailing the last several months.

Immediately after the advance in the domestic price was made public, General Cable Corporation advanced the price of copper rods, bare wire and magnet wire one-half cent a pound and weatherproof wire three-eighths of a cent. These immediate price schedules will be followed by mark-ups in the price of all types of cable, officials of the company stated.

At the same time, it was learned, sales of copper abroad have been made at 8¼ cents a pound, c. i. f. European base ports, which represents a small fractional advance over levels prevailing at the end of last week.

A constant expansion of demand in the domestic market coincident with the sustained upturn in industrial activity, was believed in well-informed quarters to have been responsible for the advance in the domestic price, which has remained at 8 cents a pound over the last several months, or since the Blue Eagle price of 9 cents toppled shortly after the NRA was invalidated by the Supreme Court.

Market Moves Of the Day Seen In Brief Review

What the Stock Market Did.

	Mon.	Sat.
Advances	174	354
Declines	509	194
Unchanged	155	184
Total issues	838	732

Stocks—A shower of profit taking and nervous selling carried the market on a downward course. A few groups were able to resist the pressure which carried some pivotal issues off 1 to 3 points. Sales were fastest in late trading and the ticker ran several minutes behind the floor. Volume up to 2,062,560 shares.

Bonds—Corporates were unsettled by weakness in other finance marts and closed generally lower. Federals were steady to within 15 minutes of the close, when some issues were carried down. Transfers were off to $10,373,000.

Curb—Heavy profit taking was the feature of an active session. Electric Bond & Share yielded 2¾ points to close at 17¼. Transactions approximated 515,000 shares.

Grains—Wheat was nervous in a waiting market, closing ½ to 1 below Saturday's lats. Corn was off ⅝ to 1⅜ of a cent, while oats were higher. September wheat last at 85⅝; corn, at 73⅞, and oats at 25⅝.

Cotton—Continued nervousness over the expected Government crop loan was reflected in irregular fluctuations, the market closing 2 higher to 4 lower. October was last at 11.42.

Sugar—Raw up to 3.18 and refined the same at 5.10 for the fine granulated.

Coffee—Spot coffee was higher. Rio No. 7 final at 6¾ and Santos No. 4 last at 8.

Newspapers Gain 4.5% Advertising

Chicago, Aug. 19.—Gains in newspaper advertising volume which have been reported during the past year were continued in July, says Advertising Age, in an analysis of newspaper advertising volume in 84 cities. The gain over July, 1934, was 4.5 per cent, the total being 127,687,000 lines, an increase of 5,488,000 lines for the period.

General advertising jumped 9.5 per cent and classified advertising, 11.4 per cent. Another encouraging indication was an expansion in fiancial advertising volume. It rose 10.2 per cent, or 271,000 lines, as compared with the July, 1934, total of 2,657,000 lines. Retail advertising, which accounts for the largest volume of any classification, maintained its position with a gain of 2,145,000 lines, or about 3 per cent.

Highlights and Background Of Financial News and Trends

By Carlton A. Shively.

New York, Aug. 19.—General financial market calm was broken into late this afternoon by an outburst of selling in stocks, following passage of the Guffey bill through the House. The implication of that to the market was that legislators would stand for anything, and other conditions were considered favorable by the bears for a try at prices. The movement halted a half hour or so before the close, but the will of stocks to advance was weakened and prices were generally lower, on a turnover of more than 2,000,000 shares. At the worst the tape was four minutes late. Treasury bonds were somewhat firmer. Commodities also were unsettled. September wheat closed ⅞ of a cent lower at 85¾ cents a bushel.

As leaders of the share market the steels, coppers and chemicals gave the market a choice of two explanations. One that applied to all was the war talk. Particularly, the steels had the benefit of an estimate of another rise in the operating rate. Coppers were aided by the rise in the price of the metal by a half cent a pound.

Chemicals were stirred by Dupont's higher dividend and, indirectly, by the rising activity in the steel industry. Steel common rose to a new high price for the year, as did Dupont. As for airplanes, their buoyancy seemed to be due entirely to the possibility of war orders, for the home flying news was against them. Douglas, United and others rose a point or more.

Stop Losses Uncovered.

That mild demonstration in three favored groups, even in the early trading, was largely offset by selling of rails, utilities and miscellaneous stocks. Then with the passage of the Guffey coal bill in the House a rush of bears to the selling posts uncovered a good many stop-loss orders and a hurried movement to save profits while the time was still available.

Before outsiders realized what was taking place among the professionals on the floor of the Exchange, from 1 to 3 points had been cut away from the market leaders. Steel, which had topped 45, dropped a point and a half before it could rally. New York Central, at 24⅞ by early afternoon, lost over a point. Considering the violence of the selling while the squall lasted, about half an hour, the resistance of the market was good.

War negotiations failed to upset European currencies, most of which are under strong control, or else the adverse influences working on the dollar, including silver purchases, were the greater factor. At any rate sterling was buoyant, contrary to its seasonal tendency, and most of the gold exchanges moved higher.

Capital Looks at London.

If capital generally is becoming nervous, it is understandable that London should be chosen as a haven, and especially now that this country is veering so sharply toward the idea of wealth destruction. Money market rates were unchanged and the prospect is as bright as ever that excess bank reserves will rise higher in the next few months, with irresistible pressure on interest charges.

With Congress entering upon what every one fervently hoped would be the final week for this session, and with much uncertainty still covering the legislation likely to be passed, the market did not react strongly either to its hopes or fears. Week-end trade news was of no great consequence. It now is well known and well discounted that the summer let-down in business was far less marked than it was a year ago, and that consequently the chances of autumn progress are considerably greater.

On the domestic side it would appear that the worst Congress now can do with the tax bill, bank bill, utility measure, coal bill and the few other bits of repressive measures will not greatly change the general situation much during the remainder of the year. That which is giving the most anxiety is the long-term consequences of an unbalanced budget and a floating currency.

Europe a Cloud.

Meanwhile the situation in Europe took a turn for the worse with the rejection by Italy of peace proposals. Determination of Italy to fight with Ethiopia might be left to the moralists by the economists, were the danger to other countries less. As it happens any shooting in either Europe or Africa is highly disturbing to the peace of other countries, eastern and western. In its present state, the European nations would speedily complete their economic ruin by running into another war, although that is unlikely to deter them.

Financial disaster at the end of the road might well deter, nevertheless, those who think another killing lies just around the corner in war stocks. On the whole this country's trade stands to lose many times over as much as it possibly could gain, even if war were confined to Italy and Ethiopia. Outbreak of a general conflict might bring a flurry in war stocks, but the more pronounced it became the shorter it would be, and the greater the likelihood that profits would be taken away by taxation, if any real ones could be found.

Du Pont.

An increase in the regular and an extra dividend for du Pont was the natural sequence of the higher General Motors payment. The total which du Pont stockholders will receive next dividend day is 60 cents a share, against 50 cents for General Motors, so that du Pont added a little from its own operations. This morning the bulls made some attempt to enliven the market in war stocks and du Pont was helped by the movement, selling up a point or two to a new high price for the year.

War Stocks.

Recent favorites — utilities, rails and motors—subsided in the early trading while the steels, airplanes and coppers came forward. The character of those groups fits the explanation, or vice versa, that the rejection by Italy of peace overtures meant war with Ethiopia was more likely. No one seems to know for sure how either country could raise money for war, whether shipments of any war material might be permitted from here, or just which companies would be willing to do business on a credit basis. It was nevertheless remembered that where the will to fight exists a way to secure munitions always is found.

Local Banks Protect 98.7% Of All Accounts

FDIC Report Shows That 470,204 Balances Are Insured Here.

By R. Karl von Lewinski.

A Government report published yesterday disclosed that Washington's 22 banks on October 1, 1934, carried full insurance on 98.7 per cent of all their accounts.

Chairman Leo T. Crowley of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation in his annual report to Congress announced that an aggregate of 470,204 insured accounts were carried here. Of these, 463,878 were fully insured, while 6,326 were partially covered.

On the report date, local banks had total deposits of $251,916,000. Of this amount $135,517,000 was insured by the Federal corporation.

By individual classification it was shown that deposits of $135,147,000 were carried in fully insured accounts while $31,630,000 was carried with partial protection; $116,769,000 was not insured.

Nine National Banks.

The nine local National Banks on the date of report carried 178,784 fully insured, and 3,541 partially insured accounts. Two State banks, members of the Federal Reserve System, contained 113,043 completely insured, and 1,520 partly insured accounts.

Eleven banks here not members of the Federal Reserve System reported that they were carrying 172,051 fully insured, and 1,265 partially protected accounts. Virtually all small depositors in the local banks are completely protected.

In the national banks here, of aggregate deposits of $146,246,000, a total of $49,772,000 was fully insured, $17,705,000 was carried in partially insured accounts, while $116,769,000 came outside of both classifications.

State Banks.

The two local State bank members of the Reserve System had deposits of $59,009,000 with $25,985,000 fully insured, $7,600,000 partially protected and $25,424,000 uninsured.

The other eleven banks not members of the Reserve System carried total deposits of $46,661,000 of which $27,759,000 was fully insured and $6,325,000 partially covered; $12,577,000 in uninsured deposits were carried in partially insured accounts.

A Nation-wide survey contained in the report showed that national banks had fully protected 98.1 per cent of all their accounts. State bank members of the Federal Reserve System had insured 98.7 per cent of their accounts, and other banks had insured 99.3 per cent.

During the year only nine insured banks were placed in receivership, Crowley reported, with aggregate insured deposits of $937,000. All but 14 of the 15,518 depositors in the closed banks were fully protected.

Foreign Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

Movements of leading foreign currencies were mixed yesterday in relation to the dollar in foreign exchange dealings in New York and abroad. Business was reported to be restricted as a result of uneasiness over the Ethiopian crisis and the economic situation in The Netherlands.

The guilder and the lira were easy in London, both for spot and forward delivery. In New York the lira declined .01½ of a cent at 8.22 cents, and guilders were off .11 of a cent at 67.85 cents.

The pound sterling rose ⅝ of a cent in New York at $4.97¾. Earlier in London the dollar was soft at 4.97 11/16 to the pound.

The French franc advanced .00¼ of a cent in the American market at 6.63¾ cents. In Paris in earlier dealings the dollar was slightly lower at the equivalent of 6.634 cents to the franc. Swiss francs were unchanged at 32.78 cents in New York.

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London.—Uncertainty over the outcome of the Italo-Abyssinian situation subdued trading on the stock exchange today. There was a general marking down of prices in anticipation of selling which has not yet materialized. Italian bonds, gilt-edged securities and speculative issues are the ones which the continent is most interested in and should be most affected. Austrian bonds were quiet, while Brazilian issues, tin shares and transatlantics were steady exceptions. The closing tone was weak.

Paris.—Munition stocks alone resisted the selling wave on the bourse today, following the collapse of the Ethiopian conference. Rentes declined half a point and electric, bank, chemical and oil issues were lower. The market closed heavy.

Berlin.—Dr. Schacht's address depressed prices on the boerse today, which opened weaker. Share buying lessened and exchange rates relaxed.

Institute Figures Steel Output 48.8%

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 19.—Steel operations for the current week, as estimated today by the American Iron & Steel Institute, will average 48.8 per cent of capacity. This is the highest level reached in the industry since the week of February 18, this year. The gain over last week is .7 of 1 point. A month ago the schedule was 42.2 per cent, while at this time last year it was 21.3 per cent.

Cotton Mills Set Brisk Pace In Production

Sales and Margins Show Decided Trend Upward.

New York, Aug. 19.—The cotton manufacturing industry of this country took a decided turn for the better the week before last and improvement was continued last week, according to the New York Cotton Exchange Service. Sales of goods, which ran below production for over two months, have exceeded the current output, and manufacturing margins have become wider.

"The improvement in the domestic mill situation which began about two weeks ago was continued last week," says the service. "Notwithstanding uncertainty about the future of the processing tax, cloth buyers have resumed the purchase of goods on a fair scale, apparently for the simple reason that they require goods for purpose of distribution or consumption.

Sales by mills are probably equaling or exceeding current output, in the aggregate. While cotton prices have worked down to lower average levels in the past fortnight, prices of goods have strengthened. This is reflected in an appreciable widening of margins on standard unfinished goods, such as print cloths, sheetings, ducks and drills. Mill activity shows little change in the aggregate, but it is tending upward, in some places, from the abnormally low levels reached in recent weeks.

"The domestic cotton manufacturing industry is entering the new season, 1935-36, with a number of relatively favorable factors, but with certain handicaps. During recent months the mills have held down their operations and hence their output of goods to a level much below a parity with general business activity in this country.

"Meanwhile, wholesale and retail buyers generally have bought cotton goods on an extremely limited scale, although trade reports indicate that both unit and dollar volumes of retail sales have been comparatively well maintained during the past season. In consequence, stocks of finished cotton goods in both wholesale and retail establishments are lower than at any other time in the past two years."

August Upturn Offsets Trade Decline in July

Higher Security Prices and Larger Corporation Profits Reported.

New York, Aug. 19.—Industrial production during July receded by slightly less than the usual seasonal amount, but recovered a considerable portion of this decline during the first half of August, according to the monthly business survey issued today by the National Industrial Conference Board.

The only series among the conference board's selected indicators of production to show a greater-than-seasonal decline during July were those for petroleum, pig iron and bituminous coal. On the other hand, such important indexes as motor production, buildings, steel activity and electric power output were higher than might have been expected under normal seasonal conditions. In general, production continued well ahead of that for the corresponding period of last year.

Indexes of activity in the field of distribution and trade declined by somewhat more than the usual seasonal amount, but these also remained well above the level reported a year ago. Miscellaneous carloadings were 3.7 per cent lower than in June, but were 2.2 per cent higher than in July, 1934. Retail trade, as reflected by sales of department stores, variety stores and mail-order houses, declined measurably from the level of the preceding month.

The value of department store sales for the country as a whole during the first seven months of the current year was 3 per cent higher than during the corresponding period of 1934.

Wholesale commodities averaged slightly lower in July than in the preceding month. This was largely due to declines occurring during the first three weeks of the month. Since July 22, however, the trend in wholesale prices has been sharply upward, with several commodities reaching new high levels for the year during the first half of August.

Security Prices Higher.

Security prices moved upward throughout the month. Common stocks have shown a steadily rising trend from the middle of March to the middle of August without experiencing any important recession. Bond prices have also advanced during the past six weeks; Government issues, however, have shown a tendency to lag behind corporate bonds in the advance.

For the first six months of the year merchandise exports amounted to $1,002,989,000 and were 1.5 per cent lower than in the first half of 1934. Imports during the same period totaled $984,450,000, or 18.4 per cent higher than in the corresponding period of 1934. The decline in exports was general in all classes of goods with the single exception of finished manufactures, which showed an increase during the half year of 10.7 per cent, as compared with the first half of 1934. The increase in goods imported was general throughout the entire list.

Corporation profits during the first half of 1935 were, in general, higher than during the corresponding period of last year. The greatest gains were registered by producers of automobiles, machinery and electrical equipment, and by the construction industry. Coal mining was the only important industry to show lower earnings than a year ago. The gap which existed during the worst months of the depression between the annual rate of return in corporations producing goods for consumption and those engaged in the so-called heavy industries has been considerably narrowed during the past 12 months.

Heavy Realizing Features Curb

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 19.—The curb market staggered under an extra-heavy load of profit taking today, but despite particular pressure in the utility list, selling was orderly. Transfers approximated 515,000 shares compared with 484,000 last Friday.

Electric Bond & Share yielded 2¾ points to 17¼, while Aluminum Co. of America was off as much. Other losers of large fractions to more than a point included American Gas & Electric, Niagara Hudson Power, Hiram Walker, International Petroleum, Distillers Corp.-Seagrams, American Cyanamid "B," American Superpower, Pittsburgh Plate Glass and Sunshine Mining.

Montgomery Ward "A" and Sherwin-Williams represented isolated firm spots, both finishing 1½ points net higher.

Support Order Asked Against Charles Carlin

Estranged Wife of Son of Former Congressman Starts Proceedings.

Mrs. Annie Macon Carlin, estranged wife of Charles Keith Carlin, son of former Representative C. C. Carlin, of Virginia, yesterday petitioned the District Supreme Court to require her husband to contribute to her support and that of their three children. Mrs. Carlin said she was required to live with some of her relatives in Richmond, because her husband did not give her any money.

The Carlins were married in 1914 at Ashland, Ky. Some time ago, the wife charged, her husband told her to close out their Virginia home and join him here. However, she said, when she arrived here she found her husband had neglected to provide a place for them to live in and she returned to Virginia.

Carlin, who lives at 2008 Sixteenth street northwest, is the father of three children, Charles K., jr., Annie Macon and Charles Creighton 3d.

ASBESTOS, today a highly important item in modern life, was also known to the ancient Romans. They made asbestos shrouds in which to wrap the bodies of their dead kings before cremation, thus enabling them to retain the ashes of their ruler.

After this practice died out, the making of asbestos came to be almost a lost art for centuries, until 75 years ago a company was formed in London to manufacture it commercially. Since then asbestos has proven itself indispensible. Strange as it seems, the greatest single use is in automobile brakes — more asbestos is used in the manufacture of brake linings than for anything else.

Crater Lake, in the Cascades of southwestern Oregon, is a water-filled crater of an extinct volcano. There is geological evidence that it erupted in the distant past. The top of the mountain was either blown away by the explosion, or was weakened by the eruption and crumpled in upon tself, leaving a giant crater. In this crater, however, another smaller volcanic peak was thrust up. Today it is extinct; it forms an island, called Wizard Island, in the Crater Lake—an extinct volcano forming an island on a lake inside another extinct volcano.

The Tryon Daily Bulletin, a daily newspaper published in Tryon, N. C., claims distinction as the smallest daily in the country. The tiny paper has pages two columns wide, and about 7 inches deep. The explanatory story on this cartoon would nicely fill half the front page.

Kate Barker and Shotgun George conferred often. They were the brains of this outfit, combined with Freddie's knowledge as gained from Frank Nash associations, Arthur's incisiveness and the coldness of Alvin Karpis, otherwise Old Creepy. Often when the boys were away on a bank robbery, George would drop over to "Ma's" apartment and sit with her, quietly sympathetic, while she wept over the probable fate of her beloved children. The boys had promised to telephone immediately the robbery was over and they were safely away; not until that telephone rang did her eyes become dry. This gesture on George's part, however, finally gained Kate Barker's resentment.

"George is talking too much," she told her boys. "If anybody had a dictograph in this apartment, they'd learn about everything from the St. Valentine's massacre to the Hamm kidnaping.

No Gangster Should Even Talk, George Told

So the boys mentioned it to George. He agreed with them that no gangster ever should talk. Soon again, however, he was glaring about him and in streaming sentences talking about murder and robbery. Shotgun George Zeigler was going mad.

There now were fully 26 persons in the gang, counting the hangers-on and the women. Four are now dead, 22 are indicted. For once, the feminine element did not play a vital part. Kate Barker watched them, hawklike, until she saw that they were taking a definite place. Then she slashed out like a tigress. She hated George's woman. She hated Paula Harmon. The women whom her boys met must be seen secretly; only Old Creepy defied her; other gang members never mentioned their women in her presence.

Christmastide of 1933 neared. The boys were short of money; they, too, hand grandiose ideas of Frank Nash and Verne Miller. They lived in big apartments, their cars were of the higher grade. The resorts they visited, although virtually the same as those of other gangs, must always furnish the best accommodations. The funds resultant from robberies and kidnapings had become low. But the boys knew where there was a $200,000 job. A man who had known Edward George Bremer, banker and brewer of St. Paul, for more than eight years, was willing to finger him for kidnaping. Shotgun George rebelled.

"What's the use of burning up that town?" he asked. "Hasn't enough happened there already?"

'Ma says it would be a good job," Freddie answered obdurately.

"But you've got lots of friends there—Jack, in the night club; Tommy Gannon, Harry Sawyer, all of those people. Why put the heat on them? The Feds have been trailing them enough already."

"Ma thinks it would be a good job," was the persistent answer. At last George went away on a short trip to arrange a hideout in Bensonville, Ill., where the kidnap victim could be held. Then, always the gentleman, he telegraphed Monty Carter, otherwise Byron Bolton, down in Phoenix, Ariz., to come to Chicago and be a companion to Irene, his woman, while he was away on a landscaping trip. Carter, who is said to have been an active participant in the St. Valentine's massacre, arrived the next day by airplane.

Shotgun George Has New Muttering Fit

Shotgun George, muttering to himself, packed his traveling bag and went away. On January 17, 1934, Edward George Bremer was kidnaped and held in the hideout near Bensonville, Ill., not to be released for three weeks. After that the gang spent no money and went to no night clubs. Instead, Kate Barker only became more motherly than ever, more subdued; and the gang likewise was unobtrusive. But Shotgun George's malady became steadily more dangerous.

"Do you know what?" he asked in an underworld resort one night. "That Bremer money isn't going to be changed into real dough until the heat cools down. It's hidden right now; and where do you think it's hidden? In a shed belonging to my woman's uncle—wrapped in brown paper. He thinks it's just an old bundle!"

Again there were the usual admonitions for silence. Shotgun George would not be stilled. The secrets which had been locked for so many years in this man's brain were demanding freedom. Now he must talk, about football, landscape gardening, the doings of the Barker-Karpis mob and how landlords thought Kate Barker was no more than a nice, round, little old lady.

Then came the babbling stage—when they could not silence him. On the night of March 20, 1934, the telephone rang in the Zeigler apartment.

Shotgun George answered.

"Sure I'll come out," he said.

The destination was the restaurant of an old friend on Cermak road in Cicero. Shotgun George went there, surprising his friend by his visit. They chatted a while, Zeigler again loquacious. Then Shotgun George went through the door to the street.

There were four booming explosions from sawed-off shotguns. Horribly mutilated, the bleeding form of Zeigler sank to the pavement. Shotgun George had talked himself to death.

Tomorrow.
A She-Devil Dies.

On the Air Today

Complications are piling up for WJSV. First, Arthur Godfrey left for a vacation. That was solved by Arch McDonald taking over Godfrey's "Sun Dial" and "Moon Dial" in spite of the fact that when Arch had a double-header to broadcast in his afternoon baseball period he was on the air six hours and more.

Saturday, however, McDonald received word of the critical illness of his father and left for Savannah following the baseball game. WJSV was faced with the problem of filling Arch's evening "Sports Review," his Sunday baseball game and finding a substitute for a substitute on Godfrey's Monday programs.

* * * *

If you have never been faced with the situation from which develops the old saying "the show must go on" you have no idea of the problems WJSV faced over the week-end. Broadcasts of the type Arch McDonald and Arthur Godfrey present are based on two individual personalities, quite as much as Cantor, Wynn, Vallee or Woollcott are in their respective programs.

* * * *

Shirley Povich, baseball scribe of The Post, was pressed into service to handle the play-by-play description of the afternoon ball games. Bob Considine was conscripted for the "Sports Review" early evening quarter hours. And late last evening it was planned to have Dick Tenelly handle the "Moon Dial." The "Sun Dial" was expected to shed its "personality" touch and be handled by the regular announcer on duty in such fashion as he deemed best.

* * * *

Only an earthquake or tornado could keep me from a radio receiver as my colleague from the News takes over Godfrey's "Moon Dial" in the absence of Godfrey and McDonald. Tenelly has an aversion for phonograph records. The "Moon Dial" is a recorded program. For two years or more he has been the voice of the critic in viewing radio production, as he properly should. Now he finds himself the radio performer, with a job cut out for him. So far as I know it is his first time on the air and I wish him the best of success. (But I do hope that Godfrey and McDonald hear him.)

Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians revive "Ta Ra Ra Boom De Ay" for tonight's show, WJSV, at 8:30, playing it in five styles of orchestrations and with every vocalist in the troupe taking part . . . Ben Bernie presents his kid sister, Lee, just to show that the talent doesn't run entirely to Ben in the Bernie family, WRC, at 8. Lee is a torch singer . . . Al Smith speaks in the Knights of Columbus dinner program, WRC, at 9.

On the occaison of Lanny Ross' wedding last week I learned for the first time where the Lanny comes in. His first name is Lancelot! His bride, incidentally, was (and no doubt will remain) his personal representative and business manager. No doubt by this time he has become weary of having his friends inquire whether Mrs. Ross will be the boss of the household as well as his professional activities. And another thing—Lanny is a lawyer, too.

Two new candidates for the proposed Board of Review—Frank Ford Burnet, 1449 Fairmont street northwest, and Dorothy Rose, 2807 Ontario road. We still need about ten more volunteers before the board can meet and determine the best plan of procedure. If you would like to "serve" on an active board of review on criticism of programs, send your letter to the Radio Editor, care of The Washington Post.

Broadway

By Ed Sullivan

New York, Aug. 19.

I'd like to reprint a letter Will Rogers once sent me. I'd said, in one of my columns, that his humor often hurt the person at whom it was directed. This was his answer:

"My dead Ed: That piece you wrote naturally hurt me. There is not a soul in public life that I 'got it in for.' No, Ed, that's where you've got me wrong. My humor is not so hot, my philosophy don't philo, and my jokes are pre-war, but my good feeling toward mankind, politicians included, is 100 per cent. Now, if I was, as you wrote, 'searing' everybody with a hot branding iron, I don't think I could have gone along this long. I couldn't hurt and insult every one I meet and still last. You know, I have been going a good while, Ed, kinder far beyond my allotted span. You only seem to go back to the Ziegfeld days to dig up my 'vitriolic' remarks. Why, I started that back at Hammerstein's Victoria in 1905. I told my little jokes about the fathers of the present crop of politicians. All the present Roosevelts I have been intimate with for years. And young John Coolidge knows the admiration I have for his dad. Just in tonight's mail came the nicest little letter from John D. Rockefeller, sr., whom I often joshed.

"I know that mine is not exactly the type of humor (if you can call it that), that has appealed to you younger boys who have Broadway at your feet. I couldn't come there and tell my jokes and have anybody laugh at them. But us country columnists—they don't expect much from us. I started this durn letter yesterday when the election results started coming in, and here it is, two nights later, so I've clean forgot what I was 'sore' at you about, Ed, but whatever it was, up in the front end of the letter, I apologize. I will meet you on my next trip back there and insult you over some corned beef and cabbage at Dinty Moore's. The returns are just coming in from the Virgin Islands, Ed, Clark Gable is leading Hoover and Roosevelt, both.

WILL ROGERS."

The intensive campaign of the government through the Federal Housing Administration, to awaken interest in home improvement, gave us an idea. The result is that we have molded our own Home Improvement Plan and made it a feature of our all-important Half Yearly Furniture and Homewares Sale.

The three months of preparation in cooperation with America's leading furniture and homeware manufacturers, made possible sale values outstanding even for The Hecht Co.

The overwhelmingly big response to our institutional Half Yearly event is eloquent proof that Washington was waiting for a sale of this kind and a plan of this kind.

Simple. Timely. Convenient. Our Home Improvement Plan is the modern way to enjoy finer things. It is a budget plan that makes paying from income very easy. No down payment is required. And based on your own inclination, you take one, two or three years to pay. Whatever you need, from blankets to baby carriages and from radios to rugs, is yours on the Home Improvement Plan.
